

Bowles To Run For SGA; "January Thaw" Tomorrow

Two Parties Announced

Sewell Plan, Platform Of All Campus Party

George A. Bowles, Business Administrative Junior, has announced his intention to run for the presidency of the Student Government Association. Mr. Bowles has organized the "All-Campus Party."

On the slate with him are Jane Brooks, drama major, for vice-president; Terry Langstaff, Sociology major, for secretary; and Ryland Rash, business major, for treasurer.

Mr. Bowles' platform follows that set up by William G. Sewell, incumbent president of the SGA. The candidate said that he will try to perpetuate the Sewell plan next year.

Mr. Bowles' campaign includes

ART CLUB TO GIVE XMAS FETE

RPI, Dec. 3.—A Christmas party for Advertising Art club members and their escorts will be held Dec. 16. Francis Hardesty, president of the club, has announced. Dancing and other entertainment will be included.

Hardesty also announced the election of the following club officers for the term beginning in February: Clark Willey, president; Max Mason, vice-president; Kenneth Huff, secretary and treasurer; and Hope Lyons, SGA representative.

"The president-elect will accompany the current president at all league meetings until the present term expires," Hardesty said.

Soc. Class To Collect Clothes

Old clothes and bars of soap will be collected in the Day Room tomorrow, Friday and Saturday to be sent to Germany and other overseas countries. The project is being sponsored by Dr. Alice Davis' Sociology classes.

Joyce Mathis, on the committee for the collection, stressed that the clothes should be in "wearable" condition. "There will be a box in the Day Room for the collection," she said.

Deadline for contributions is noon on Saturday.

Voters Club Formed For Campus, State

With the dual purpose of a balanced, educated vote for national and state politics, and an actual slate for campus politics, the Young Independent Voters club is organizing here.

The purpose, as outlined in the charter, is to get the young men and women in college and business life to vote and to understand why they are voting for a particular man. "We believe that an informed vote is fundamental to a democratic society," Walter Simpson, president, explained.

Every student at RPI is eligible for membership in the organization, Mr. Simpson said. The first general meeting will be tomorrow at 1:00.

The club's fifteen charter members have been invited to a banquet in the Pen Room of the R. L. Arnold Pen company in Petersburg tonight. Mr. Arnold is a candidate for governor of Virginia in the coming gubernatorial race and stands for "younger business men." He advocates voters' clubs in the state colleges, regardless of the political leanings of the members.

Charter members of the club are Simpson, president; William R. Johnson, vice-president; Raymond Willis, secretary; Robert Lindholm treasurer; William Boswell, publicity chairman; and Richard Allman, sergeant at arms.

Also, George Partin, Clayton Richardson, Howard Dunnivant, Clyde Harrison, Henry Dyson, Edgar Harrell, William Kelly, James King, and Robert Perkins.

SHIFLET IS ASL QUEEN IN CARNIVAL

Lola Mae Shiflet was crowned Queen of the Carnival in an impressive ceremony Saturday night at the Art Students' League carnival held in the gymnasium. Runner-up in the voting was Doris Lea Williams.

Miss Shiflet was crowned by Camille Cook Robinson, last year's queen, with a white, ermine trimmed crown. She was presented with an arm bouquet of talisman roses, carnations, and chrysanthemums. She was wearing a white long-sleeved, high-necked blouse and a black skirt.

The gym was decorated in typical carnival style. Huge side show posters were hung from the walls;

15-DAY VACATION FOR YULE

RPI, Dec. 4.—Christmas vacation will begin after the last class Saturday, Dec. 18 and will end at 8:00 a. m. Monday, Jan. 3, 1949, according to a statement received from Dr. Margaret L. Johnson, administrative assistant, today.

Dr. Johnson warned students that the cut system installed with the Thanksgiving vacation is still in effect. No double cuts will be given. The two days before and after the vacation are designated as "no cut" days. If any class is missed during these days, a fine of $5.00 for each class missed will be imposed, unless a doctor's certificate is tendered by the student.

The $5.00 fine is for the first offense. A second offense carries a double fine, and if a student is guilty of a third offense, he will lose credit from the courses in which he was absent.

The system of not allowing double cuts was initiated with the Thanksgiving holidays and will continue throughout the year.

8:30 Curtain For Second T. A. Show

Tomorrow night the Theatre Associates will present the opening performance of their second major production of this season, "January Thaw." Performances will be given on Friday and Saturday evenings also.

This production offers quite a few "seconds" for the T. A's. In the first place it is the second time that Mr. Raymond Hodges, head of the school of Dramatic Art, has staged this show having recently done so at his Summer stock company, The Green Mountain Playhouse, Middlebury, Va. Secondly, Lola Mae Shiflet and Morris Law are playing the roles of wife and husband for the second time in their RPI careers. And third, Tyrone Morrow and Morris Law are playing roles in this show for the second time.

Those included in the cast are Charles Cagle as George Husted; Joan Wallerstein as Barbara Gage; Lola Shiflet as Matilda Rockwood; Morris Law as Jonathan Rockwood; Ty Morrow as Uncle Walter; Kay Fazio and Ann Graves as the Gage children; Charlotte Pilley as the maid; Frieda; Ed Barnhill as Loomis; Earl Harford as Matt Rockwood; and James Enderly as Carson. Franklin Davis has designed the set, Arthur Greene is the stage manager, and Robert Watkins has the task of props for this production. Davis was master electrician for the Green

"Spirit Of Christmas" Will Have Twenty-nine Dancers

RPI, Dec. 3—"Spirit of Christmas," the Modern Dance recital next Tuesday night at 8:00 P. M., will include twenty-nine dancers. Miss Florence English Assistant Professor of Physical Education, revealed today.

The dancers are Martha Ganzert, Anita Hackett, Janet Hasler, Phyllis Isbell, Lois Reaves, Anne Heeke, Kay Fazio, Anne Bass, Ann Graves, Edythe Dalton, Barbara Evans, Catherine Cosby, Patricia Lane, and Hattie Pittman.

Also, Connie Bishop, Norma White, Bonnie Lockerman, Beverly LeBar, Mary Anthony, Sonia La Cruz, Ellen Moller, Elaine Field, Virginia Decker, Tyrone Morrow, Evelyn Randlette, Joan Wallerstein, Carolyn Owens, Golden Lester, and Lois Friedman.

Final changes to the program were completed today, Miss English stated. The program is divided ed into six parts. The first will be composed of traditional Christmas songs, "Deck the Halls," "We Three Kings," "Jingle Bells," and "Winter Wonderland."

In the second division the theme is, "The spirit of Christmas unites man into one brotherhood." The third part, "Around the Christmas tree," will have three dances, "Tinkle Tot," "Tin Soldier and His Lady," and "Little Feet."

"The birth of Christ enabled man to rise to heights unthought of before"—is the musical idea of the fourth section. Three songs, "The Lord's Prayer," "Ave Maria," and "Silent Night" will be portrayed in dance to the fifth division, "Holy Night."

The last portion will close the program with the thought, "Out of the searching and quest for truth, the light of Christ shone through."

RPI Professors and Former Students on Museum Group

All eight members of the Advisory Committee of the Virginia Museum of Fine Art are now at RPI or once were associated with this college.

Three committee members are on the R.P.I. staff: Theresa Polak, chairman of the faculty of the School of Art, Wolfgang Behl, assistant professor in sculpture and Jewett Campbell, instructor in art at Westhampton college, and Mrs. Martha Upshur, were elected to the committee, also.

Charles W. Smith, woodcut artist and another member of the group, is a former instructor in advertising art at R.P.I.

Another member, Mrs. Ruth Hyland, is teaching extension classes in Art Education through the University of Virginia, and Sara Joyner, who is Superintendent of Art on the State Board of Education, taught extension classes in Art Education at R.P.I. a few years ago.

This committee is elected from a list of Virginia artists and art teachers by the written votes of other Virginia artists. Eight members serve on the committee under the chairmanship of Jean Begien Campbell.

PEDANT, PUPIL AND ROAD

Many students in the colleges and universities of our country approach education with a distorted idea of the patterns which are designed by educators to develop their minds and their techniques in living. These ideas are born during grammar school and high school years and too often nothing is done by the teacher to correct the false impression. The student comes to think of college as a process during which the professor crams as large a factual knowledge as is possible into the somewhat resisting crania before him, relentlessly using sledge hammers, steam shovels, pneumatic drills, and base drums.

This impression is easily formed despite its falsity. It is like the schooled difference between the appraisal of a raw diamond by an oil well driller and a lapidary. The former sees it in terms of its hardness and its use in biting through rock; the latter sees it as a polished jewel, a thing of rare beauty. Each brings to his appraisal the ideas his life has brought to him.

A student looking at the educative process sees it in terms of what he has believed throughout life. The professor sees the identical process in terms of the educative techniques which he has mastered. The gap between the two is one of approach.

The fact which the student needs to understand is a simple one. The educative process is not one of cramming knowledge into the mind of the student. It is rather the guiding of experience with facts and with techniques—a moving of the mind through seas the charts of which are known to the pilot and will be known to the sailor. Of course there are passengers. Most of them stare glibly at the scenery and leave the boat when they reach their destination so that they may look at other scenery.

The professor brings more to his classes than a microscopically analyzed knowledge of his subject. He brings an understanding of human nature and of the techniques of leading the human mind through new channels of experience. Therefore, the educative process is not a mass process. It is one in which a hoard of individuals moves as individuals guided and led by people of experience but independently tasting, experimenting, and applying the knowledge to which they were led, in terms of themselves and in terms of the individual lives which they will lead.

A teacher does not ask a student to follow. Rather he asks the student to pursue with him a road which will lead the student through what he needs to experience in order to reach his goal. And reaching it, the teacher shakes the hand of the student as a friend and turns back alone on the road which they have traveled, to return and find another individual with another goal.—R. E. A.

WILL WE HAVE PRIMARIES

The formation of two political parties at Richmond Professional Institute is announced on page one of this week's issue of Proscript. The two parties are in direct antithesis to each other . . . Mr. Bowles' being an individual's effort and the Young Independent Voters club being a compact political organization.

We believe that this is a great step forward in the final accomplishment of a party system at RPI. With two such organizations on campus, it is possible that the student body will be sufficiently aroused to come out and vote at the polls when SGA elections are on the calendar.

We have heard rumors that at least two other candidates have expressed their intention to run for the SGA presidency. If these rumors are true, would it not be wise to make provisions for a primary so that the final balloting could be for two slates only? If there is no primary, the voting will be so split that no candidate will receive a majority of the votes cast, thereby electing the man by a minority vote again.

We suggest, therefore, that the SGA constitution which is being written, include such a provision.—N. C.

The Teaser Batten

By EDITH LINDERMAN

If Barter Theater's production of "Hamlet" serves no other purpose than to stir up discussion regarding the manner in which Shakespeare's greatest tragedy has been presented, it will have focussed new attention on the Virginia theater and its courageous delight in tackling the most difficult drama.

Last night's audience at the WRVA Theater where the play opened was never indifferent to what went on before them. Some were carried away, some were frankly unhappy when the ghost failed to make an appearance in anything more visible than a shaft of light. Some were irked at the unorthodox shuffling of scenes; others were charmed with the originality of presentation which opened the play with a scene in the Danish court rather than on the familiar bleak battlements where the spirit of Hamlet's murdered father sets his son to the task of vengeance. Intermission and postplay comments buzzed with admiration and criticism. Whatever the reaction, it augurs well for Barter Theater and Robert Porterfield for no spectator was entirely unmoved by the production.

Something new has been brought to the local scene with this, the second offering in Barter's current season. Richmond's Barter patrons are accustomed to the company's superb handling of Shakespeare's comedies; their interpretation of the tragedy is no less forthright, even though they have shaped the play with an eye to "modern" entertainment. This modernity extends to lighting, lavish costumes, the addition of an off-stage musical score, sound effects that sometimes, overpower the players; the great soliloquy done in silhouette on a darkened stage; the meticulous care with which Shakespearean lines are delivered. We wondered a bit about the authenticity of the two pistol shots which eliminated those conniving scoundrels, Rosenkrantz and Guildenstern, but decided that even if firearms were not a part of Shakespearean equipment, the effect was as melodramatic as if the Bard had written it himself.

Even with paring and polishing (and the elimination of the grave-diggers and alas, poor Yorick) the play runs for three hours. During that time Robert Breen, as the tortured young prince of Denmark, is scarcely off the stage. Breen is an intense young man who reads into his role all the harried, impassioned turmoil of all the Hamlets who ever interpreted the role. He is bitter, melancholy, vengeful and eloquent of gesture. Although the late John Barrymore was his teacher, he plays the role with no overtones, of Barrymorean manner.

Breen has masterly support from the remainder of the cast. Jacqueline Logan, former screen star who has come out of retirement to add her talents to Barter Theater, is a handsome and emotional queen—mother, Gertrude. Leo Chalzel, recruited from Broadway, makes Polonius a lovable fussy, blundering old fellow.

From Barter's own familiar ranks come the others, with Frederic Warriner as the villainous King Claudius. Warriner commands the stage with his assurance, his domineering figure and his sly wickedness, sometimes touched with a macabre humor. Pretty Gerry Jedd imbues the role of Ophelia with gentle charm and delicate pathos. Ernest Borgaine and Mell Turner, as Rosenkrantz, Guildenstern and various assorted courtiers, tackle each part with the gusto of real Shakespearean troupers. James Andrews is a fiery Laertes, and Ray Boyle plays Horatio with a warm and friendly feeling.

Originality of production extends to the play-within-a-play, done in ballet-pantomime; to the smooth flow of scenes made possible by a pair of court servants

Oil Portraits In Library Merit Notice

Today, several hundred R.P.I. students will enter the main reading room of the library, find the books of their choice, check them out and leave without ever glancing any higher than the shelf on which their books may be found.

But there are those who, upon entering the room, will glance higher and who will find directly opposite them the portrait of A. A. Anderson, patron of the Richmond School of Art, painted by Hans Temple in 1893 and also a painting titled "The Black Cloud" by Eugene Higgins. The former follows the Whistler School of painting and the latter had the distinction of winning the First Altman Prize in 1931.

On turning to their left, they will see the portrait of Dr. Scherer, pastor of the First English Evangelical Lutheran Church of Richmond, which was painted by W. R. Brewer in 1932.

To the right of the doorway, is a painting of Dean Hibbs, by the local artist, David Silvette and shows the Dean looking over his fine print collection.

O. T. Crafts Class Designs Cards

R.P.I., Dec. 8—Each year, students of the O. T. Principals of Design Applied to Crafts class, under the direction of Mr. G. D. Casey, design Christmas cards which are to be used by the department for sending to other O. T. schools and RPI graduates in various sections of the country. In return, many cards are received by the department here at R.P.I. and posted on the bulletin board immediately after Christmas.

These cards, after being submitted by the O. T. students, are voted on and the one receiving the most votes is sent to the various O. T. schools throughout the country. This year's design was made by Ellen Grover.

Miss Helen Freas, Director of the Occupational Therapy Department at R.P.I., states that the department has already received one card of the type mentioned, that one coming from Lt. Lottie Blanton, U. S. Army, who is stationed in Stuttgart, Germany with the Army Special Service Division. Lt. Blanton is a former R.P.I. student.

Club Cancels Dance Because Of Conflict

The Newman club dance, originally scheduled for Friday, Dec. 3, in the Cathedral high school, was cancelled last week due to a conflict with another affair, Carson Overton, president, announced.

The date and time of the dance, which will be some time after the Christmas holidays, will be determined at the next meeting of the Newman Club on Wednesday, Dec. 15, Mr. Overton said.

Salvation Army Asks Aid Of RPI Students

RPI, Dec. 1—The Richmond division of the Salvation Army has requested the aid of from 10 to 12 students to help wrap Christmas packages for the needy children of Richmond. This help will be needed for about three days; probably Dec. 13 through the 15.

The Salvation Army has purchased approximately 1000 toys, in addition to all the necessary wrapping materials. Other students will be needed later in the month to help in the distribution of the toys.

Students who wish to offer their services may call Captain Thomas, of the Richmond Salvation Army. Phone 31969.

Rev. Juhan To Speak To Canterbury Club

RPI, Dec. 8—The Right Rev. Juhan, Bishop of Florida and father of the Rev. Alexander Juhan of St. James Episcopal church, will address the RPI Canterbury club tonight at 7:30, according to an announcement by Sands Smith, vice-president of the club.

The meeting will be held at St. James church at 1201 W. Franklin street.

Devil's Corner

By
WINSTON OVERTON

This week's tip of the Devil's horns goes to the newly chosen Devil varsity team. The team is built around "Whitey" Dollard, Hooks Washer and "Chippy" Chipwalt, who played with the Green Devil's last season. The other eight Devils are: "Bunny" Lacy, "Hawk" Moughamian, "Kenny" Thompson, "Christy" Clark, "Soapy" Waters, "Stan" Guild, Bill Pritchard and "Sammy" Grainger. Grainger, who hails from Bennettsville, South Carolina is the only Devil not from Richmond.

Second, String Practice Underway.

The Baby Green Devil's started their official season this past Monday with a hard practice under the watchful eyes of Coach Ziegler. The team will practice each Monday, Wednesday and Friday, on the Central Y's hard-wood at three o'clock. The schedule will be built around other Col-dule for the Baby Green Devils iege "B" teams and local high schools. There will be about ten games played on a home and home basis. Most of the "B" team games will be played as prelimi-naries to the varsity.

Season Tickets Drive began yesterday.

A drive for the sale of season tickets began yesterday and will last through Saturday, Dec. 11. The tickets will sell for $3.00 and may be purchased from members of the Men's A. A. A season ticket will permit one to any by the Men's A. A. The proceeds game or social affair sponsored go to the expense accounts of the different men's sports teams.

Around 200 students traveled up from RPI to see the Randolph-Macon — RPI practice game and to lend their vocal cords to the cheer-leaders. The R. M. Jackets won the game 61 to 37. The cheerleaders were resplendent in white shoes, white socks, white sweaters and green skirts. They brought forth many whistles from the R-M "Wolves".

Ralph Canada, an RPI student was hurt while playing football for an independent team on the 21st of November. Ralph suffered head injuries. He is improving rapidly at McGuire's Hospital.

Howard Nash is up and walk-ing around at McGuire's hospital. Howard has been at the hospital since he received back injuries earlier this year. He expects to return to school in February and we are looking forward to some of his outstanding pitching this spring.

If Louis Apprahamian can hit the basket as well as he can hit the dinner plate, the "B" squad has nothing to worry about this season.

We wonder if Miss Emma Twigg was supporting RPI or R-M because she sat in the middle of the Randolph-Macon stands during the game at Ashland on December 1.

Soccer Team Elects Crosby As48Captain

Donald Crosby was elected as the captain of the soccer team for the 1948 season. He played center half for the Green Devils.

Crosby comes from New Jersey and played on the varsity basket-ball, baseball team last year.

Girls Badminton Tournament Opens

The R. P. I. girl's badminton tournament opened Dec. 1, with Shafer House winning two out of three games with the Graduates Dorm. The Grads won the opening game 21 to 18, but lost the other two 8 to 21 and 18 to 21.

Thursday night, a double contest got off to a good start as Founders Hall beat 828 Park in two close games, and Meredith closed out Ritter-Hickok. The scores of the Founder Hall - 828 Park games were 23-20 and 21-6, while Meredith, winner of last year's plaque, made decisive victories with scores of 21-2 and 21-6.

The schedule for next week's doubles will begin Dec. 6, and end Dec. 9. On the 6th the Day Students will play Shafer House, while 828 Park will engage the Graduates Dorm. Meredith and the Dean's House battle on the 7th followed by Founders Hall and Moore House.

The Day Students and 828 Park share the bill with Shafer House and Meredith on the 8th. Dec. 9, the last games until after Christmas holidays will be played off between the Graduates Dorm, and Moore House and the Dean's House and Ritter-Hickok.

SHIFLET

Miss Shiflet was runner-up in last years voting. She is a Senior in the drama department, vice-president of the Student Government Association, treasurer of the Cotillion club, and president of the Honor Council.

Voting results were posted until the last fifteen minutes, when all ballots were secret.
