Legislation Is Changed In Senate

By Larry E. Prentice

The Senate Committee on Education Tuesday amended the William and Mary separation bill and reported the bill out for possible Senate action late this week.

The amendments enlarged the size of proposed boards of visitors of RPI and the Norfolk college of William and Mary from seven to 13 members and changed the wording of some sections of the bill.

Should the Senate approve the bill, the measure would return to the House of Delegates, where a favorable vote on the revisions would clear the way for the Governor Albertis S. Harrison Jr.'s signature and enactment of the bill. The House approved the original bill by an 86-2 vote.

Carnel Is Sponsor

Del. Russell M. Carnel of Williamsburg introduced the bill January 18, along with 70 co-sponsors in the 100-man House.

Governor Harrison, in his first address to the General Assembly last month, voiced his approval of the proposed split. He said, "I have studied the report of the Council on Higher Education (the state unit which recommended the break-up of the W&M system), and believe that its recommendations are basically sound."

Submitted to the House Education Committee, the bill received criticism from two Newport News delegates. An amendment changing the membership on the William and Mary board of visitors from 10 to 15, as it now has, cleared the bill for passage in the House.

The original legislation called for separate governing boards at both RPI and the Norfolk College of William and Mary, consisting of seven members each. Also to be included was the state superintendent of public instruction, who

Doris French Named May Queen for 1962

By Sandra Turner

Doris French, a senior Retailing major, was elected May Queen by student vote at registration last week.

Elected as Maid of Honor was Brenda Whitehurst, a Commercial Art senior. A total of 1,016 students voted during the two-day election.

Doris, who was "really thrilled at receiving the title" is from Narrows. She is working at Green-tree's department store to receive directed store experience in supervision which parallels her studies in retailing.

Last summer Doris, who says working is her hobby, served as a college counselor at Woodward and Lothrop in Washington, D.C. She represented RPI on the college board, which was made up of students from schools throughout the nation.

Has Modeled

"We modeled in fashion shows and helped college-bound girls select wardrobes appropriate for school," she said.

Her work there was tied in with the back-to-school promotion of Mademoiselle magazine. She wore a uniform, which was shown on the cover of the August issue of Mademoiselle, during her work day. She appeared in a fashion show sponsored by Mademoiselle at the Statler Hotel.

Doris chose retailing as a major partly because of her high school distributive education instructor, Lester Simpson, a graduate of RPI. She says he developed her interest in retailing.

Doris will do her student teaching at George Wythe High School this semester, instructing junior and senior classes in distributive education.

In June, Doris will be married to Bob Hardiman, a graduate of the University of Maryland, and they will make their home in Norfolk, where Doris hopes to make a career in retailing.

The maid of honor, Brenda is from Charlotte, N. C. She says, "it's difficult for me to picture myself as Maid of Honor, it's a special honor."

Brenda transferred from Mars Hill College after her freshman year. She had started out as a Voice major, but changed to Fine Art in preparation for coming to RPI.

Brenda was a sophomore attendant in the 1959 May Court. She was the SGA representative of the Baptist Student Union her sophomore year.

She worked as a waitress, a sign painter and a drugstore clerk in Hyannis, Cape Cod last summer. She has also had jobs as a switchboard operator and a florist.

Brenda says she is inquiring into job possibilities in commercial art in San Francisco, Calif., where she hopes to work after graduation. She is especially interested in wood cuts, linoleum blocks and in the silk screen process.

By Dean's Office

Memo Citing Rules Is Issued

A memo calling attention to the honor code and to particular college regulations was issued by Dean Pendleton this week.

The purpose of the memo is to refresh student's minds with regard to rules which "have been forgotten, or of which students are ignorant," Dean Pendleton said. The start of a new semester is the reason for issuing the memo, the dean said.

No new rules are listed but some rules have been defined to eliminate any misconception a student might have. An example of such a rule is the honor code offense of lying. The memo points out that "lying includes signing out for one destination and going to another destination."

Stealing Emphasized

The offense of stealing is being emphasized because of thefts that have taken place on campus, the dean said. It is brought out in the memo that interference with the mail is a federal offense.

A third honor code offense, cheating is defined as giving aid or receiving aid from any student on tests, assignments, or examinations without the consent of the professor.

Failure to report an offense, a fourth infraction of the code, is considered an offense as the others, the memo said. A student who violates this rule the memo states, "will be dealt with just as severely as the person whom he failed to report."

The honor system, as outlined in the college catalogue, says that everyone who enrolls at RPI sub-

Powell Is President Of New Social Group

By Pat Hensley

Emmett Powell, a junior Distribution major, was elected president of the Students for Fraternities and Sororities club (SFSC) at an organizational meeting Monday night.

A constitution and by-laws for the club were approved and seven other officers were elected by approximately 70 students who attended the open meeting.

Vice president of the club is Lee Richardson. Two sophomore Interior Design majors were elected to the secretarial positions. Dee Dee Knox, of Washington, D.C., is corresponding secretary, and Jean Caseino of Beckley, W. Va., is recording secretary.

Carolyn Owens, a senior majoring in Commercial Art, was elected treasurer, and Dick White, a sophomore Drama major from Roanoke, was elected Student Government Association representative. White's alternate is T. R. Robertson, a freshman in Distribution from Salem. The club will seek representation on Student Council in the near future.

Two "members at large" of the executive council are Don Blackwell, former SGA parliamentarian, and Connie McDonald, a freshman Psychology major from Middletown.

The club is scheduled to meet monthly.

The group of students for fraternities and sororities has existed as a committee since the SGA announced three weeks ago that a referendum will be held March 5-9. Dick Whitehead, president of the German club, acted as chairman of the committee until the constitution and by-laws were approved.

Campaign Schedule Set

Under Whitehead's direction, the group organized a campaign schedule, distributed letters to students printed posters, petitions, billboards and pamphlets.

In describing the brochure, Whitehead said that it is entitled "The Story of Fraternities". It defines fraternities and sororities and traces their histories at William and Mary.

The petitions will serve as a sample vote, predicting how many people will vote in the referendum, Whitehead said.

The purposes of the club, as defined in its constitution, are "To

Improved Registration

Improvements initiated this semester made registration something of a proverbial "breeze." In fact, many students finished the previously day-long chore in less than an hour.

The streamlined system, we feel, is due primarily to changes made in the pre-registration system.

Under these changes, instructors received students' class cards during the pre-registration period and thereby learned in advance approximately how many students would be enrolled in their classes and sections. An advantage of this was to eliminate the practice of students having to be "bumped" from classes because they were overcrowded.

Another time-saving feature of the streamlined system is that—unless a student wanted to change his schedule—the only signature he had to obtain on registration day was that of his advisor. This, in effect, made registration a time for little more than schedule changes.

The result was that students finished registration early and that in the latter parts of the four registering sessions—advisors had nothing to do. As one advisor was overheard saying to another, "I'm getting bored."

Therefore, while fully crediting the registrar's office for devising the streamlined system, we would like to offer one suggestion—Hereafter, why not register in one day, at least for the spring semester?

At last week's registration, it was apparent that a one-day registration period would be feasible. At this time, there are few transfer and new students and the biggest task is taking care of students who are changing schedules.

During the fall semester the large number of freshmen enrolling would prevent an efficient one-day registration.

In any event, all persons who had a hand in bringing about the improvement noted above are due our thanks.

This probably was the speediest, most efficient registration period ever. It undoubtedly accomplished more than any other in the last 10 years.

Letters to the Editor

Fraternity and Sorority Comments

Dear Editor,

Fraternities and sororities have existed to promote brotherhood, friendship and welfare among their members. They usually have secret rituals, a name consisting of Greek letters, and their members are usually of the same class, profession, character, or tastes. At least, this is what fraternities and sororities have professed to be and perhaps were, years ago. A look at the "Society System" of today reveals that the Greek letter organizations are perishing.

Why did they exist in the first place? The most frequent excuse is BROTHERHOOD. Some say they promote scholarship; others, that they offer students protection against the lionliness of a "true" education—What are we in college for? The reason for the existence of fraternities and sororities is the need for security and the natural desire to belong. There is safety in groups, particularly if the group is identified and surrounded by inanity.

According to an article in the nation magazine fraternities and sororities eat on exclusiveness, thrive on intolerance, presume to control people and beliefs, gorge on stupidity and emptiness, and result in heartache and sometimes senseless viciousness. Pledges are taught secret rites and personal conduct is highly emphasized.

Fraternities and sororities are supposed to be under National control, but it has been the recent trend to go "local" in defiance of some of the discriminatory clauses in the rituals. Oddly enough rebellion has come from the fraternity members, who have suggested that the organizations come under university control or even that they become "social dormitories". The selectivity of fraternities and sororities has long been a sore spot. They have discriminated against race, religion, color and nationality.

As an article in October 1961 Squire points out Today's young adults are mature and purposeful enough to "find little excuse for the adolescent hazing, poor scholarship, childish immorality, and stumblebum drunkenness" that have for so long been synonymous with fraternities and sororities.

This is an overall view of the subject. More specifically the question is, "Is there a large enough demand, is there a real need, and most important, is there a place for fraternities and sororities at RPI?"

There will be no way of ascertaining the demand for these organizations until after the student referendum has taken place. There is however, a sizable group of interested students, several of whom at one time held membership in the now defunct, unofficial, off campus fraternities and sororities, who are actively engaged in promoting their cause.

RPI students must feel a need for an activity of this sort on campus or the movement would never have gotten under way. We lack unity, school spirit—perhaps it is this desire to create a feeling of union and spirit that has motivated the growth of the fraternity and sorority idea.

Most students who come to RPI come fully aware that it is not an IVY LEAGUE school or a party school—they come knowing that fraternities and sororities have not and do not exist on this campus. "Most" students coming to school here are concerned more with providing themselves with training for a specific profession. Obviously had been interested in the social aspects of college, parties, football games, campus life, they would have gone elsewhere. Instead they chose RPI. The purpose of fraternities and sororities is certainly not monumental and there is NO place for them at RPI.

Dear Editor,

Richmond Professional Institute is a rapidly growing college and we, as its students, can contribute a great deal to the development of our school. With academic growth inevitable, there should be an awareness of our school's need for social improvements. Active participation in school clubs, attending athletic events, and membership in other extra-curricular activities, all contribute to the social improvement of the student body.

One answer to this problem is to have controlled competition between the various groups within the student body. These groups, advised closely by faculty mem-would manage board affairs. Governor Harrison would make the board appointments, which would become effective July 1, 1962.

On January 30, the House approved the bill, which abolished the chancellor's office and retained the presidents of RPI, William and Mary and Norfolk William and Mary in their present capacities.

The present chancellor, Alvin Duke Chandler, would assume the duties of co-ordinator over the remaining two junior colleges in the system—Christopher Newport at Newport News and Richard Bland at Petersburg. A third reading was bypassed and the bill was promptly sent to the Senate.

At a Senate Education Committee public hearing February 1, the original bill was both attacked and praised by members of the Board of Visitors of the Colleges of William and Mary. The board had opposed the plan by a 10-5 vote earlier in January.

Sections Said Insulting

Leading the opposition was M. Carl Andrews, editor of the Roanoke World-News, who said sections of the legislation were insulting to the board.

Mr. Andrews also argued that a split in the system, which was originated by the 1960 General Assembly, would pave the way for future competition among the various institutions for appropriations, and "would cost the state untold millions of dollars."

"It will also encourage the separation of other systems and even more competition for the tax dollar," he said.

"The language in the bill insinuates that we are trying to fire everyone at William and Mary," Mr. Andrews went on. "It's very insulting. Let us have the powers invested in other college boards," he added, "or we will have a hard time finding responsible persons to serve on it."

Another board member, J. B. Woodward Jr., pointed out that the present system had not received a thorough test and asked for its continuance for at least two years.

WINNING POSTER—This design by graduate Fine Arts student Thomas Teague has been selected for two awards in competition at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts. Teague, who is a North Carolinian, made the poster for "The Menaechmi," RPI's second major production presented in early December.

Mid-Winters Dance Scheduled For February 17 in Mosque

The Mid-Winters formal dance will be held at the Mosque from 9 p.m. to midnight, February 17, according to Margaret Zeigler, Junior class president.

Music will be provided by the Warren Covington Band. The dance's theme is a Latin-American one, "La Fiesta del Invierno."

Guest bids may be obtained from an SGA representative in the Rotunda for a one-week period before the dance.

A concert by Covington will be held in the gym from 5 to 7 p.m. before the dance. Price of admission to the informal concert will be $1.

Rebels Hold Two-Game Lead Over Hasbeens in Intramural

By Bill Jamerson

As the RPI intramural league heads into the stretch, the undefeated Rebels hold a commanding two-game lead over the second-place Hastings' Hasbeens. The Rebels had compiled a 8-0 record as of Monday. The Rebels played the Hasbeens Wednesday.

In the feature game Monday, the Hasbeens brought their record to 6-2, as they defeated the third place Lafayette dormitory team, 33-31. The Hasbeens, although they led for most of the contest, had to fight off a spirited Lafayette rally to win. The loss dropped Lafayette into fourth place and reduced its record to five wins and four losses.

In the late game Monday, the 712 W. Franklin st. dormitory moved into third place on the strength of a 38-27 win over Ohio State. Frank Williams paced the winners with 15 points, while Marvin Russell led Ohio State with 13 points. The victory left 712 with a 5-3 record.

The schedule for next week is as follows: Monday, at 4 p.m., 712 will play the winless New Vets, at 5 p.m., the S.O.T.S. will play Hasings. Tuesday, at 3:50 p.m., the Rebels will play 712. Wednesday, at 4 p.m., Ohio State will play the S.O.T.S.; at 5 p.m., Hastings will play 712. Thursday, at 3:50 p.m., Lafayette will play the Rebels.

Green Devils on Road, Play Jackets Tomorrow

RPI's basketball team will begin a four-game road trip tomorrow night when it visits Ashland to play the powerful Yellow-Jackets of Randolph-Macon.

The Devils will play Roanoke on Monday, Southeastern on Friday and Hampden-Sydney next Tuesday—all on the road.

The Yellow-Jacket were at the top of the Little Eight standings Monday and they had one of the best over-all records in the state.

The Green Devils posted their first Little Eight win of the year Saturday night as they downed Bridgewater's Eagles, 77-63. The Green Devils over-all record now stands at 5-10.

The Green Devils win over Bridgewater was sweet revenge, because the Eagle had previously handed the Devils their worst beating of the year (116-70) at Bridgewater.

The Bridgewater RPI game was a nip-and-tuck affair. Bridgewater led, 34-32, at halftime, and the game was close throughout the second half.

Bobby Muse and captain Jimmy Jones threw in 57 points between them in the Green Devils' win. Muse, who is averaging more than 22 points a game, threw in 39 points and Jones added 18.

The total was Muse's highest output of the year. Going into the contest, Muse was second to Bill Hardin of Hampden-Sydney in the state scoring race.

On Monday night, the Green Devils made their first road trip since December 11 as they travelled to Norfolk to play Norfolk William & Mary.

The Monarchs, who had previously defeated the Devils (77-74) in the last game before exams, again defeated the Green Devils—this time by 74-61.

The Devils got off to a slow start as the Monarchs ran up seven points before the Green Devils could score. During the opening minutes of the game, the Devils shooting was cold. After the first five minutes, however, the Devils shooting picked up, and they trailed by only six points at half time.

The Devils narrowed the gap to three as the second half opened, but they could never get any closer.

The Monarchs built up a 12 to 14 point lead with 12 minutes to play and maintained this advantage throughout the rest of the game.

Bobby Muse was the Devils only effective scorer as he tallied 21. No other Green Devil scored in double figures.

The Devils squad has been reduced to nine players. Sonny Taylor, Ernie Wilkerson and Talmadge Alphin have left the team. Taylor and Wilkerson saw considerable action for the Devils.

Professor Snelling To Return March 1

Professor J. Marshall Snelling, assistant professor of Sociology, is expected to return to RPI on March 1, following an illness which prevented his teaching classes since before the Christmas holidays.

Outlay Budget

$1 Million Increase Asked by Dr. Oliver

President Oliver asked a joint committee of the General Assembly last week for a million dollar increase in the RPI 1962-64 budget, as recommended by the Governor.

"I requested that former Governor Almond's reduction in maintenance and operation be restored and that there be some increase in the capital outlay appropriations," Dr. Oliver said.

He appeared with representatives of the University of Virginia and the Colleges of William and Mary before a joint hearing of the House and Senate budget-makers last Wednesday. At the end of the day-long hearings, about 17 million dollars had been requested to supplement the 78-million-dollar general fund budget proposed by former Governor Almond.

Dr. Oliver told the legislators that much of the extra million dollar appropriation is needed for completion of the Hibbs Building and for remodeling and enlarging the cafeteria. The remainder would be used to meet increased teaching costs, he said.

Items Previously Approved

Both items, Dr. Oliver said, had been approved by the Commission on Capital Outlay for the RPI 1964-66 budget and he asked to move them ahead to 1962-64.

The present enrollment—of more than 4,300 students—necessitates doubling the cafeteria seating capacity to 600, he said. To complete the Hibbs Building as originally planned would involve an appropriation of $564,000.

The budget bill is still being considered by the two committees—the House Committee on Appropriations and the Senate Committee on Finance. The General Assembly is not expected to complete action on the budget until just before its adjournment in the second week of March.

seek to establish a spirit of unity among all students attending the Richmond Professional Institute," and "To seek by all honorable methods the establishment of fraternities and sororities at the Richmond Professional Institute."

As the organization is defined, its purpose would not be defeated by a negative vote at the referendum, Powell said. Neither would it be defeated if there were a positive vote and the administration failed to approve the proposal. The club will continue to be active as an organization to promote school spirit, Powell said.

If students do favor fraternal and social organizations in the referendum, and if the administration takes measures to establish these organizations, the future of the club would be decided by its members, Powell said.

Also according to the constitution, any student who subscribes to the purposes of the club may join. Club dues, the amount of which will be determined by the organization's executive council, will be announced at the first meeting of each school year.

The officers elected Monday night will serve until May of 1963. Thereafter, officers will be elected each May.

scribes to the system, and if anyone should violate a part or parts of the code, he will be punished by dishonorable dismissal from college.

The memo also calls students' attention to two house rules. One of these states that students who have permission to live off campus must not entertain persons of the opposite sex in the households or apartments where they live.

This rule does not apply to day students living with their parents, Dean Pendleton said. "Mainly, we are opposed to unchaperoned parties," he said.

The other house rule discussed in the memo states that one dormitory student may not enter the room of another while the resident is not there. The memo states: "As a result of the recent thefts in a dormitory, any person who violates this rule automatically placed under criminal suspicion and should be reported directly to the dean of students."

No steps have been taken to see that these rules will be more stringently enforced, Dean Pendleton said. "We just want to make sure that no one is hanged due to ignorance of the law, he said."

Sophs Plan 'Shout Party' Next Friday

Shout Party II has been scheduled by the Sophomore class for next Friday in the Gymnasium.

It will kick off the Mid-Winters week end. The dance is a sequel to Shout Party I, an activity the class sponsored earlier for the Student Government Association Scholarship Drive.

At a recent class meeting, the class also chose its sweetheart candidates for the May Court, selected their booth for the May Carnival and voted to sponsor parties in March and April.

From the ten persons nominated, a sweetheart and two attendants will be chosen by a faculty committee. Nominees are Shirley Critzer, Deedee Knox, Sue Clotzman, Pat Tracy, Kathy Trainor, Susan Van Pool, Joy Bennett, Karen Belding, Jean Caseino and Helen Mitchell.

The booth for the May Carnival will be a jail. This booth used last year, has a 10-cent charge to put a person in jail and another dime to get him out.

The class voted to hold the activities in March and April after hearing complaints that there were not enough activities on campus.

Student Directories are on sale by officers and members of the Phi Beta Lambda for 35 cents each.

Business School Plans Economics Workshop

The School of Business will co-sponsor a workshop in teaching economic concepts here Wednesday.

The workshop, also sponsored by the business education service of the State Department of Education, is designed to answer a need for increased understanding of the United States' economic system. The workshop is one of several being held in the state.

Approximately 50 Richmond area high school instructors and many Richmond area business and professional men are expected to attend the workshop.

At the opening session, the group will be addressed by Dr. Harlan Miller, director of the education division of the Institute of Life Insurance, and Mr. Robert Gibson, executive secretary of the National Committee for Education in Family Finance.

Dr. Miller will speak on "Characteristics of the American Economy" and Mr. Gibson on "Problems of Curriculum planning and Programming," at this session, which will start at 4:30 p.m.

At the evening session, beginning at 7 p.m., Dr. William A. Sandridge, professor of economics at Roanoke College, will discuss "Methods and Materials for Teaching Basic Business and Economics."

Presiding at the two sessions will be Dr. Woody L. Tucker and Dr. Dorothy Lee, faculty members of the School of Business.
