FELIX GALL WINS MEN'S JUNIOR TITLE

SEPTEMBER 27, 2015

Felix Gall, an 17-year-old Austrian, won Saturday's men's junior road race at the UCI Road World Championships. Betouigt-Suire, a 17-year-old Frenchman came in second place a centimeter behind Felix Gall at the conclusion of their 80.5-mile, eight-lap circuit race. The Race was so close at the finish that Betouigt-Suire grasped his handlebars and literally yanked his front wheel off the pavement in an effort to hurl his bicycle across the line ahead of Gall's. He failed by a wafer-thin margin. Both men were assigned the same time: 3:11:09.

INFORMATION ON THE UCI ROAD WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP RACES

SEPTEMBER 25, 2015

UCI Road World Championship Races, which run from Sept. 19-27, 2015 and will bring approximately 1,000 cyclists to town, and an estimated 450,000 spectators over the nine-day event.

There are three men and women's disciplines (Elite, Under 23 and Junior) that will race on four courses – the team time trial course, the individual time trial circuit, the Elite men's individual time trial course, and the traditional road circuit.

Two of the four courses start downtown at the Greater Richmond Convention Center (GRCC); one course starts at Kings Dominion, one at Lewis Ginter Botanical Gardens and the last race begins at University of Richmond.

All races finish on Broad Street at the convention center. In most cases, streets will close one hour before each race begins; they will open immediately following the completion of each race.

The race which spans the most districts is the 32.9 mile Men's Elite race, which starts at King's Dominion and winds through Hanover, Henrico and Richmond. The Road Circuit race is the longest distance racers will cover to get their rainbow jersey; a smaller circuit overall, but with a total distance of 161 miles (Men's Elite).

I hope this information will help me reader get a better under standing of the race and its locations. please continue reading my posts.
