Boardwalk Empire

Truth Thomas

Atlantic City is a good trip if you want to teach your children about pimps and screaming and gunshots screaming at three o’clock in the morning, and seagulls that eat better than people do, and wheelchairs parking people with oxygen tanks for guards — people with canyons, instead of bags, under their eyes, addiction lighting their eyes like LEDs in flat screens, at the boardwalk, on the boardwalk, Under the Boardwalk, where only sirens sing, at the Trump Taj Mahal, at 3 o’clock in the morning. At 3 o’clock in the morning, you can order Buffalo chicken pizza, with blue cheese on the side, from South End Pizza, and they will bring it to your room — if you have a room. Say you have a room, and paper to flame for a pie, and you’re not sleeping in the shadow of “The Donald,” of “The Donald Duck,” of the “Dick,” also known as Donald, at Trump Taj Mahal, where even seagulls have comb-overs, yours will be a good room. Wet bars thirst for these rooms. All pimps know these rooms, like lipstick tricked knows sucky sucky sounds.

You might be on the 42nd floor.
You might be loopy in loot.
If you are loopy with loot, your good time sugar will be glazed, but if you are not buttered and hot, thick with bread, you will be a Happy Meal for seagulls, in Atlantic City — in America City — and tourists will clap for these birds, finger them in phones, as they Hitchcock into storm, tornado into pecks, scavenge whimpers of your children, and shit them out, up and down the Ferris wheeling street.
