CONTRIBUTORS TO THIS ISSUE

Minnie T. Bailey is a member of the NAIES Executive Council and chairs the Department of History and Philosophy at Grambling State University.

Sara Bentley
spent several years with the Institute of Minority Studies at the University of Wisconsin--LaCrosse assisting with the Annual Conference on Ethnic and Minority Studies.

George E. Carter is on the Executive Council of NAIES and is the former editor of Explorations in Ethnic Studies.

Helen G. Chapin
teaches at Hawaii Pacific College.

Cecilia E. Dawkins
is acting head of the Department of Public Health Nursing in the College of Nursing, University of Illinois at the Medical Center, Chicago.

Alice A. Deck
teaches in the English Department at Grinnell College, Grinnell, Iowa.

LaVerne González
edited Multi-Ethnicity in American Publishing for several years and now teaches at California State University, San Jose.

Cliff I. Hooper, Sr. works with the Mann-Minor/Madrona Housing Rehabilitation Program in Seattle, Washington.

Gladys David Howell
teaches at East Carolina University in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology.

W. Thomas Jamison
teaches at Appalachian State University and chairs
the Department of Secondary Education.

Judith Lundin
is a poet and artist from Hazelwood, Missouri, and has published in both Canada and the United States.

Shirla McClain
is a member of the Executive Council of NAIES.
She teaches in the Department of Elementary Education, Kent State University.
Neil Nakadate
is in the Department of English at Iowa State University where he teaches American and ethnic literature.

Karl J. Reinhardt is in the Department of Spanish and Other Languages at the University of Houston, Central Campus.

Joe E. Rodríguez teaches in the Department of Mexican American Studies at San Diego State University.

Ramon Salcido is in the School of Social Work, University of Southern California.