15th Annual
HIGHER GROUND
Women's Leadership Conference
Pivoting Forward: The LeaderSHIFT

November 5, 2021 | Richmond, Virginia

PRESENTED BY
The Grace E. Harris Leadership Institute
AN INSTITUTE IN THE L. DOUGLAS WILDER SCHOOL OF GOVERNMENT AND PUBLIC AFFAIRS
ABOUT THE CONFERENCE
The Annual HIGHER Ground Women's Leadership Conference provides high-quality education and networking opportunities. Each year, participants come together to share ideas, illuminate innovative leadership practices and explore factors that influence their effectiveness at work, at home, and in their communities. This conference provides participants with a tremendous opportunity to grow, develop, and learn with practical solutions for success in their personal and professional lives. Our one-day conference offers a facilitated learning environment with regional and national speakers highlighting timely issues of importance to women.

This event celebrates who you are as a woman in all aspects of your life. We embrace the fullness of womanhood in all its inclusive paths, intersectional journeys, and for all interested in how womanhood has shaped their leadership journey. The conference will provide you with a tremendous opportunity to grow, develop, and learn with practical solutions for success at home and at work. Guided by The Grace E. Harris Leadership Institute, participants will explore the latest and innovative practices in leadership excellence. Spend a day with great leaders, find what motivates you, and build leadership skills that last!
PIVOTING FORWARD: THE LEADERSHIFT

The practice of leadership is most often understood within the context of relationships inside organizations and institutions. The boundaries that dictated our lives months before have all but dissolved, prompting the need to reconsider our definition of leadership, where it takes place, and who controls it.

Circumstances and opportunities have required women to readjust their expectations and what is expected of them. While the past 18-months took a physical, emotional, social, and political toll on many families, it has also provided a moment for reflection, resignation, recovery, and reimagination of what our lives could be beyond this moment. It has forced a shift in our notion of leadership and allowed us to reconsider our roles and worth at home and work.

Opportunities have emerged from an uncertain environment for leaders to reflect on how we capitalize on the leadershifts that have transpired over the last year to pivot forward.

OPENING KEYNOTE - WE ALL WIN, WHEN WOMEN LEAD!
Kiko Davis Snoddy, Renowned Businesswoman, Philanthropist, Author, Trustee, Donald Davis Living Trust Founder and President of the Don Davis Legacy Foundation, Managing Director of Groovesville Productions & Publishing LLC

Research and history have shown evidence that when women are in charge, everyone wins. There is a distinct female advantage that gives women the competitive edge. Women are likely to be more inclusive and transformational in their leadership style and ethos. They are more likely to mentor and role model. Countries do better when women lead. Communities do better when women lead. Companies do better when women lead. As a result, these women serve as aspirational markers to envision possibilities. Join us for this power session with leader Kiko Davis Snoddy, Trustee, Donald Davis Living Trust Founder and President of the Don Davis Legacy Foundation, Managing Director of Groovesville Productions & Publishing LLC, as she highlights her personal leadership journey and the leadership skills she believes are needed for success.
PLENARY I - RISING ABOVE RESISTANCE: DIVERSITY, EQUITY AND INCLUSION FOR WOMEN IN TODAY'S ORGANIZATIONS

The Honorable Ida Chen, Judge, Court of Common Pleas, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania
Marcelle Wilson Davis, DSL, Director, Diversity, Equity & Inclusion, VCU Health System
Maria Morukian, MA, PCC, President and Founder, MSM Global Consulting, LLC
Janice Underwood, PhD, Chief Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Officer, Office of the Governor, Commonwealth of Virginia

The national refocusing on diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) was felt in workplaces and communities across the world. New efforts were launched, strategies were implemented, and commitments to lasting change were declared. In the months since, it appears the focus has drifted back to DEI status quo, as leaders committed to systemic change resist stagnation. DEI Executives featured in this discussion will provide their insights and share strategies for furthering mission-critical DEI initiatives in your own organizations.

PLENARY II - WHO'S GOT NEXT? PREPARING FOR THE NEXT GENERATION OF IMPACTFUL WOMEN'S LEADERSHIP

Adria Córdova, President, Association for Latino Professionals, Philadelphia Chapter
Abby Credicott, Chair, Chamber RVA, HYPE (Helping Young Professionals Engage)
Ka'Myia Gunn, Student, Emory University School of Law
Ryann Lofchie, Chief Executive Officer, Viveki Consulting, LLC

With nearly five generations of employees in the workplace, it’s time to make room for emerging talent to lead the vision forward. Today's next generation of women leaders are the largest in the workforce and have already amassed an outstanding record of accomplishment. Yet, the current agenda for women’s leadership centers heavily on a historical model. With plenty of experience under their belts, the next generation of women leaders is looking for a modern take on the appraisal of their performance. This session will examine the changing values of young working women, how well we are preparing for the next generation of leaders from their perspectives, what advice they need, and what advice they can give.
PLenary III - Power Up! Preparing for the Essential Needs of Women in the Workforce
Chrissy Keeton, Founder & CEO, Control Y Consulting
Jennifer Y. Scott, Director, The Americas, Global Workplace Solutions Team, The Coca-Cola Company
Elizabeth Veliz, Assistant Vice President, Talent Management & Organizational Development, VCU Health System
Omega Wilson, Founder, Innovative Strategies Consulting, LLC

The work-life challenges women face were exacerbated by the pandemic, forcing new ways of working and living. As we move beyond these experiences, women’s choices, expectations, and narratives about work are evolving—so too must their workplaces. This plenary session will highlight the organizational norms and expectations needed to construct workplaces that support the changing needs of women. Join us to explore tactics, strategies, and visions needed to create the conditions necessary for women to strive and thrive in the changing workforce.

Closing Keynote - Hope, Love, and Grace... Reaching Higher Ground
Susanna Wu-Pong Calvert, PhD, Founder, and Executive Director of the Foundation for Family and Community Healing

The conference will come to a close creating a reflective space to turn your attention to higher ground. Prioritizing hope, love, and grace can serve as guiding principles to cultivate a growth mindset and transform leadership for yourself and others. Draw on the inspiration of our closing keynote speaker, Founder, and Executive Director of the Foundation for Family and Community Healing, Dr. Susanna Wu-Pong Calvert, to spark your own.

CONFERENCE SPEAKERS
Kiko Davis Snoddy, Renowned Businesswoman, Philanthropist, Author

Kiko Davis Snoddy is a global entrepreneur, orator, advocate, and author. Kiko is the trustee of the Donald Davis Living Trust. The Davis Trust is the majority shareholder of First Independence Bank, the 7th largest African-American owned bank in the United States, controlled by the Davis Family. She is also the founder and president of the Don Davis Legacy Foundation, established in 2016 to perpetuate legacy-building efforts and initiatives that support the community at large. In addition, Davis Snoddy is the managing director of Groovesville Productions & Publishing LLC which controls the Grammy Award-winning music catalog of multiple gold and platinum-selling hit records. Prior to her role as foundation founder and president, Davis Snoddy worked as a real estate professional facilitating multiple development projects which includes building and rehabbing multiple affordable single-family residential properties and several commercial real estate projects throughout the country.

Kiko Davis Snoddy is diligent at maintaining a historically significant empire while forging yet another path all her own. Always creating opportunities, she is currently developing products for the beauty industry, along with collaborating with a production company to produce a documentary to be released early next year. Davis Snoddy recently co-authored her first book A Widow’s Resilience – Wisdom Keys for Moving Forward in Life and Love After Death Do Us Part.

Her philanthropy extends to the support of other great causes and organizations such as the Ronald McDonald House, the Charles H. Wright Museum of African American History, the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Music Hall Center for the Performing Arts, Covenant House, United Negro College Fund, NAACP and many other organizations that serve the community.

A respected investor, highly sought national speaker, and passionate mentor, Davis Snoddy has received numerous accolades for her work including the Michigan Chronicle’s Women of Excellence Award, the prestigious Ebony Magazine Power 100 honor, and Café Mocha’s Salute THEM: Business Legacy Award. In late 2020, she completed the Women’s Executive Leadership program at Yale School of Management. Recently, Davis Snoddy became a multi-year fellow selected by the Salzburg Global Seminar, a non-profit organization that challenges global leaders to shape a better world by fostering partnerships for creative, just and sustainable change. She continues to speak across the nation with a special focus on empowering women in business. Guided by faith and divine order, Davis Snoddy wed international manufacturer Anthony L. Snoddy in late 2019. The couple lends their combined philanthropic efforts by serving as Music Hall Board of Trustees and the Chairman’s Circle. The Snoddy’s are devoted parents to five children around whom their world revolves.
Susanna Wu-Pong Calvert, PhD, Founder and Convener for Mission & Vision, Foundation for Family and Community Healing

Over the past 25 years in higher education as a teacher, coach, and a faculty and student development professional, Calvert has taught and counseled hundreds of students and faculty members on interpersonal relationships and personal development. Calvert spent most of her life playing the game of creating a successful life... a PhD in pharmaceutical chemistry, tenure at a major university, a McMansion and 2 kids, only to realize that these things did not bring happiness. She learned over time that relationships are the most important thing in our lives, but few, including Calvert, are taught how to create rewarding relationships in our personal and professional lives; this was particularly evident to Calvert while observing many young people ill-equipped to manage emotional and relationship challenges. After decades fostering professional and personal development in students, staff, and faculty at Virginia Commonwealth University and the University of Georgia, a degree in applied positive psychology (MAPP), and several coaching credentials, Calvert became inspired to bring mental, emotional, and relationship education to students and communities beyond higher education through this unique Foundation.
FIRESIDE CHAT WITH CHARIS JONES
AN AFTER CONFERENCE LEADERSHIP CONVERSATION

Charis Jones, CEO & Chief Designer, Sassy Jones

Jones is the Chief Executive Officer and Chief Designer of Sassy Jones, a fashion and lifestyle brand. Her goal is to make style and fashion feel effortless for the woman who wants and does it all. ABOUT THE INSTITUTE
The Grace E. Harris Leadership Institute was established in May 1999 by the Board of Visitors at Virginia Commonwealth University in honor of Grace E. Harris, Ph.D., upon her retirement from the position of provost and vice president for academic affairs. Harris served the university for more than 40 years in the roles of faculty member, dean, vice provost, provost and vice president for academic affairs, and acting president, becoming the highest-ranking woman and highest-ranking African American in VCU’s history. Following her retirement as provost, Harris served as a distinguished professor in the Center for Public Policy and led the Grace E. Harris Leadership Institute.

The Institute develops and implements programs based on principles of collaboration and partnership. Other unique features include its strong theoretical grounding in the concept of transformational leadership, its commitment to long-term relationships with clients and participants, and its focus on leadership in academic and community settings. The Institute also conducts research and disseminates knowledge on the best practices in leadership.
Grace E. Harris, Ph.D., graduated high school from Halifax Training School in 1950, where she was class valedictorian. Harris attended Hampton Institute, now Hampton University, and spent a semester at Grinnell College in 1952 as an exchange student. She was involved in a program designed to promote interracial understanding at both schools. At that time, she was one of five African Americans at Grinnell. Harris received her Bachelor of Science in sociology from Hampton Institute, graduating with highest honors. Originally denied admission to Richmond Professional Institute of the College of William & Mary (now VCU) in 1954 during Virginia’s massive resistance, Harris attended Boston University in 1954-55. She would later return to Richmond and receive her Master of Social Work from RPI in 1960. She received Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degrees in sociology from the University of Virginia in 1974 and 1975, respectively.

Beginning her career in 1955, Harris was a caseworker in Hampton, Va., in the Department of Public Welfare until 1957, and eventually a caseworker and supervisor in the Department of Welfare and Institutions in Richmond, Va. In 1963, she went on to become executive director of the Friends’ Association for Children. She was also director of the Richmond Community Action Program. From 1967 to 1976, Harris served as an assistant professor in the VCU School of Social Work. During her last year as assistant professor in the school, she was director of student affairs. In 1976, she became an associate professor. Two years later, Harris was named associate dean of the School of Social Work, a role she maintained until 1980. In the year following, she was named Fellow in Academic Administration for the American Council on Education, which was an internship with president and vice president for academic affairs at VCU. In 1990, she was named vice provost for continuing studies and public service. In 1993, she moved on to become the first African American and first woman provost and vice president for academic affairs in VCU’s history. In 1995 and 1998, she was named acting president of VCU.

Harris also was vice chair of Gov. Mark Warner’s transition team — Put Virginia First. She was also involved with the establishment of John B. Cary Elementary School.

Harris received many awards and honors for her professional and community contributions, including VCU’s Presidential Medallion. She was cited for her leadership in establishing the first-ever, long-range strategic plan for VCU. The university also awarded her with the Presidential Award for Community Multicultural Enrichment and the Riese-Mellon Award. Harris received honorary degrees from the College of William & Mary, the University of Richmond and Virginia Union University, and was recognized as Educator of the Year by the Richmond Chapter of the National Coalition of Black Women. In honor of Harris’s longstanding leadership, service and contributions to VCU, a campus building, Grace E. Harris Hall, was dedicated in her honor in 2007. The Virginia General Assembly passed House Joint Resolution No. 515 in 2012, commending Grace Edmondson Harris. She received the John Jasper Trailblazer Award in 2014. Harris was also inducted into Omicron Delta Kappa, a national leadership honor society in 2014, joining other leadership luminaries, including Margaret Thatcher, Jimmy Carter, Shirley Chisholm, George H.W. Bush, Hillary Rodham Clinton and Tim Kaine. In 2015, Harris received an honorary doctorate from the College of William & Mary. In addition, Harris was inducted into Richmond Times-Dispatch Person of the Year Hall of Fame for lifetime achievements in the region. Harris is survived by her husband, James “Dick” Harris and their two children who continue her legacy — one as a social worker and the other through employment at VCU. Harris has one grandson, of whom she was most proud. He is an alum of William & Mary and Virginia Commonwealth University.

Following her retirement from her position as provost and vice president for academic affairs in 1999, the VCU Board of Visitors established the Grace E. Harris Leadership Institute to honor Harris’s exemplary service to the university. Harris stepped down from her post as distinguished professor at the institute in December 2015. Active in community organizations in the Richmond area, Harris served on numerous boards, task forces and commissions. She was a founding board member of the Richmond Women’s Bank and served on the advisory board of the Virginia Health Care Foundation and the Virginia Commission on Higher Education Appointments.
