

Contributors

Harold C. Batchelder (Problems in Rating Disturbed Behavior) is social work director at the Virginia Treatment Center for Children, and assistant professor of psychiatry at the Medical College of Virginia. Mr. Batchelder studied at Bangor Theological Seminary in Bangor, Maine, and received his A.B. from Elon College in North Carolina and a Master's degree in social work from the former Richmond Professional Institute (now part of Virginia Commonwealth University). Before taking his present post, Mr. Batchelder served extensively in public welfare departments and family services agencies in Virginia, North Carolina and Georgia.

Thomas C. Coniglione (Book Review: Ocular Syndromes. Walter J. Geeraets) completed undergraduate study at Columbia University and medical school at MCV. He then spent his internship and first year of medical residency at the Yale-New Haven Medical Center before returning to MCV to finish his residency. He is now chief resident in the department of medicine.

Benjamin C. Hammett (Problems in Rating Disturbed Behavior) is senior psychologist at the Virginia Treatment Center for Children and instructor in psychiatry at the Medical College of Virginia. He graduated from Stanford and received a Ph.D. from the University of North Carolina. Before coming to MCV, Dr. Hammett was research associate and staff psychologist in the Children's Psychiatric Unit at the Burdick Centre in North Carolina.

Lillian C. Lindemann (Special Characteristics of Adopted Children and Adoptive Parents as Seen in a Psychiatric Practice), a graduate of Sarah Lawrence College and Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons, is assistant clinical professor of psychiatry and clinical associate in pediatrics at MCV. She also has a private practice in child and adult psychiatry in Richmond. Dr. Lindemann completed a residency in pediatrics at MCV and had a private pediatric practice before returning to MCV to complete a residency in general and child psychiatry.

James L. Mathis (Psycho-Social Aspects of Drug Abuse by Modern Youth) is professor and chairman of the department of psychiatry at the Medical College of Virginia. After attending undergraduate school at The Citadel in South Carolina and the University of Missouri, he received his M.D. from St. Louis University School of Medicine. Dr. Mathis began his medical career in general practice, but in 1960 entered a psychiatric residency at the University of Oklahoma Medical Center where he went on to hold the positions of instructor and assistant professor of psychiatry. Before coming to MCV, Dr. Mathis was associate professor of psychiatry at Rutgers.

Hugh McMahan (Severe School Phobia) is a senior medical student at the Medical College of Virginia, and recipient of the 1970 MCV Faculty Award in Child Psychiatry. Mr. McMahan received an A.B. from Bowdoin College in Brunswick, Maine.

Carol McNally Owens (Severe School Phobia) is a senior medical student at the Medical College of Virginia. She received a B.A. from the University of Delaware. Mrs. Owens is a recipient of the 1970 MCV Faculty Award in Child Psychiatry.

Douglas F. Powers (Severe School Phobia) is director of the Virginia Treatment Center for Children and professor and chairman of the division of child psychiatry at MCV. Dr. Powers holds a B.S. degree from Tennessee Technological University, a M.S. from the University of Virginia, and a M.D. from Baylor. While serving in the Air Force, he was director of the Adolescent Psychiatry Clinic, U.S.A.F. Hospital, Geneva, New York and then chief of psychiatry, U.S.A.F. Hospital in Tokyo. Before coming to MCV, Dr. Powers was director of the Bristol (Virginia & Tennessee) Mental Health Clinic, and director of child psychiatry at Vanderbilt.

Virginia A. Saunders (Special Characteristics of Adopted Children and Adoptive Parents as Seen in a Psychiatric Practice), a psychiatric social worker with Dr. Lillian C. Lindemann, has had an active career in social work for the past 20 years in Virginia. She has worked with the Child Care Bureau of the Department of Welfare and Institutions, the Virginia Methodist Children's Home, the Child Welfare Division of the City of Richmond, the Family and Children's Service of Richmond, and the Virginia Treatment Center for Children where she was supervisor of psychiatric social work. Miss Saunders received her B.A. from Mary Washington College and a Master's degree from the Richmond School of Social Work of the College of William and Mary.

Gilbert Silverman (Elective Mutism in Childhood) is director of child and adolescent services at Westbrook Psychiatric Hospital and assistant clinical professor of child psychiatry at MCV. After receiving his B.A. from New York University and M.D. from the University of Bern, Switzerland, Dr. Silverman took hospital training in pediatrics, psychiatry and child psychiatry at Emory, Duke and MCV. Before coming to this institution, he was acting associate Chief of Staff at the VA Hospital in Perry Point, Maryland.

Ann Stewart (Variations on the Theme of Depression), director of the Tidewater Mental Health Clinic in Williamsburg and clinical associate professor at the Medical College of Virginia, has devoted her career to the field of child psychiatry. Dr. Stewart holds the degrees of A.B. from Vassar, M.D. from Columbia University, and M.P.H. from the Harvard School of Public Health. Before coming to Virginia in 1968, she had a private practice in Denver and was on the faculty of the Denver School of Social Work and the University of Colorado.