JBS Swift and Co. Facing EEOC Suit Alleging Mistreatment Of Somali Muslims

DENVER — Muslim Somali workers at two JBS Swift & Co. meatpacking plants in Colorado and Nebraska face ongoing harassment because of their race and religion, including being prevented from getting a drink at one of the plants after fasting all day during the Islamic holy month of Ramadan, the workers' lawyers said Tuesday in a federal lawsuit.

The lawsuit is the latest in a series of civil rights cases filed against the meatpacker since 2007, alleging that Somali Muslims were targeted for harassment and discrimination because of their race and religion.

The lawsuit was filed in federal court in Denver on behalf of a Somali worker who was not named in the complaint.

The lawsuit alleges that the worker was denied access to a water fountain at one of the plants, which is a violation of the equal employment opportunity laws.

The lawsuit also alleges that the worker was subjected to verbal and physical harassment, including being called names and being told that he should leave the country.

The lawsuit seeks unspecified damages and an injunction against future harassment.

The lawsuit is the latest in a series of civil rights cases filed against JBS since 2007, when a group of Somali Muslims filed a lawsuit against the company, alleging that they were targeted for harassment and discrimination because of their race and religion.

The lawsuit seeks unspecified damages and an injunction against future harassment.

The company has denied the allegations and has said that it is committed to providing a safe and respectful workplace for all employees.

A confession:
I regret leaving my religion just to marry you.

A confession:
I used to pride I was making love to the models in the Sears catalog.

A confession:
I'm still in love with my best friend's wife. I'll continue to love her. I love my girlfriend, but I'm a traditional man.

A confession:
I treated the ones that care about me the most the worst.

A confession:
I don't believe in my God or religion. But what would you call it if you're not in a fantasy (or you're just me)?

A confession:
I write by the time.

A confession:
I feel it was more convenient to be false.

A confession:
I can't be true to you.

A confession:
I feel I can't control it (in the end)
THE VOICES OF UNC

What is a college student?
You could ask 100 people and most likely get 100 different answers.
What is on our minds?
What are our secrets? Thoughts? Viewpoints?
Our goal in this installation was to explore what is really going on with college students.
What would you confess is no one knew it was you?

(Please feel free to add your own confession/thought/quote/etc to a card)
I'm a bit embarrassed of my girlfriend.
I don't want to go out in public with her.

You never fail until you quit trying.

I'm scared of the future.
I took one of my friends to plan Parenthood so she could have an abortion.

I'm a girl, but I want to be a boy—so badly.

I need to get out of America! Can I get a job in Japan?

Fabian from Financial Aid is HOT!!!!!!

You think drama ends when you leave high school, but it NEVER ends! People will always talk about each other.

I don't love the guy I'm with... but what can I do when I can't get a job and need a place to live?

I don't show my arms because I think they are too fat.

Gimme a freak!
