SHAME to attack pollution

Several hundred people are expected to attend a rally in Monroe Park today to hear anti-pollution speakers and to write letters to their congressmen asking for more environment-protecting legislation.

The rally is being organized by Students to Halt the Attack on Man and his Environment (SHAME), a Richmond-based anti-pollution group. It is part of the nationwide observance of "Earth Week."

Keynote speaker will be Delegate Clive L. DuVal II of McLean. His topic is "The General Assembly and the Populace."

Other speakers and their topics are: Earl Curry of the T.C. Williams Law School at the University of Richmond, "Individual Rights and the Law;" Newton Ancarrow, a local marina owner, "Richmond's Water Pollution;" Charles Finlay of the State Department of Recreation and Parks, "Virginia's Forests;" and Bruce English, "Is There Life After Breath?"

City Councilman Henry L. Marsh III will speak on "Problems of Urban Environment" and J.G. Williams, chief of Richmond's Bureau of Air Pollution Control will talk on "Air Pollution."

A.H. Paessler of the State Water Control Board will speak about Virginia's new water quality standards.

Two other persons will talk about population and pollution and the role of industry in the environment.

Tomorrow is designated "Look in Your Own Backyard Day" for which each college will plan its own program. VCU's Circle K club has established a pollution committee headed by Bob Silcott to organize campus activities.

Elementary and secondary school children have been asked to go from door to door Friday to talk with their

More school funds due for veterans

Veterans can expect increased educational benefits beginning with the May supplement, according to Mrs. Barbara Leigh, VCU Veterans Coordinator.

The new veterans educational schedule was passed by Congress and signed by President Nixon last month. And, according to the VA office here, the higher payments will be retroactive to February 1, 1970.

The new VA schedule for full-time students will boost monthly payments for single veterans to $175; for married veterans with no children to $205, with one child to $230. Each additional child will increase the supplement by $13 each.

Veterans attending VCU part time will also receive increases.

Veterans planning to attend a summer session are urged to notify Mrs. Leigh immediately after they pre-register.

Mrs. Leigh said the veterans who fail to notify her office until the summer session begins in June will not receive a check until the end of July. However, she said if her office is able to certify the veteran's summer session attendance during pre-registration there should be no delay in receiving the June and July payments.

Campbell named to replace Hodges

Dr. Kenneth Campbell of Auburn University, is replacing Dr. Raymond Hodges as chairman of the Department of Dramatic Arts and Speech.

Dr. Campbell is currently chairman of the drama department at Auburn University in Auburn, Ala. He is to replace Dr. Hodges next fall. Dr. Hodges is retiring after 30 years as department head.

"I am pleased that Dr. Campbell accepted the chairmanship of the Drama department," Dr. Hodges said.

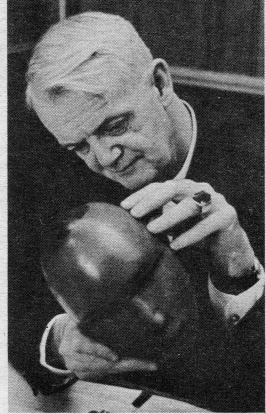

A native of Scotland, Dr. Campbell received his masters degree at Catholic University and his doctorate from the University of Denver.

Asked about changes in the department, Dr. Hodges cited the Student Advisory Committee, which was set up by drama students and is now completing its first year.

The committee has organized and conducted freshman auditions, a first in the department. A panel of instructors is present at the auditions and interview of each prospective student.

"I don't know how we have gotten along this far without the help of the student committee," Dr. Hodges said and cited their other responsibilities in helping the department staff decide on which students should have a release to work on productions outside the department.

Committee change amendment asked

A constitutional amendment was submitted to the House Monday night, which if put into effect would restructure the nominating committee of the Student Court.

The proposed amendment says the new committee would be composed of the advisor to the court, the outgoing chairman, president and vice president of the SGA, speaker of the House, one student and faculty member representing the major schools, who would be appointed by the deans of the respective schools in the Academic Center.

Under the present constitution, Article 7, Sec. 4, item 2, the outgoing president and vice president of the SGA, Speaker of the House and two members each from the House and Senate must serve with the incoming president and vice president of the SGA to nominate the chairman and co-chairman of the court.

Sub items of the proposed amendment say the president and vice president of the SGA must be present at all applicants' interviews. At least 10 voting members of the court must be present to vote on the applicants. It further states that each nominee must appear before the Senate for confirmation by a majority vote.

The amendment must be posted for two weeks for public viewing and voted into the constitution by a two-thirds vote from each house.

The amendment was submitted by Ken Klinger with strong backing by Mary Ellen Tisdale, SGA vice president and student advisor to the court.

Mary Ellen later said the court is meeting in a constitutional convention at 7 p.m. today to revamp the court's document. She said no one knows at this time, how extensive the changes will be. The meeting will be held in the Student Center conference room.

"The Student Court feels that it can best serve the students if it can reorganize to best fit student needs," she said. "By a new constitutional amendment (to the SGA constitution) the court members feel that this is a stepping stone towards gaining more faculty and student involvement."

The court, she said, feels it is in "too narrow a scope" to be a student court and that changes broadening its range of jurisdiction may be needed.

In other House business, Shayne Racker presented a motion calling for the Student Life Committee to investigate the possibility of the

Murphy, Budd are to meet in runoff 'soon'

Unofficial tallies of class officer elections were announced last night by Delmar Dayton, Board of Elections chairman.

Tentative senior victors are Chic Rodgers, vice president; Pat Sawyer, secretary; Nancy Stetter, treasurer; and Clark Rambo, senator.

Junior winners are Louise Jessee, president; Gwen Chandler, vice president; Linda Kent, secretary; Karen Kendrick, treasurer; and Signe Girgus, senator.

Sophomore winners are Bob Fink, president; Thorne Kenneth Wright, vice president; Ann Smith, secretary; Denis E. Blackburn, treasurer; and Deborah Simpson, senator.

There will be a hearing at 5 p.m. Thursday in the SGA conference room in the Student Center to hear possible complaints.

We are exhausting our air.

This Dramatic Illustration of the Dangers of One Type of Pollution Was Created by Doris L. Dorsey, Art3 Alexandria.

A solution to pollution

Today is Earth Day, an important part of Emphasis on Environment Week in Virginia and across the nation. How fitting that today's observances take place in Monroe Park, the only campus this university knows. That historic park itself has been threatened by pollution in the form of bulldozers to make way for a high-rise apartment building, but it has withstood the attacks and will weather many more before students here allow the only spot of green in the area to be lost.

Pollution is the word today. It is America's latest fad. Even the war and poverty have taken second place in today's headlines to the one problem everyone is aware of, and the one item all politicians can base their platforms on.

Colleges all over the nation are taking part today in speeches, seminars, marches and cleanup campaigns to combat the ogres that cause pollution. The big corporations and giant manufacturing firms are once again the target—once it was for contributing to the military-industrial complex, now it is for polluting the air and water with refuse from their products. No one yet has called on these companies to cease production, only to cease pollution.

Catalyst

I am directing this to Mister School America. I am writing you this letter to advise you of the near death of your son, John H. Doe. I am sure that you wish to know the full details of this "accident," but first allow me to say, sir, that I feel that you are in no small way responsible and it is the aim of this letter to urge you to correct your actions in the future so that this may not happen again. In order to understand the cause and nature of this "near death," I feel that it is necessary to examine the events that led up to it. I will try to make myself as brief as possible. As a tool of clarity and simplicity, I shall try to outline as well as possible (although I am fully aware that unless it is a thesis or doctorate paper duly footnoted, quoted, and scholarly and in general so boring that it is hard to understand) the events.

1) The first day of school, Stinky Elementary. Instead of learning how to cut a pattern to make a doll's clothes or how to use two logs as fulcrum and lever for the clearing of an area to build a "ground fort" or how to gauge (speaking in abstract terms, of course) the general trajectory of a wooden arrow for the best distance while playing Cowboys and Indians (before you found out that you were supposed to dislike Indians) or that almost any kind of an arch supports the bridge that you get to the Indian camp by better than just straight boards nailed together and stretched across the sewage line: No, instead it was more valid to learn the alphabet because it would be useful in later years (which is true). I can, however, see that some "theory" in learning how to judge trajectory could inculcate the use of some letters and at the same time elude the child's grasp just enough to present a challenge for the future. Perhaps this would help to stimulate the drive for knowledge. Who knows? The child might even learn to read.

2) Having learned the months of the year, the alphabet, and other relevant facts such as  $2 + 2 = 4$  and  $2 \times 2 = 4$ , we proceed into Junior High where we get yet another but not quite so infantile background in Virginia history which we are most interested in learning especially since it is 75 per cent repetition of the third-grade course and 25 per cent innovation

VCU will be the scene of one of the state's largest observances. A political candidate will aid the cause today, while tomorrow will be "Look in Your Own Backyard Day." Friday's title is "Environment Conscience Day." On Saturday, students are to disperse with great bags and pick up trash within a two-mile radius. Later a dance will be held so that students may unwind from their labors.

All these activities are worthwhile and necessary to draw attention to the activities of polluters. Much mail has come into The Times offices this week lauding the efforts of students, businesses, politicians and citizens groups trying to wipe out this deadly, man-made disease.

The most amusing and perhaps practical solution to pollution, though, came from the company that makes Arm & Hammer Baking Soda. This company suggests replacing all the harsh cleaners and chemicals that contribute to waste and pollution with baking soda. The soda can be used for needs from sunburn and minor skin irritations to removing corrosion from car batteries and terminals.

With this solution in mind, we salute Earth Day.

Mister School America: wake up!

(more dates and names to memorize and feed back as does a parrot). Instead of learning of past mistakes involving human behaviour from which we might learn something of pragmatic value, we learn that it is nearly impossible to feed back all of the data fed into us. Some few of us find an identity-ego in being able to memorize well and soon become known as brains and usually end up as teachers, teaching in the same old way—bestowing high marks on those who have a high capacity for rote while ignoring or even persecuting students who show innovative or creative tendencies. Thus we move through another phase of education (which has by now come to mean—the complete negligence of the basic drive to learn—substituting force-fed useless little tidies with which we clutter our minds).

It is impossible, we are told, to fulfill all the needs of each individual, so why try to fill any, rather, we should watch our student fall as we do the leaves of a deciduous tree in autumn while we gaily dance along instructing No, No, No! Innovation, natural human love, and curiosity are not to be encouraged; rather we should turn out on a huge assembly line, walking-talking computers.

3) Phase three is better. Hah! High School! Grammar school was for Junior High and college, Junior High was for High School and college, High School was for...High School Dropouts give every administrator from coast to coast nightmares. There is hope. Some kids do get their high school diplomas and become gas-jockies, work in a paper mill, on a pipeline, or dream of all dreams, become tractor operators.

But hah! Guess what. 75 per cent repetition; 25 per cent innovation (new dates, names, places, et cetera to memorize). What's VCU's drop-out rate? What percentage of that was really not capable (did not have the facilities) of doing college level work? Oh that many? Tsk, tsk, tsk. But what can we do about it? What do you have nightmares about, Dr. Brandt? Not that I mean to be picking on you personally, it's just that I have found quite a few enthusiastic teachers here who would like to have enough freedom to move, to try some new things, to shhh—innovate—shhh. They might even, given the freedom to teach the things that they would like to the way they they would like to, come up with an interesting presentation once in awhile. I might not look around and see so many (97 per cent) of the students dreading going to class. How about a few underclassmen seminars? But, back to the near death of John Doe. Immediate cause seemed to be an accute case of ennui.

Football practice begins

Spring practice has begun for VCU's football club. Here, Jay Carey (right) tackles Tommy Walton in a practice game at Maury Street Playground. The equipment used by the club was contributed by Virginia high schools.

Baseball record now 11-3; Old Dominion here today

The VCU baseball team will be out to increase its lead in the State Small College League standings today at the expense of Old Dominion in a 2:30 p.m. game at Hotchkiss Field.

The Rams own an 11-3 overall record and a nine-game winning streak. Their Small College League record is 3-0.

VCU prepared for its upcoming league contests last Saturday by taking both ends of a doubleheader from Newport News Apprentice School, 9-2 and 3-1.

Pitcher Bob Luttrall won his fourth game without a loss in the opener. The Shipbuilders only managed four hits off of Jim Pitts in the second game.

Luttrall pitched five and one-third innings giving Newport News only four hits while posting six strikeouts. Ray Markey, the leading Ram relief pitcher with a 2-0 record, came in to spell Luttrall in the top of the sixth inning.

Although the Rams got 10 hits, it was the 10 errors committed by Newport News that allowed most of the nine runs. The first three came in the second inning as a direct result of four Shipbuilder errors.

The Rams finished the onslaught by scoring two runs in the sixth inning and one in the seventh. The Shipbuilders could manage only single runs in the second and fourth innings.

Jim Pitts evened his record at 2-2 by allowing only four hits and driving in two of the three Ram runs in the second game.

His first RBI came in the fifth inning after Frank Mitchell had walked and Gary Williams had singled. Pitts then belted a single bringing in Mitchell with Dale Chenault then sending out a sacrifice fly to right to bring home Williams.

Pitts' second RBI came when he worked the Newport News pitcher for a bases-loaded walk in the sixth inning.

Tomorrow the Rams play a crucial game against the league's second place

Hampden-Sydney team at Hotchkiss Field, again at 2:30. Hampden-Sydney has only one loss spread over 13 games and should offer the Rams their chief competition in their drive toward the state championship.

Softball, volleyball games, long race set for May Week

By Harold Castleman
Times Staff Writer

The annual volleyball tournament, alley marathon and men's slowpitch softball tournament are planned for the week of May 11-16 by the VCU Department of Intramural Athletics.

Activities will be initiated Monday,

May 11 with the beginning of the volleyball tournament. Games will be at 3 p.m. on Shafer Street Court.

All full-time students are eligible. Teams may have up to 12 players on their roster. At least six, but no more than 10 may play at the same time. At least 50 per cent of the players on the court at all times must be women.

The entry deadline is Friday, May 8 at noon.

The marathon will be run May 13, it will start and finish at Shafer Street Court and will cover a course of about 10 to 12 blocks in length.

The course will intertwine along sidewalks and through alleys of the west campus. Starting time will be 2 p.m.

Entry deadline for the marathon is Monday, May 11 at noon.

A men's slowpitch softball tournament will wrap up the week's athletic events on Saturday. It will be open to all full-time male students except for college baseball lettermen and those participating in varsity baseball in the current season.

The entry deadline is May 14 at noon. Playing times will be posted at 826 West Franklin st. on Friday, May 15. Facilities have not yet been arranged.

Entry blanks are available from the intramural office at 826 West Franklin st.

Crew beats ECU

The VCU rowing team overcame strong winds and a powerful current last Saturday to defeat East Carolina University by half a shell length on ECU's home course on the Tar River.

VCU's time was 8:15.2, while the Pirates finished in 8:19.

There was no junior varsity race; because East Carolina did not have a shell for its junior varsity. Wind blew a hole in the boat. Also, there was some vandalism to the shell.

The Ram oarsmen were also to compete against the University of North Carolina last weekend, but UNC canceled the race.

VCU returned to Greenville, N.C. Sunday and drilled with the Pirates on the Tar River.

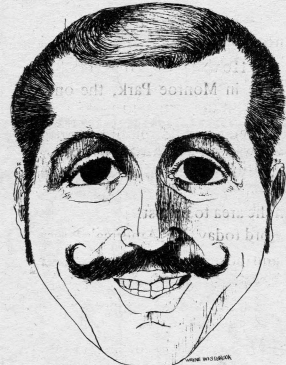

The Rams will participate in one of their biggest races of the year this weekend when they travel to Charleston, S.C., for the Southeastern Intercollegiate Rowing Association's Regatta.

About 14 colleges are expected to participate. Among them are the University of Alabama, University of Virginia, The Citadel, East Carolina, and VCU.

May Jubilee concert

'First Edition' due here

Tickets for the First Edition concert, scheduled for May 15, are tentatively scheduled to go on sale May 5, according to Richard Kimzey, Concert and Dance Committee chairman.

Prices have not been decided, but $2.50 has been suggested by Kimzey as the "absolute, bare minimum, set to avoid any possibility of us going into the red for the year."

The four-man, one-girl group, containing former members of the New Christy Minstrels, specializes in rock and ballad blues. They are currently on the charts with "Something's Burning."

Past hits were "Just Dropped In (To See What Condition My Condition Was In)," "But You Know I Love You," "Ruby, Don't Take Your Love to Town," and "Ruben James."

The band is receiving $4,750 for their VCU date, and with a tentative ticket price of $2.50 a head, Kimzey expects a projected loss of $1700.

Along with the concert, a dance is being scheduled for the gym. The committee is currently considering booking Billy Joe Royal, Brother Fox and the Tar Babies, Callidonian Mission, or Hammer.
