Renneisen accepts Chattanooga position; Inauguration scheduled for Dr. Brandt

Dean leaves VCU campus

By Bob Selfe

Times Assistant Managing Editor

Dr. Charles M. Renneisen, dean of students, is leaving VCU. His decision came this week after a great deal of thought and debate. When asked why he was leaving, Dr. Renneisen stated, "There is no one basic reason." One of the main reasons, however, is a chance for "professional growth and opportunity."

Dr. Renneisen is receiving what he terms a "very attractive offer," and will begin next year as the dean of students at the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga.

"Placing more responsibility on the individual for his behavior" was termed by Dr. Renneisen as his major success. "When I came here, students were being kicked out for having beards and long hair." Now, he says, the school has greatly updated and improved its attitude toward the individual student.

Dr. Renneisen cites the student center, parking, and housing as the most important problems facing the campus today. He praised Brydon DeWitt, director of student activities, for his work in building up the student center, but stated that expanding the facilities of the center was a "priority need of the campus."

According to Dr. Renneisen, the campus has "saturated its parking area." With the University increasing at a fast pace, there is a definite need for increased campus parking facilities. "We need to move ahead with some type of Housing Plan, flexible, and desirable enough to provide competition for off-campus housing," he said.

Along with the building programs, Dr. Renneisen is especially pleased with the student aid programs at VCU. When he arrived in 1965, RPI's student aid fund was about $94,000. This year, VCU offers funds totaling in excess of $42,000.

Anderson Building to be art gallery

"It looks like at this juncture, we have exhibition space on the first and second floor of the Anderson Building," said Dr. Francis J. Brooke, vice president of academic affairs, in a meeting yesterday with art faculty and students.

"Certainly the first and second floors and possibly the third," Brooke said.

The decision was made yesterday when it became apparent that space existed elsewhere on campus for offices and classrooms, making it feasible to allocate the floors to the School of the Arts. To facilitate this rooms used by the Art School in the Mosque and Hibbs Building will be taken over for other uses.

"It may be very well in October before this (possession of the Anderson Building by the Art School) takes place as the new library has to be ready before it can receive books," Brooke went on to say. "But you can count on the Anderson Building by the fall for the first and second floors."

His Reason For Leaving Was Given As 'Professional Growth'

Seeing areas such as the counseling center, student center, and student government greatly expand and improve over the years has been a "source of pride" for him.

A graduate of Indiana University, Dr. Renneisen worked as a high school teacher while completing his master's degree during summer vacations. After receiving his M.S. in education in 1959, he was offered a job at Michigan State University as head resident and advisor for a dormitory complex. It was there that he received his Ed.D.

In 1963, Dr. Renneisen took over as dean of men at St. Louis University. After two years, he came to RPI as the school's dean of students. In this capacity, he immediately became involved in everything from the budget and housing to the counseling center. He acts as advisor for such groups as the SGA executive committee, the ring committee, and a group in which he takes special pride, the chess club.

'Working With People'

"Working with people" is the most rewarding part of his work, he concluded. "I have day to day contact with 101 different kinds of people and 101 different kinds of problems which makes life exciting."

Fall semester classes, registration scheduled

Fall semester classes will begin at 8 a.m., Monday, September 14. Add/drop and late registration for day students will be held September 14-16. Add/drop and late registration for evening students will be held September 14-19.

Orientation for new students will begin Tuesday, September 8 and will continue through September 12. New students will register at this time.

Registration

Students who did not pre-register but plan to return for the fall semester must contact Registrar Merle V. Slater in Room 29 of the Administration Building and inform him of their intent to return.

This information will aid the University in deciding how many new students it will have room for. Students who do not report to the registrar by May 30 may not be readmitted in the fall.

Ceremony will conclude week of seminars, workshops

By Mariane Matera

Times Assistant Managing Editor

The formal inauguration November 10 of Dr. Warren W. Brandt as president of VCU will climax a "series of events designed to interpret to the community what the University is now doing and help set forth its mission in years ahead," said Dr. H.I. Willett, consultant on Urban Affairs.

The theme of the planned workshops, seminars, discussion group and department exhibits, according to Dr. Willett, will center around the concept of an 'urban' university, "the uniqueness of it and how it differs from other universities."

Dr. Willett is directing the planning of activities, which will run November 6 through 10, as chairman of the Steering Committee for the inauguration.

"All the plans haven't jelled yet," Dr. Willett said, "I've been meeting with the school deans this week. What we want to emphasize though, is that we expect to have a deep and broad involvement of students, faculty and alumni."

William O. Edwards, director of University Relations and member of the Steering Committee, said events of inaugural week will be used to "help the two units of VCU get to know the strengths of each other, get to know ourselves and the community better."

He added, "The program is to be built around the interpretation of the University's mission, how we serve the Commonwealth, the community, the students, the middle-aged, the question of urban commitment."

The program will be financed by "non-tax funds," according to Dr. Willett. The exact source has not yet been determined.

Both Dr. Willett and Edwards emphasized that this was to be "morthan an ordinary inaugural." Dr. Willett explained that the events would be "an interpretation of what's already happening in the urban university. We want to talk about what we're doing and what we should be that we're not. We want to reveal to the community the direction of the University. We want to involve everyone in a discussion of many vital problems."

"There has been no decision on whether classes will be cancelled during this week," Dr. Willett said. "But it is a period when classes will not be dismissed to give a holiday. The students will be involved in a more intense and different sort of education in seminars, listening to speakers, or participating in workshops."

The idea of the program was agreed upon by the Board of Visitors, according to Edwards, and Dr. Willett was appointed chairman of the planning committee by Dr. Brandt.

Representing the Board of Visitors on the committee is Robert A. Wilson, vice rector of the board.

Representing the Administration along with Edwards and Dr. Willett, are Dr. Walter R. Coppedge, assistant vice president for Academic Affairs; Dr. Kenneth Roach, director of graduate students in the School of Business; Ralph M. Ware, Jr., director of development; Dr. Warren Weaver, dean of the School of Pharmacy; and Vincent Wright, assistant to the dean of students.

Representing the faculty are Dr. Charles M. Carvati, professor of medicine, and Dr. H. St. George Tucker, a physician and faculty member at MCV.

Representing the alumni are James Anderson; James C. Lester, a former president of the Alumni Association; Mrs. Anne Mahoney; and Dr. James T. Tucker, current president of the Alumni Association.

Representing the student body are James W. Thweatt Jr. from East campus and Butch Jenkins from West campus.

Graduation exercises, programs announced

Dr. Roy E. McCarnaghan, director of the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia, will speak at the Academic Division's graduation ceremonies on Sunday, June 7.

Two exercises are planned because of the large number of graduates.

Students in the schools of Arts and Sciences, Business, Community Services and Occupational Therapy will be graduated at 10 a.m. in the Mosque auditorium. Members of the schools of the Arts, Education, Engineering Technology, and Social Work will be graduated at 2 p.m. in the Mosque.

No rehearsal is scheduled. Graduates will assemble in the Mosque ballroom before each exercise to receive instructions and don caps and gowns.

Diplomas for all students including those receiving the Master's degree will be distributed alphabetically by name in the ballroom following each commencement program.

'Southern Comfort' picnic rescheduled for Sunday

"Southern Comfort", cancelled last Sunday due to rain, has been rescheduled for this Sunday, beginning at 12 noon.

The event sponsored by the Interfraternal Council and originally culmination of May Jubilee Week activities, will be held on a farm located in the Ashland vicinity. Those attending may take I-95 north to the Ashland exit and then follow signs to the farm. Featured in the afternoon affair will be four bands, including Stacey Henry and Majestic, Hammer, Family Dog and Zions Crossroads. Free beer will also be distributed.

Rain-Check Tickets Honored

Ticket prices remain at $3 per couple and $2 single for VCU students. Those students who purchased tickets last week and unable to attend this Sunday may have their money refunded by contacting the IFC member from whom they purchased their tickets.

Resignations

We were saddened this week to learn of the resignations of three student personnel deans. Mrs. Margaret J. Perritt, assistant dean of women, and Roland Wheeler, director of housing, will be greatly missed. Their diligence to their jobs and deference to students with whom they came in contact earned them respect and admiration which will be hard to duplicate for their successors.

But the decision reached by Dr. Charles M. Renneisen, dean of students, to leave his post here to fill a similar position in another state represents a tremendous loss to the university. Not since the resignation two years ago of Dr. Roland H. Nelson as president has VCU suffered such a personal setback.

Dr. Renneisen has given many justifiable reasons for his departure, and we are sure they are valid and reasonable for a man of his stature and obvious ability. We feel, however, that behind this particular resignation is the same underlying reason that caused Dr. Nelson's resignation. Both men were overlooked for administrative positions for which they were both eminently qualified.

But why bother? Others like Dr. Renneisen, but not as well liked by all members of the university community, will hand in their resignations to seek similar or better positions elsewhere. The exodus of quality will continue as long as qualified personnel are overlooked and higher openings are filled by out-of-state names without faces.

From Nixon

(A letter to 1970 graduates)

You graduate at a time when established institutions and ideas are being questioned as they have never been questioned before in our history. Much of this questioning is being done by the members of your generation, and it is your generation which ultimately will have to provide most of the answers to those questions.

I hope that as you look for those answers, you will remember the obligation of every educated man and woman to draw careful distinctions between those ideas which must be readjusted and those which should be preserved. The fact that many accepted ways of thinking seem artificial and unjust does not warrant the rejection of all established standards. Nor should our proper respect for the past and our legitimate desire for stability lead us to defend thoughtlessly that which is outmoded and obsolete.

Your challenge will be that of reconciling continuity and change, of giving new applications and fresh expressions to our traditional values—especially our concern for the dignity and integrity of every individual. By meeting that challenge you can make this time of rapid change a time of substantial growth and fulfillment—for yourselves, for your community and for your nation.

As I extend to you my personal congratulations and best wishes, I look to the future with greater confidence because I know of the exceptional qualifications you bring to the exceptional demands of our time.

Editorial criticized

Editor:

As a working journalist and a graduate of Richmond Professional Institute it upsets me to see such a high-quality college newspaper sink to the depths of trial by press.

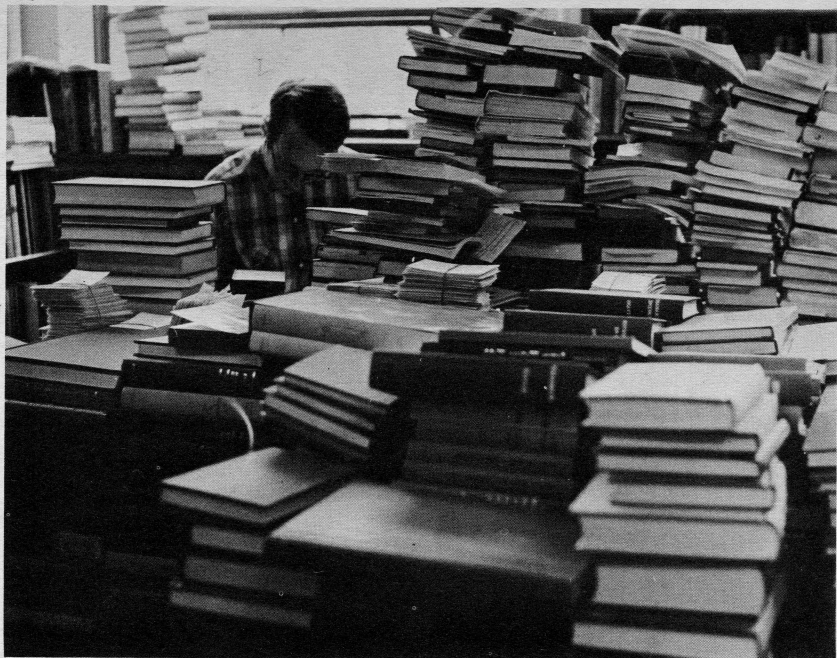

In the "More Slain" editorial you speak of the court system and ask why "trials" are taking place in the streets. It is inconceivable to me that you could ask this question after trying and "convicting" the state police and national guardsmen of Murder only one paragraph earlier.

Whether those men are guilty or innocent is yet to be proven. And journalism has no room for trials, only for reporting the facts.

Also, as a former editorial writer for a New York paper I can only say that the standards of editorial writing also call for facts when condemning one, not just wild charges. When these men are convicted call them what the law proves them to be. Until then, be careful who you call a murderer, for your own sake and the sake of good journalism, not to speak of libel.

The Observer

'a special kind of man'

(The Observer is an opinionated column by a staff writer. The column is not intended to reflect the views of the editors or other staff members.)

By Bob Selfe

"Both a personal and a professional loss"

Richard E. MacDougall

"A distinct loss. He will be missed by a great many of us."

Warren W. Brandt

"Quite a loss to the University"

Brydon DeWitt

"Deeply saddened"

Vincent Wright

"It's going to take a Hell of a man to fill his shoes."

Randy Eley

Not dead—just departing. The above quotes were reactions to the resignation of Dr. Charles M. Renneisen, dean of students.

Dr. Renneisen is a special kind of man. It's not easy, especially in these days of college unrest, to find a man who is respected and liked by both the administration and the students. Randy Eley praised Dr. Renneisen, saying, "anyone, I don't care who they are, can go to him."

According to Jim Elam, the school is "losing an excellent individual. He certainly helped student government as much as anyone and probably more than most." Another student, Shayne Racker, termed the resignation "terrible." Shayne spoke of Dr. Renneisen as a man who "knew the school, the students, and what we needed."

Larry Murphy said, "The loss to the University is not one which will easily be recovered."

Students, however, are not the only ones to mourn Dr. Renneisen's resignation. Jane Bell Gladding, the dean of women, spoke of him as a man who did a "great deal to build up student personnel here...to work with students. I have learned a lot from him over the years here." She also spoke of Dr. Renneisen as a man with "boundless energy."

Vincent Wright, assistant dean of students, said, "I'm very sorry he's leaving. We worked very well together."

According to Brydon DeWitt, director of student activities, "Rocky's been a good friend as well as a boss. He has always been in there pitching for the students."

Richard MacDougall, dean of men, spoke of Dr. Renneisen as a man of "tremendous energy, dedication and persistence."

It seems almost inconceivable that a man of Dr. Renneisen's talents and capabilities could have been overlooked when the Student Personnel Office was reorganized. Yet this is precisely what happened. A man who for five years has devoted his time and energy to making VCU a better place was passed up and an outsider picked to become the Vice President of Student Affairs. Dr. Richard Wilson was chosen to head the Student Personnel Office, and we can only hope he proves himself worthy of the position.

Some students are now circulating petitions around campus protesting Dr. Renneisen's resignation. It's too late now. The resignation is final.

Dr. Renneisen has left much to the University. If anyone really cares, there is one way you can help. Dr. Renneisen wanted more student activity on campus. Become involved! His first priority was the student center. Support it! Help it grow!

A man whose only real complaint was "There are just not enough hours in the day," Dr. Renneisen did not have time to accomplish everything he wanted to. The greatest gift you can give him is the knowledge that this one final wish will be granted.

Shiro and City Council

(The Observer is an opinionated column by a staff writer. The column is not intended to reflect the views of the editors or other staff members.)

By Gary Thompson

Bob Shiro, candidate for Richmond City Council (elections will be held on June 9), is advocating a council of advisers from the university community if he is elected.

The exact duties of this council are somewhat unclear, but the duties of the council seem irrelevant. The main point to contemplate is that one of the candidates for City Council is interested enough in young people to involve them in governmental decision-making. I might add that Shiro is the only candidate who has advocated the involvement of young people in political decision-making.

The council will be composed of students from the colleges and universities in the Richmond area. This is plausible since he is running for Richmond City Councilman. But, neglecting the winsome wit, we must delve deeper into the ideas behind Shiro's plan.

The nationwide strikes and protests two weeks ago proved that young people are concerned about the involvement of American troops in Cambodia. Young people ideas have been ignored too long by those who are presently running the government. They have been ignored particularly on the national level.

But, might I ask, why do these students never protest against anything but the war issue? Why do they never protest against poverty, a grave issue today? Yes, I mean a "grave issue" because too many people in our own country are, whether we are willing to admit it or not, living at a minimal subsistence level.

Why do the students at VCU not protest against the poor lighting facilities in some of the more obscure places on campus? This poor lighting might well have been part of the reason why so many co-eds were attacked earlier this year.

There are so many things that students could protest against besides the war...if only they were interested. I'm not saying students should not protest the war. I'm saying that those who protest the war should be interested in improving other conditions, also.

These are only a few of the things Shiro has pointed out to me as to why he wants young people to express their ideas on all issues, not just one. He wants the "lonely voice of youth" to have its long-awaited say-so.

I wholeheartedly support Shiro's plan for a council from the university community. As Shiro himself said, "We need young, vibrant ideas in our government."

Figart builds grid team

The president of the off-and-running VCU Football Club is a 31-year-old ex-marine who got tired of the printing trade and decided to become a coach.

William "Bill" Figart was a sports participant at Manchester High School in Richmond before he entered the Marine Corps.

After he finished his military obligation, Figart married and became a printer. After working several years at that profession, however, Figart said he felt the need to return to his true love—sports.

He did this by enrolling at VCU two years ago as a physical education major and getting a part-time job as coach of little league baseball and football teams playing in city parks.

Figart, then, was a natural choice to organize a football club here, and when several people approached him about starting such a group, he agreed.

He started putting his plans into action last fall, and last week the club, with 39 members, won its first scrimmage from the Richmond Raiders.

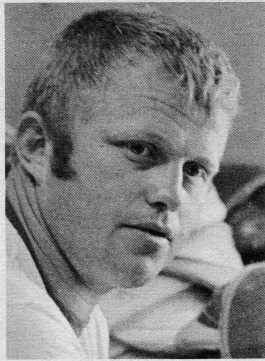

Realization of the Football Club came last December.

"I drew up a constitution, called a meeting through the Times, and talked to people," the red-haired, husky athlete said.

"We got 16 people interested in coming to the meeting...The SGA accepted our constitution. Two weeks later I received a letter from Fordham University, New York City, telling us they had a National Club Football convention meeting scheduled in January."

Three club members attended the Fordham convention, and VCU lined up its first season game, against the Football Club of Federal City College in Washington, D.C. on October 31.

Figart said the club hopes to have 40 players next season. The team's head coach is Avery Sumner, a former member of the Richmond Roadrunners who played tackle at Florida State.

Bill Figart

He Hopes Club Leads to Varsity

now a teacher at J.R. Tucker High School in Henrico County.

Figart, a former high school footballer and the father of four children said the club is now a substitute for a VCU varsity football team.

"Starting a varsity program is not feasible at the moment," he said. He indicated that the Administration and Board of Visitors have not voiced approval for such a program.

"It costs too much money," Figart said. "We don't have the money to spend, and we don't have a practice field."

"I think we can produce football equivalent to varsity football without spending the money necessary to be spent in varsity football. I think we will surprise a lot of people next year."

The club football team acquired its playing equipment from area high schools.

"We got all the boys to go back to their high school coaches and ask for donations," Figart explained. "We contacted every high school in the Richmond area and asked for donations."

We had very good results. One school gave us 35 helmets."

The club has been allotted an appropriation of $6,417.25 plus traveling expenses next year from the SGA.

Right now the club's one-room office is located at the rear of 912 Park ave. The club hopes to acquire office space in the gymnasium extension when it is completed. The VCU club is a member of the National Club Football Association.

Players come from all majors. They do not receive scholarships or aid.

Season tickets will be sold next year at $1 per home game. Gate prices will be $1.50 for students and $2 for non-students.

A meeting for anyone interested in trying out for the team will be held at 5 p.m. Sunday, May 24, in Hibbs 403. Practice will begin September 1. All equipment is supplied to players except football shoes, Figart said. Other club officers are Bobby Blackburn, Ed3 Stafford vice president; Howard Attil Adv2 Falls Church, secretary; Bob Sprouse, Bus3 Waynesboro treasurer; Janet Beasley, scrapbook chairman.

VCU cheerleaders will cheer at next year's games, Figart said. The club president said he is working to have the date of Homecoming set to coincide with a football game.

"We'd like to have fraternities and sororities build floats for competition," he said. "We would have half-time ceremonies at all home games."

A visitor's dilemma

By Mariane Matera,
(This column will be a regular feature next year.)

I was approached on campus the other day by a young man strongly resembling the Frito Bandito, and I thought immediately he was going to ask me to sign a petition (since that seems to be the vogue among campus Frito Banditos lately.)

Before I could say, "As a member of the conspiring press, I've vowed to remain objective," Frito said, "Where's it at, man?"

"The action?" I replied, "No," he said, "VCU."

"This is it," I said. He looked down Franklin street perturbed. "Like where, man? All I see is a lot of old houses."

"This is it," I repeated. After a few moments he accepted the idea that he had arrived at what was apparently his destination and told me he was here on business.

"What kind of business?" I asked. "I'm an outside agitator from Outside Agitators, Inc. We got a call that this campus is desperately in need. Like, why haven't you closed down yet?" "Apathy," I told him. He was shocked. "What kind of people are you? Don't you care about Kent State, Cambodia, marijuana?"

"No, man," I told him, "Concert and Dance can't even get people to do the bop. We do have a radical group, though, Grove Avenue Republic."

"Yeah?" Frito said, interested. "What do they do?"

"Manufacture clothes," I said.

"Never mind!" he shouted. "I'm going to get things going. Where's the President's office?"

"Nobody's figured that out yet," I said.

"Well, where's the President?" "Nobody's figured that out, either." "Well, what's the best way to get attention here?" I pointed down Shafer street. "See that platform? Get up on that. That gets a lot of attention." "Yeah?" Frito said. "What is it?" "The May Jubilee Dunking Booth." Things could be worse.

Internships accepted by graduates

More than one-third of the 1970 graduating class in the School of Medicine will take internship training at Virginia hospitals during the coming year, according to the results of the National Internship Matching Plan.

Of the 101 medical school seniors, 31 will intern in Virginia, with 24 accepted to the program at VCU's hospitals and seven going either Roanoke Memorial Hospital or Norfolk General Hospital. VCU also will receive 51 additional interns from other medical schools in the United States.

The Intern Matching Plan, started in 1955 by the Association of American Medical Colleges, matches senior medical students with available internships at approved hospitals and teaching center.

Of VCU's senior medical students, 61 students received appointments to first choice hospitals. Fifteen students were appointed to hospitals of their second choice and 10 students to hospitals of their third choice.

Fashion students enter contests

Four VCU Fashion Art students have entered finals of two illustration contests in New York.

Charlie Brown Art3 and Charlie Boone Art3 Radford have placed entries in the contest sponsored by the Society of Illustrators. Both entries are editorial illustrations the purpose of which is to inspire other illustrators to enter.

Janis Clarke Art3 Richmond and Courtney Griffith Art2 Fall Church entered the finals of a drawing contest sponsored by the American Artist Magazine. Only 60 of the 350 entries were accepted into the finals of this contest.

The entries of both nationwide contest will be on display in New York City during the month of June. Final judging for monetary awards will be made later.

Oliver re-elected

Bill Oliver retained the office of president of the Interfraternal Council following elections held during that group's meeting Tuesday night.

Oliver, a member of Phi Delta Omega, defeated Lou Weissman of Epsilon Pi Sigma and Wayne Melton of the German Club, in voting that took approximately one hour to conclude following two tie-votes and a deciding vote from the executive board of the organization. Oliver, current president of the IFC, abstained from voting in the executive board balloting.

Nominations, held during an open meeting of the IFC May 5, were then reopened for the office of vice-president with Melton added to the list as a candidate. Melton polled a majority vote to retain the office of vice president.

Nancy Doil of Chi Delta Sigma was elected secretary while Frank Mitchell of Sigma Mu Sigma was designated treasurer.

Yancey chosen

Earl Yancey has been elected president of Phi Beta Lambda business fraternity. He is a sophomore accounting major from Viewtown.

Assisting Yancey will be vice president Carolyn Whitlock, Bus2; treasurer Ben Jackson, Acc3; secretary, Donna Johnson, Bus1; and assistant secretary Bonnie Chancey, Bus1.

Also elected were historian Mary Engelbretson, Bus1 publicity director Norman Robinson, Bus2; sergeant-at-arms John Tyler, Acc3; and Parliamentarian John Reed, Acc3.

Ed Maynes, Bus3 and Ray Oakley, Bus3, will serve as business managers for the club.

Director named

Mrs. Muriel D. Felder has been named director of the Department of Social Work at the Health Sciences

Division. She is acting director of the department since January 16.

She was a medical social worker at MCV from 1961 to 1964 and chief medical social worker since 1967. As director, she will head a professional staff of 13 social workers to serve patients at MCV.
