

Dean Offers History Of RPI

Dick Wiltshire Resigns As Basketball Coach

Dick Wiltshire has resigned as basketball coach of the Richmond Professional Institute, Mr. H. H. Sisson, business manager of the school and member of the Faculty Athletic Committee, said recently.

Sisson said that Wiltshire resigned because his business interfered with his coaching duties. Wiltshire is employed by a Richmond insurance company.

An effort is being made by the school to secure a new coach. A member of the Richmond Barons, a professional basketball team in the city, has talked with Dean Hibbs about the vacated position. However, no coach has been appointed.

Mr. I. J. Krepick, director of the business department and chairman of the Faculty Athletic Committee, said Tuesday that a basketball team at RPI must have a coach that will do more than just coach. He must work with the student athletic association and act as manager of the team.

Wiltshire made the mythical all-state basketball team while playing for the University of Virginia. Last year he was one of the starting five for the Barons basketball team. Wiltshire coached the first men's basketball team of RPI last season.

RPI Will Broadcast

RPI will have its own radio show in November.

The program, announced by Roland B. Smith, associate professor in journalism, will be a weekly half-hour—7-7:30 p.m.—broadcast every Wednesday over WMBG's FM station, WCOD.

The programs will be produced by the RPI publicity unit composed of Mr. Smith, chairman, with Mary Scarlett and Roland Friedman, of the journalism department.

The first broadcast will feature a play, presented by students of the college's radio production class, under the direction of Mary Virginia Rigg, instructor in speech and dramatic art.

Subsequent programs will include musical programs to be directed by Robert L. Fields, assistant professor in music. Radio forums similar to those of last year will also be included.

The programs will include music, school news, and the weekly feature. "Opportunities will be offered to all interested students to take part in the programs," Mr. Smith announced.

"I hope those who wish to take part in panel discussions or would like to try out as announcers, will inform me of their interest as soon as possible."

He added that he felt this was a "wonderful opportunity" for students who are interested in writing radio plays or writing scripts. "It's a school program, and I hope that everyone in the school will take part in it at some time throughout the year."

Caps, Gowns Are Delayed

Senior caps and gowns to be worn at formal convocations will not arrive until second semester, Dean Henry H. Hibbs announced this week. Because of the delay in arrival, the caps and gowns will be rented by seniors at reduced fees.

Faculty members will order their gowns soon.

The cost of gowns has greatly increased in the past few years, Dr. Hibbs asserted. However, a sum of approximately $28 remaining from last year's senior class activities fund will be applied to the overall rental price of gowns.

A balance of about $75 will still be needed and will be collected from the seniors.

Literary Club To Meet Wed.

The first meeting of the Literary Club will be held Wednesday night at 7:30 in the Rear Library.

Mr. John C. Cross, faculty advisor for the club, will be the guest speaker. "Everyone interested in invited to come," Virginia Lewis, president, said.

N. Y. Show To Be Acted By T.A.'s

"Dear Ruth" will be the first major production by the Drama department this year. The Norman Krasna play will be presented Oct. 30 and 31 at the Woman's Club, 211 E. Franklin Street.

Jean Ray, a freshman, will have the title role. The rest of the cast includes: Sally Issacson, as the mother; Charles (Bo) Cagle, as Harry Wilkins; Joan Wallerstein, as Miriam; Anne Hudson, as maid; Earl Harford, as Lieutenant William C. Wright; Morris Law, as Harold Klobbermeyer; and Betty Jane Stant, as Martha Wright; (Franklin Davis plays double role as Albert Kummer and Sergeant Chuck Vincent.)

Mr. Raymond Hodges, professor of drama will direct the production. Mr. William Lockey will be the technical director and Miss Mary Virginia Rigg has charge of costumes.

Tickets are sold in the main hall of the Administration building daily for one week before every major production. Students are admitted at half-price.

New IRCourse To Be Offered Make-Up Test To Be Given Every Friday

An evening class in International Relations started at Richmond Professional Institute Thursday, October 18, 1947.

This course will be held every Thursday from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. in Ad. 29. It was opened for the many advanced students who have their schedules made up entirely of larger classes. However, any student who is interested, ambitious, and has $15.00 entrance fee, may enroll.

"This class," announced Dean Henry H. Hibbs, "is an excellent course." It is being offered by the University of Virginia and will be taught by Dr. Micaud, from the Woodrow Wilson School of Foreign Affairs.

Those interested in taking the course are requested to see Dean Hibbs.

Bids For IRC Distributed

Thirty-five students were suggested as new members of the International Relations Club at a meeting the past Thursday.

William Jordan, junior, was elected secretary of the IRC.

Bids were received by the following this week:

Annie Anderson, Norman Washer, Norman Sissisky, Elizabeth Ryan, Margaret Cunningham, Elizabeth Luchak, Joseph Brugh, Rubye Kerkman, Theresa Pintado, and Barbara Goodman.

Convocation Brings Out Many Faculty And Students

The student body of the Richmond Professional Institute was well represented to celebrate its thirtieth anniversary, at its first formal convocation of the year 1947-48. It was held Wednesday morning, Oct. 22, at 10:45, in the Grove Avenue Baptist church.

The convocation service was opened by the boys' choir singing "Da Nobis Pacem."

Annual Orders Being Taken

"For that new look buy the '48 yearbook," said Elaine Wise, editor of the Wigwam and R.P.I. annual. Orders are now being taken for the "Wigwam," RPI annual, said Elaine Wise, editor. She warned that orders will be accepted after Nov. 10.

Dr. Margaret Johnson pointed out yesterday that subscriptions for the "Wigwam" which are now being taken will cost $4.00 this year as compared to last year's price of $7.00. The remainder of the cost will be made up from the Activity Fee and that is why a larger and better annual can be sold at a lower price, she said.

Bill Coburn, business manager in charge of subscriptions and his committee will be seeing all students shortly about subscribing.

The advertising staff met on Oct. 20, and Margaret Walters advertising manager assigned specific advertisements to be solicited by the staff members.

Foster studios, at 404 East Grace street, will take individual pictures of all students. The cost of the picture is $1.50, and payment is to be made when the photographs are taken.

Seniors were scheduled to be photographed earlier this week. Miss Wise urged all who could not keep their appointments to see Mary Calligari, at 827 West Franklin street, as soon as possible.

Juniors' pictures will be made each afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock Oct. 27 to 31.

Sophomores will go to the studio during Nov. 3 to 7 inclusive, at the same hours. Freshman pictures will be taken during Nov. 10 to 14. Continued on Page 4

VPI Extension Here Dates From 1930--3 Other Divisions

The Virginia Polytechnic Institute extension school here is not as young as most people think. Actually, the school has been in operation for almost 17 years.

The plan to have an extension school in Richmond, along with those in Norfolk, Lynchburg, and Roanoke, was realized in 1930.

The Richmond extension of V.P.I. opened in the fall of 1930 in co-operation with the Virginia Mechanics Institute, which is situated at 10th and Marshall streets. In the beginning, most of the classes were at night simply because the Mechanics Institute was a night school. As the enrollment increased, more classes were offered in the daytime and in a few years the entire program was offered on a daytime basis.

The facilities of the Mechanics Institute were still used, even though there were no combined classes. Later the extension worked in co-operation with the Medical College of Virginia, teaching physics and mathematics to the pharmacy students. In return, M.C.V. taught chemistry to the V.P.I. students.

Professor H. S. Grenoble, who prior to 1930 was teaching at the University of Wisconsin, was chosen as head of the extension. He remained in this capacity until his death in 1942. C.A.B. Foster took over Prof. Grenoble's job and has remained as head of the V.P.I. extension since. Until 1944, when the war caused the school to stop operations, it continued at the original site. When the school reopened in 1946, it was decided to work in co-operation with the Richmond Professional Institute.

At the present time the school is operating at its top enrollment of 164 students, mostly veterans. All student activities, social and sports, are combined with those of R.P.I. The Student Government Association representative from V.P.I. is S. R. Warriner, of Richmond, a sophomore.

This year, the extension is operating on a semester basis rather than last year's quarter system. This means that V.P.I. and R.P.I. will have their exams at the same time. At present, the school offers only freshman and sophomore work. According to Mr. Foster, there are no immediate plans for offering a complete four year course here. The reason for this is the lack of special equipment which would be necessary for the last two year's work in the many branches of engineering.

Dean Hibbs gave a brief summary of the history of RPI. The school has moved three times since its beginning in 1917. In 1925, the College of William and Mary took complete responsibility for the school and established it in its present location.

Many of the first faculty members who are still here, and have watched the development of RPI since its beginning are: Mr. J. T. Walker, Mrs. Virginia A. Chalkley, Miss Theresa Pollak, and Mrs. Charles Weaver. Mr. Weaver has a son who attends RPI now.

At first, only subjects connected with social work, public health, and recreation were taught. In 1926, however, the Art Department was established under the direction of Miss Pollak. Since then, many other departments have been introduced.

The school's first connection with VPI came when the late Dr. Grenoble became affiliated here with the Mathematics Department from 1934-'37. It was not until after the war, however, that it became an extension of RPI.

At one time there was a $100,000 debt against RPI said Dean Hibbs. Today, however, it stands financially clear.

Dean Hibbs soon hopes to have the houses at 813 and 819 West Franklin torn down, so that they, and the vacant lot between, may be used to construct a large modern building.

At the conclusion of Dean Hibbs' speech, Mr. William Payne, of the music department, played "Sonnetto 104"—by Franz Litz. Convocation ended with benediction by Dr. H. H. Davis.

Faculty List Is Concluded

Ed. Note: This is the conclusion of the new faculty list.

Mary Virginia Rigg, instructor in speech and dramatic art, received her A.B. degree from the College of William and Mary. She also attended Northwestern University, where she received her M.A., and West Virginia University. During the war she was a Hospital Recreation Worker with the American Red Cross. She had the position of professor of Speech and Dramatic Arts at Lander College, Greenwood, S.C.

G. D. Casey, assistant professor of handicrafts, is a veteran of three years in the Navy. He has been head of fine arts at Tripp Lake Camp, Maine, and teacher of crafts at Port Washington, L. I., N. Y., junior high school. He received his B.A. from Highlands University, Las Vegas, N. M., and his M.A. from Columbia University.

Mrs. Sylvia Childs, assistant professor of Social Work, has worked for the Travelers Aid Society and the Catholic Charities in New Orleans. She is a graduate of the Louisiana State University and received her MA from Tulane University.

D. G. Hartman, assistant professor of biology and bacteriology, received his B.S. and M.S. at Ohio State University. He was engaged in war work for four years as a chemist, chemical engineer, and research worker. He has had five years experience in secondary schools and has been assistant in the department of botany at Ohio State. Last year he was medical technician at University of Michigan. # Petrillo Ban Not To Alter Drama Plans

Music czar James C. Petrillo's recent ban on recordings will not greatly alter the R.P.I. drama department's plans to record some 215 voices. All the members of the fundamentals of speech and radio production classes are scheduled for a voice recording this week.

Mr. Raymond Hodges, drama department head; Miss Mary Virginia Rigg, and Mr. William Lockey, drama department instructors, have completed arrangements for making these records.

"The purpose of these recordings," said Miss Rigg, "is to enable the student to hear his own voice and in hearing it to discover the speech sounds that he is producing incorrectly. It is a practical aid to covering and correcting any speech both student and instructor in dis- defects, and in checking the stu- dent's voice for tone production voice, placement, enunciation and pronunciation.

"Recordings made now will show students their present speak- ing voices, both correct and incorrect elements of enunciation and tone be- ing there on plastic for checking purposes," continued Miss Rigg. Another recording will be made on the reverse side of the record at the end of the term in order to demon- strate improvement," Miss Rigg went on. With a warning note in her voice, she added, "and there'd better be some improvement."

The speech class will record a se- ries of sentences involving specific vowel and consonant sounds, and a paragraph of oral reading, especially designed to include all the speech sounds.

The radio production classes re- cording will consist of two announce- ments, the first a "straight," and the second, a "quickened tempo" an- nouncement.

This recording is a requirement for all students enrolled in any of the classes in speech and radio pro- duction. Records are available in the college book store for $.65 each. They are not for sale to other mem- bers of the student body.

The drama department has its own recording machine, which is to be used in these voice tests.

Taylor Speaks To SW Meeting

Miss Alice Taylor of the Social Security Administration was the guest speaker at the meeting of the local chapter of the American As- sociation of Social Workers on Mon- day night, Oct. 20. She spoke on the subject of registration and licens- ing of social workers.

Miss Aileen Shane, a member of the staff of the Richmond School of Social Work is chairman of the com- mittee on registration and licensing of the local chapter.

The Richmond School of Social Work has a total registration of 91 graduate students. Of these, 51 are full-time and 40 are part-time. The full-time students represent 11 states: California, Florida, Illinois, Mon- tana, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tex- as, Virginia, and West Virginia, also from Puerto Rico.

Miss Cordelia Cox was erroneously reported in the PROSCRIPT as being a former member of the staff of the Richmond School of Social Work. She is still a member of the staff of the school, but gives one- quarter of her time to in-service training for the Virginia State De- partment of Public Welfare.

Upperclass Picks Officers

Officers for the sophomore, junior and senior classes were announced at a recent student government meeting by Earl Wood, president. The freshmen will hold a meeting in the near future to elect their representatives.

Harriet Richards will serve as president of the senior class. Alice Andrews will be vice president; Suzanne Hutzler, secretary; Elaine Wise, treasurer; Joan Moyers, student government representative and Nancy Duggan, athletic association representative.

The junior class has Nancy Taylor as its president. No one has been elected vice president. Secretary is Jacqueline Gaines; treasurer Lola Mae Shiflet; student government representative, Cecile Northern; girls A. A. Martha Ganzert; and boys A. A. Marvin Culbreth.

Katherine Shane will occupy the office of president for the sopho- more class. Miss Shane served as president of the freshman class last year. She will be assisted by Nancy Simmons, vice president; Ann Stan- ley, secretary; Jack Birchhead, treas- urer; and Roderick McKensie as the boys A. A. representative. Student government and girls A. A. repre- sentatives have yet to be named.

The meeting of the freshman class will be announced, and it is request- ed that all attend.

8 New Books Available Now

Mr. C. E. Miller, of the book store, announced today that there are 8 new books in the book store. The following books are now avail- able: "Retail Merchandise," "Econ- omics," "Field Of Social Work," "Retail Advertising," "Sales Promo- tion," "Psycho Analytic," "You And Your Public," and "Retailing Prin- ciples and Practices."

Mr. Miller said, "I am doing my best to serve the students and facul- ty and hope to fulfill my efforts. I have spent as many hours in send- ing telegrams, making phone calls, writing letters, and talking people in- to sending me the needed text books as I actually spend in the store each day. Cooperation of students in time from the book store will be deeply appreciated."

"Amphitryon 38" Shown Here

Two scenes from "Amphitryon 38" by S. N. Behrman were sched- uled to be presented last night at the RPI studio theatre.

The play was directed by Imogene Cowan. Members of the cast were: Devaux Riddick as Jupiter; Donald Hermes as Mercury; and Joan Wal- lenstein as Alkmena.

Jupiter, master of the gods, so the story goes, falls in love with the mortal Alkmena, wife of Amphitry- on.

Jupiter and Mercury get together and formulate a plan wherein Jupiter can take the place of Alkmena's husband so that he can make love to her in "Mortal Style." And as it turns out he is able to accomplish this plan without her knowing who he is.

Event Calendar To Be in Office

A calendar with the dates listed for club affairs and other social functions will be posted in Mrs. Gordon's office. A date for these events may be set by seeing Joan Moyers, advisor for the calendar committee.

Hull Has Ad In Magazine

M. Milton Hull, assistant profes- sor of advertising art, has an illus- tration in the Oct. 17 issue of "Printer's Ink" on page 67.

Mr. Hull also had one of his drawings in a September issue. An- other will be printed in the Novem- ber issue of the same magazine.

Mr. Hull, who has been teaching at RPI for three years, is a gradu- ate of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts.

He believes that advertising art has greatly improved in the last five years and that "good art has proven and will prove beneficial to adver- tising."

RPI's RADIO SHOW

As reported elsewhere in this issue, RPI is to have its own half hour weekly radio program over the FM Band of Station WMBG. This is good news. Such a program can do much toward bringing the story of RPI and its activities to listeners in Virginia and beyond.

The FM Band of WMBG carries well into New England and Middle Western states, according to fan mail received by the station. RPI, through this new program, will be in the "big time" both in terms of area covered and in terms of the broadcast hour—7 to 7:30 P. M. Therefore all of us can be particularly happy over this news. Our sincere thanks to WMBG.

But in another sense, this program presents a challenge. It provides the challenge for all the students here to show the U. S. what we can do. On this program we can show that we can write acceptable radio plays, that we can act, that we can announce, that we can produce pleasant music. There is hardly an end to the chance thus afforded.

The Proscript extends its best wishes to those on the faculty who will coordinate the program activities and to those students who will take part. Let's hope that before the year is out many an RPI student will have made his or her contribution toward building goodwill for RPI among radio listeners.

This is an opportunity then not only for the school, but for all of us students as well. Let's make the most of it.

ORCHIDS TO SGA

The student government has started the semester by introducing several new measures at RPI.

For the first time, the work of the governing body will be directed by various committees. The purpose of this is to get more students active in school affairs. Plans for all school functions will pass through the Ways and Means committee.

An informal dance was held at the Mosque on Oct. 17. There was no admission fee. This dance provided an excellent opportunity for students and faculty to lay aside their books and "get acquainted" with each other. At the request of the students, there will be more dances of this kind.

Orchids to the student government for its accomplishments to date. Bear in mind that this organization is composed "of, by and for" the students. Without the cooperation of the student body, the student government could not exist.

Earl Wood, president of the Student Government Association, is in the front hall of the Ad building daily from 1:30-2:30. He will gratefully accept any suggestions for the betterment of student government.

M. S.

Letters to the Editor

Founder's Hall
October 21, 1947

Dear Editor,

We appreciate your interest in our dormitory life when in last week's editorial of the PROSCRIPT you brought to mind an important fact—that some of us often forget. We, the students, take an important responsibility when we leave home for college because we become members of a "group" and are responsible to that group for our actions.

When we read the article "Are We Mature?" we knew the writer must not be a dormitory student. Why? Because he would have known that his editorial blast wasn't the correct way to get action on a matter he felt of vital importance. I refer to the conduct of two girls of Founder's Hall.

Within a dormitory there is a feeling of loyalty that immediately runs to the defense of the name of the dormitory as a whole. We, at first, did not blame the girls' actions as much as we did the one who wrote the article. Among his errors was the fact that the dance sponsored by the Girls' Athletic Association was open to any member of the student body who wished to attend. Also, editor, some of our finest students, faculty members and Presidents of the United States have come from farms. We, too, disagree that "social ostracism" is the answer to this problem.

We suggest that instead, all complaints be brought to the attention of the person who can do something about the matter. This would save space in the PROSCRIPT for things of more importance. Such as an article written by the president of the student body which would inform us of the things that are being done to overcome the difficulties of our fast growing school. It is done in other college papers.

We assure you everything is being done to overcome such difficulties as you presented in your article. All we need now is a little help from you. How about it?

Very truly yours,
Mary V. Calizan,
House President of Founder's Hall.

Modesty Forbids

By ROLAND FRIEDMAN

Last week I asked for a little response regarding having a name band for one of our dances at the Mosque.

And that's what I received . . . a little response.

To the 14 of you who answered the call, I say thank you! You get to hold the hot arrangements. To the 1855 who didn't reply . . . your pencils have arrived in the bookstore.

Seriously though, Clyde Harrison tells me a few of the fellows are still toying with the plan, and hope to gain more support. Will we be hearing from you soon, Clyde?

* * *

This, I shouldn't believe. Someone solved the mystery of Nancy Duggan's vigorous racing around the halls.

Nancy is a physical education major. During the rainy season, she does all her homework 'here' in the halls of the Ad building.

Though students of RPI, we are at the same time, citizens of Richmond.

In just a few days, the Community Chest drive will end. If you haven't contributed, do so now. Whether it be 50¢, $1, or more, your contribution will aid in making Richmond a better city in which to live.

All Richmond holds the Red Feather high—Everybody benefits, everybody gives. You, too—Give!

The student government dance at the Mosque this past Friday night can be rated as a social success.

"I think everyone enjoyed the dance," said Byrd Bradshaw, Executive Council chairman.

Everyone I spoke to, seemed carpeased with the music of Kenneth Henderson.

Following an assignment, an instructor in English emphasized that a short story must have deity, royalty, romance. The shortest story turned in, read:

"Ye Gods," cried the princess, "you're messing my lipstick."

Earl Wood, student government president, informed me that the college has accepted the invitation to participate in WRVA's "Quiz of Two Cities" tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock.

The program, a battle of wits between persons of Richmond and Norfolk, will be broadcast from the WRVA Theatre.

* * *

There is good—and then there is bad entertainment. Let me tell you about a movie I saw recently, here in town. This movie was so bad, they gave you your money back, going in.

RPI will soon have its own weekly radio show. Arrangements are in the making for a half-hour broadcast over WOOD, Richmond's new FM station.

Roland B. Smith, associate professor of journalism, is in search of talent to participate in the broadcasts.

If you are interested, drop down to room M in the Ad building and talk to Mr. S.

Monday Set As Deadline For Journal

"The deadline for Journal contributions has been extended until Monday," Anne Sullivan, editor of the magazine has announced.

"We will be happy to accept articles from any person who wishes to contribute. Please give them to any English teacher, or Mrs. Gordon at the switchboard. They may also be placed on the Literary Club bulletin board across from the water fountain on the first floor of the Administration Building," Miss Sullivan continued.

The Social Light

By MARY SCARLETT

Miss Mary Ann Epes has issued invitations for a dinner preceding the Cotillion Club dance on November 8.

Miss Ann Lewis went to West Point, New York, this past weekend.

Miss Barbara Ann Kitchum was at Hampden-Sydney this past weekend for homecomings.

Miss Betty Russell attended the Davidson-Hampden-Sydney game this past Saturday.

Miss June Erick was among those attending the Hampden-Sydney game this past weekend.

Miss Joy Dunbaugh went to the Washington and Lee-Virginia game in Charlottesville this past Saturday.

Miss Edith Colbert was among those spending the past weekend in Charlottesville.

Miss Anne Koimer Baker was in Charlottesville this past weekend for the W. and L.-Virginia game.

Miss Dale Jones spent this past weekend in Williamsburg. While there she attended the North Carolina-William and Mary game.

Miss Louise Washburn and Miss Louise Harris went to the N. C.-W. and M. game this past Saturday.

Miss Jessie Williams went to Williamsburg this past weekend for the N.C.-W. and M. game.

Miss Joyce Dickson was also among those attending the game in Williamsburg this past weekend.

Mr. Arthur Lee spent this past weekend in Norfolk.

Mr. Carl Lewis Shires attended the W. and M.-Carolina game in Williamsburg.

Any contribution for this column may be tacked on the bulletin board outside of Mr. Smith's office, room M in the Administration building.

Euan Temple Is Native Of England

Assistant Professor Euan Temple, one of Richmond Professional Institute's new instructors in English, is really English. He hasn't been in the United States a year.

In November 1946, Professor Temple came to Luray to visit relatives. His visit was for the purpose of recovering from malaria he contracted in Burma in 1943.

He visited Richmond one day, with friends, and met the president of William and Mary, Dr. Pomfret, who referred him to Dean Hibbs. Mr. Temple talked with Dr. Hibbs and accepted a position here.

After completing elementary and high school in London, Mr. Temple went to Oxford and completed a course in modern language. He then studied law at London University.

After finishing his law course he joined the For Inns of Court, The Grays Inn branch, which is similar to our law business fraternities. He took his bar examinations and became a barrister. Then he practiced law in the High Courts of England until he joined the army.

He joined the British army in 1939 as a private in the infantry.

After returning from the Battle of Dunkirk in 1942, he became a Second lieutenant, equal to a Second Lieutenant in the United States army.

He was then sent to India and later saw action in two Burma campaigns.

Record Crowd Attends Dance

"The largest crowd that has ever attended an RPI dance was at the S. G. A. dance in the Mosque ballroom, Oct. 17," said Dr. Margaret Johnson, adviser to women. Approximately 1200 students attended.

"The Windsors," led by Kenneth Henderson, supplied the music for this occasion. The same band played for the recent Women's Athletic Association's dance.

Book Review

By ANNETTE MOORE

"Oscar Wilde, His Life and Wit" by Hesketh Pearson, concerns the humor and brilliant conversation of Wilde rather than his perverted personality. It illustrates his almost unfailing ability to amuse and entertain with an ingenious gift of imagination.

Wilde is shown as the nonconformist and unprincipled man living in an era when superficiality dominated. He possessed a magnetic power of attracting and holding attention either through speech, manner or apparel.

Although disliked and held up to scorn and ridicule by his contemporaries, he was nevertheless able to enjoy their envy of his genius in wit, and his total disregard of conventions.

To call Wilde egotistical would be a gross understatement. He considered himself to be the only genius of his time. From this lofty attitude he looked with disdain and contempt on his contemporaries whom he thought lacking in sophistication.

In contrast we discover him to be an attentive father, the possessor of a cheerful disposition and a man of unlimited kindness and generosity. Wilde's entire personality is a paradox of admirable and contemptible traits without the balancing of any moderation whatsoever. Even his good qualities were sometimes so extreme as to be construed as faults.

Mr. Pearson reconstructs Wilde's character by bringing out the delightful side of his personality, his gay spirits, wit and good nature. Having known and conversed with some of Wilde's close friends, Herbert Tree, Alfred Douglas and Robert Sherrard, has given him the advantage of first hand information and opinions. It lends a friendly informality to the book.

The author neither excuses nor condones Wilde for his actions. He is intermittently clever, subtle, and gently cynical. We find as honest and unbiased a picture of Oscar Wilde as possible, as man, wit, artist and conversationalist.

Library Gets Non-Fiction

One of the many interesting non-fiction books that have recently been added to the library is "The Plotters," by John Roy Carlson.

This book is much more than a smashing expose of un-American and anti-democratic activities. It is also a fascinating personal adventure story of an undercover agent who dares to give names, dates and places.

"The Plotters" covers America's first year of "peace" and is based almost entirely on undercover activity since V. J. day.

About 200 new books have been shelved. They range in theme from "How to Pick a Mate—the Guide to a Happy Marriage," by Adams, to "The Wisdom of Confucius," edited by Lin Yutang.

If you derive pleasure from study in psychology you may want to read "Schizophrenia, the Cinderella of Psychiatry," by Ellery, or if interested in art there is the "Encyclopedia of the Arts" by Runes. If medicine holds your interest there is "Behind the Mask of Medicine," by Atkinson.

For those people who are fond of poetry there is "The Uncollected Poems of Henry Timrod," by Timrod and "A History of American Poetry," by Gregory.

F. A. G. to Meet At Studio Theater

The Fine Arts Group will have its first meeting Friday night Oct. 24 at 8 P. M.

The meeting will be held in the Studio Theatre. A movie will be presented entitled "Stone Carving" with Mr. Wolfgang Behl, of the Art department, narrating.

Regular members are expected and all new fine art students are cordially invited. After the meeting there will be "coffee and conversation."

Volley Ball Intramurals Begin Oct. 25

"Volley ball intramurals will start Oct. 25," announced Miss Frances Chapman, assistant professor of the physical education department. Sometime between Thanksgiving and Christmas, badminton contests are scheduled to begin. Ping-pong will follow between Jan. 6 and the examination period.

Basketball opens with the first week of the second semester and is followed up by swimming in latter March. The schedule is rounded out with archery in April or May, depending on the weather.

This program is the result of a canvass made of the dorms to determine just what sports the girls preferred for intramurals. Tournaments will be conducted by physical education representatives, who have been appointed from the dorms as follows:

819 W. Franklin, Joyce Dickson; 821 W. Franklin, Martha Henderson; 827 W. Franklin, Thelma Saunders; 908 W. Franklin, Patricia Ball; 820 Park, Selma Cohen; 828 Park, June Aigner; 214 Shafer, Marion Rawlings.

Campus Capers

Randolph-Macon—Dr. S. C. Hatcher has retired. One record at least he leaves behind. During the 1938-1939 school year, he served as acting president, vice president, and secretary-treasurer. No one has ever before held that number of college administrative positions simultaneously in Virginia.

College of Wm. & Mary—Eight faculty representatives attended a conference on a combined plan of study with Massachusetts Institute of Technology. WM was the only southern college invited.—The International Relations Club has invited college representatives from Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, and Maryland to attend a conference in mid-November. The theme will be: "United States Foreign Policy—Peace Through a Balance of Power or a Strong United Nations."

W&M-V. P. I., Norfolk Va.—Approximately 8,000 students are enrolled this year. 400 of these are veterans, attending under the G. I. Bill. About 450 are attending for the first time, the majority being freshmen. Many applicants were refused because of limited facilities, and were referred to St. Helena, in Berkeley, Va.

Albright College — Fifteen new classical records were added to the music department's collection for use in the music appreciation classes. Recordings of such masters as Brahms, Tschaiskowsky, Debussy, and Ravel were among them.

U. of Va.—45 girls have moved into their new dormitory. They expressed satisfaction and relief upon leaving their old quarters in an army barracks on the campus.

be taken Nov. 10 to 14 also from 3 to 5 p.m.

Women students, except seniors, are requested to wear pastel slip-over sweaters and a one-strand pearl necklace. The studio requests that for uniformity no decoration be worn in the hair. Students are also asked to use make up sparingly.

Men should wear coats and white shirts and ties, studio officials added. This year the "Wigwam" will be bound in a 9 by 12 cover and will be decorated in the college colors of green and gold.

Miss Wise's announcements were made at a meeting of the "Wigwam" staff the past Friday.

Tar Heels Win State Football From Indians

The University of North Carolina football team outlasted the William and Mary Indians at Williamsburg 13-7 last weekend before a capacity crowd of 17,000. The "Tar Heels" broke ice when Charlie Justice passed to Camp in the end-zone in the second quarter and they were never headed. Trailing 7-0 at the half, W&M jumped right back into the ball game in the third quarter when their fullback, Jack Cloud, crashed through tackle to score. Stan Magdziak then booted the conversion to tie the score at 7-7.

In the fourth and final quarter big Walt Pupa, Carolina fullback, struck pay-dirt with what proved to be the deciding tally. The Braves threatened to score later in this quarter, but time ran out. Frequent fumbles at crucial moments were very costly and contributed much to William and Mary's defeat.

After having their winning streak snapped at three games the Indians will invade northern territory this week, attempting to get back into the win column at the expense of Boston University. B. U. lost to Purdue 62-7 their last time out.

Meanwhile VPI plays the University of Maryland, who suffered their first loss of the season at the hands of Duke 19-7 last Saturday. The powerful Army eleven literally trampled Tech last week and rolled through their thirty-second consecutive game undefeated as their backs ran almost at will, winning 40-0. VPI did manage to hold the West Pointers scoreless the first quarter, but spunky as they were they yielded to the Cadets great team. Now they can turn their talents towards Maryland and concentrate on upsetting the Terps come this Saturday.

RPI Students Help at Services

RPI students Claudius Coleman and Hobson Chinnis, members of St. James Episcopal church, were active participants in the Sunday morning services there, Oct. 19.

Coleman read the second lesson of the services after the sermon, while Chinnis spoke to the congregation on the youth offering of the parish.

The service was planned by the youth council of the St. James branch of the United Youth Movement of Episcopal churches.

Movie Seen By RPI Club

"The Church at College," a movie presenting the need for religious guidance at college, was shown at the first official meeting of the RPI Canterbury club the past Monday night. The meeting took place at St. James' Church parish house.

A picnic for club members and their dates will be held at Roslyn diocesan center Oct. 27, it was decided. Transportation will be provided from the administration building at 5 and 6 p. m.

Those wishing to go are asked to sign their names on the poster in the hall of the administration building. There will be a small charge for the picnic.

Julia Phillips, club president, and the Reverend A. D. Juhan, advisor, explained at the meeting that the group's goal for this year is to make the group a chartered club eligible for membership in the national federation.

A two-day conference for all Richmond Canterbury clubs will be held at Roslyn this spring, it was further disclosed at the meeting.
