RESUME OF H. R. 10 (THE KEOGH BILL)
87TH CONGRESS

The newest version of the Keogh Bill—officially titled the "Self-Employed Individuals Retirement Act"—embraces a somewhat different approach than in prior Congresses. Instead of allowing the self-employed a limited tax deduction for amounts voluntarily set aside for their retirement either in restricted trusts or insurance or annuity policies, the present H. R. 10 adopts the general form of the Senate Finance Committee Bill of the 86th Congress which would have brought self-employed persons under existing legislation relating to non-discriminatory tax-favored private retirement plans by allowing them to be treated as their own employers and employees.

The new Keogh Bill, however, makes a number of important changes over the Senate draft: (a) It eliminates all proposed restrictions on corporate pension plans covering so-called "owner-employees"; (b) it does not require a self-employed person to include his employees under the plan unless they are more than three in number (excluding part-time or seasonal employees); (c) it modifies the severe limitations of the Senate bill on the amount of contributions which can be made on behalf of owner-employees (i.e., sole proprietors and partners having more than a 10 per cent interest in the business); and (d) it bases the self-employed individual's contribution on the amount of his "self-employment earnings" rather than on his "earned income" from the business.

Other features of the pending Keogh Bill include the following:

1. Where there are more than three employees and the plan covers any "owner-employee", the employee's rights must be nonforfeitable for the plan to qualify.

2. There is no "stepped up" contribution for persons over age 50 and no lifetime limit on contributions.

3. Generally, contributions on behalf of the "owner-employees" may not exceed $2,500 or 10% of self-employment earnings, whichever is less. However, if there are more than three employees and the plan covers "owner employees" as well as others, the basic contribution may be exceeded, so long as the same ratio of contributions to compensation applies to all persons under the plan on a non-discriminatory basis.
4. Partners having no more than a 10 per cent interest in the business are in general affected by the same rules as true employees.

5. The plan cannot have a waiting period for employee coverage of more than three years (instead of five years as under qualified pension plans generally).

6. No benefits can be paid to an owner-employee under the plan before he reaches the age of 59½ years, except in case of disability, and must commence not later than age 70½.

7. Retirement benefits payable to a self-employed will be taxed as ordinary income as and when received, except that (a) in lieu of capital gain treatment lump sum payments after age 59½ (and after at least five years coverage) or on death or disability shall not be subject to tax greater than five times the increase in tax resulting from the inclusion in gross income of one-fifth of the distribution and (b) distributions of $2,500 or more prior to age 59½ shall be taxed at not less than 110 per cent of the liability which would have resulted had the distribution been spread over the taxable year and the four prior years.

8. Retirement funds can be invested with a bank as trustee or used to purchase retirement annuities from an insurance company. Alternatively, the bill permits the plan to provide for custodial accounts to be set up with a bank if the investment of the contributions and earnings is made solely in regulated investment company stock and also allows the employer to purchase and distribute to his employees a special form of non-transferable U.S. bond redeemable after age 59½ or disability and providing for the payment of interest only upon redemption. Investment can also be made in face-amount certificates.

Another noteworthy event was the active participation of our members and auxiliary during the Dental Health Week program. Every evening at 5:30 a group of contestants performed or displayed dental health posters for semi-final selection by the judges and on Friday, February 10, the final selection of a King and Queen was made. The winners were crowned and each received a new bicycle. Runners up also received prizes.

Paralleling the school programs was the production of a puppet show by members of the ladies auxiliary in which two TV presentations were made and several performances were made at schools within the city. This program will continue to be shown throughout the remainder of the school year.

The Richmond Dental Society has for its February program a limited attendance clinic at the Medical College of Virginia. Dr. David
P. Dobson of the University of North Carolina will speak on "Impressions for the Complete Denture" and "The Role of Occlusion in Dentures," at the morning session and "The Clasp Partial Denture," in the afternoon session. The Richmond Dental Society is looking forward to an eventful new year with our new president and extends a cordial welcome to members of other components to visit with us during any of our meetings which occur on the third Thursday of every month.
