

Contributors

VICTORIA AARONS teaches English at Trinity University in San Antonio, Texas. Her most recent research is on Jewish-American fiction and short stories which reflect the relationships between first generation American children and their immigrant parents.

HOWARD ADELMAN teaches Jewish Studies and is in the Department of History at Smith College. A shorter version of his essay appeared in the Chronicle of Higher Education.

STEVE GOLD teaches in the Department of Sociology at Whittier College in Whittier, California.

PHYLLIS GRAY-RAY teaches at Mississippi State University in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology.

BARBARA L. HIURA is a doctoral student in Ethnic Studies at the University of California, Berkeley. She serves on the Executive Council of NAES and is Associate Editor of NAES Publications.

ELLA P. LACEY teaches in Behavioral and Social Sciences in the School of Medicine at Southern Illinois University. Her research interests also include the study of ethnicity and United States Census Reports.

JAMES A. SCHNELL was a visiting professor at Northern Jiaotong University in Beijing, the People's Republic of China, during the summer of 1987. He teaches at the University of Cincinnati.

ALAN SPECTOR teaches sociology in the Department of Behavioral Sciences at Purdue University Calumet in Hammond, Indiana, and he has recently joined the Editorial Board for NAES Publications. His interests are in social change theory and race and ethnic relations.