“first there is the word
the word is the song”

Notes

1
north by south, west from east an invisible but historical line cuts across the valley’s lives sharp like bloodlines

2
across the street nearly mute an old woman moans alone inside the Buckhorn saloon cowboys drink up and stomp

3
long ago black bears
sang round our lodge fires tonight they dance
alive through our dreams

4
in chipped and tattered weavings of a willow basket the voice of an ancient age dreaming of breath

5
deep within a feather in the sky
foam on clear water Tayko-mol!

—William Oandasan