This Open Access Edition of The Politics of Annexation presents a newly formatted version of the original 1982 edition. The text itself has been edited only for non-substantive style changes and corrections.

The Preface, the new Introduction (“Fifty Years Later”), and the index were prepared especially for this edition.

The Open Access Edition was produced in cooperation with the University of Richmond, especially with the assistance of Lucretia McCulley, Head, Scholarly Communications, University Libraries. The original edition is available through the UR Scholarship Repository at https://scholarship.richmond.edu/bookshelf/307/

Research materials used by the authors in writing this book are available at Special Collections and Archives, James Branch Cabell Library, Virginia Commonwealth University. A description of the materials can be found at https://archives.library.vcu.edu/repositories/5/resources/83

About the Authors

John V. Moeser is Professor Emeritus of Urban Studies and Planning at Virginia Commonwealth University. He was one of the founding members of the department in 1971. Following his 34 year career at VCU and shortly before his retirement in 2005, he was invited to become Senior Fellow in the Bonner Center for Civic Engagement at the University of Richmond. During his 12 years at UR, he continued his study of African American history in Richmond during the 20th Century and began a comprehensive analysis of poverty, race, and public policy that ultimately led to the creation of Richmond’s Anti-Poverty Commission.

Rutledge M. Dennis is Professor of Sociology in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at George Mason University, where he teaches and conducts research on W.E.B. Du Bois, the sociology of ideas, theoretical sociology, social stratification, and race and ethnic studies. He was the first Coordinator of African American Studies at Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond, Virginia, and it was there where he became a public sociologist and engaged in a variety of civic activities: a Commissioner with the Richmond Redevelopment and Housing Authority, a member of the Board of Directors of H.O.M.E., and a member of Black Media, Inc. He has published numerous books, the last of which was The Field Notes of a Sociologist, produced as a part of the Black Middletown Project. He is the recipient of numerous honors and awards, including the Reise-Melton Cross Cultural Award, the Joseph S. Himes Lifetime Achievement Award, the Du Bois-Johnson-Frazier Award, and the Alpha Phi Alpha Scholastic Achievement Award. He is currently completing work on two major projects: the Sociology of W.E.B. Du Bois and Black Middletown.

Julian Maxwell Hayter is a historian and Associate Professor of Leadership Studies at the University of Richmond. His research focuses on modern U.S. history, American political development, African-American history, and the American civil rights movement. He is the author of The Dream is Lost: Voting Rights and the Politics of Race in Richmond, Virginia.
