

Campus Politicians Give Presidential Preferences

Barry Morris Goldwater

By C. L. Sigman

Young Republicans President

Barry Goldwater should be elected on November 3 because he believes in:

- A Limited Federal Government. Republicans believe in adherence to the Constitution with its system of checks and balances and a closer control of federal authority.

- Fiscal Integrity. Republicans believe that there should be the same sense of fiscal responsibility and integrity in running a government as in running a business or a home.

- A Strong Foreign Policy. The Republican party, dedicated to world peace, takes a firmer stand than the Democrats in dealing with international communism. We call for a more defined foreign policy, a deeper sense of responsibility in the efficient use of taxpayers' dollars in foreign aid.

We need a man who will return the United States to the ideals of constitutional government quietly ignored by this administration. We need a man who will put an end to the "wheeling-and-dealing" policies of Lyndon Baines Johnson and his friends, Bobby Baker and Billie Sol Estes.

We need a man with a realistic approach to the problems of unemployment and poverty, not the wild liberal solutions first instigated in the 1930's. They didn't work then and they won't work for Lyndon Johnson.

You know in your heart that he is right. Vote for Barry Goldwater.

Lyndon Baines Johnson

By Barry Scher

Young Democrats President

It has almost been a full year since the United States lost one of its greatest leaders, yet there is one thing I remember distinctly, the first words of the new President, "Let us continue. . . ."

This message stayed with me, as well as with the American people. Not only has President Johnson continued on with the political views of the American people, but with a calm and deep assurance that his power is the power of the American people—a strictly peace power!

President Johnson and the Democratic Party stand for labor and business, for national unity, for the leadership and responsibility that the people want and shall have in November.

The Democratic platform promises "full observance" of civil rights, "strictest economy" in federal spending, further tax reductions, permit "no compromise with the principles of absolute honesty. . . ." condemnation of extremism, to strengthen ties with allies, to keep control of nuclear weapons solely in the hands of the president, "never again settle for second place" in the space race and much more.

The American presidency is not for a man of pretension, but for a man who wants to go forward with an end to poverty, equal opportunity to man and keeping a society with freedom as a foundation. . . why don't you follow his direction?

Students Have Say In Vote Today

Students will vote today in the Proscript mock presidential election.

The straw ballot, printed on this page, should be clipped out of the paper, marked and placed in one of the ballot boxes in the Rotunda, the Cafeteria or in the lobby of the Administration building.

Motion Passes; Senate Takes Test

The Student Government Association Senate passed a motion Monday night allowing the Rules Committee to revise certain parts of the SGA constitution in compliance with new regulations drawn up by the Dance club.

Senate members also were tested on the SGA constitution. All of the senators passed the test.

Ballot boxes will be collected at 5 p.m. today. No ballots will be accepted after that time.

Results will be announced in next week's Proscript, which is sponsoring the poll.

Rick Harrison, Proscript managing editor, said the poll is an attempt to find out the presidential preference of students.

Voters will make their choice between Democrats Lyndon Baines Johnson and Hubert Humphrey and Republicans Barry Morris Goldwater and William Miller. Write-in candidates are permitted.

Ballots should be marked with an "X" in the appropriate box opposite the names of the candidates of the student's choice. Improperly marked ballots will not be figured in the total count.

The state of Virginia has voted as students here have voted in the past five presidential elections, excluding 1948 when no poll was made here.

Virginians voted as did RPI students in selecting the Republican tickets in 1960, 1956, 1952 and the Democratic ticket in 1944.

In the 1960 presidential race between Democrat John F. Kennedy and Republican Richard M. Nixon, Nixon garnered 190 of the votes cast and Kennedy, 133. The Conservative party's C. Benton Coier received 10 votes.

Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican, got 59 votes; Adlai E. Stevenson, Democrat, got 10 votes.

750 Attend

Homecoming 'Successful,' Says Alumni President

The "most successful" Homecoming RPI has ever had attracted more than 750 alumni and their families to the 13th annual get-together Friday and Saturday, according to G. William Norris, Alumni Association president.

Dr. Oliver told the alumni at a business meeting following a luncheon that RPI should grow from its present enrollment of 6,000 to approximately 15,000 in the next ten years.

Among the highlights of the week-end affair were the presentation given by Basil Rathbone Friday night in the gymnasium, the departmental breakfast Saturday morning, the Homecoming luncheon and the dinner-dance in the John Marshall Hotel Saturday night.

Homecoming Chairman Samuel H. Guza, also feeling this the most successful homecoming in the school's history, said, "Saturday night's dance had an attendance of about 260, which is about two or three times the attendance in previous years."

"We hope that future graduating classes will continue this interest to help make RPI's Alumni Association the type of organization the school needs," he said.

During the final alumni session of the two-day Homecoming week end, the Alumni Association elected new officers.

Norris, a 1952 graduate from Richmond was re-elected president, and Guza, a 1963 graduate, also from Richmond, was chosen as vice-president. Miss Moseetta Sykes was elected treasurer, and Mrs. Diane Brewington was made secretary. Both are from Richmond.

Officers of the Richmond chapter of the Alumni Association also were elected. They are President Philip G. McKown, Vice-President William Chorney, Secretary Mrs. Blanche Morris and Treasurer Kenneth L. Younger. All officers of the Richmond Association are also residents of the city.

City Mayor Praises Growth of College

The Honorable Morrill M. Crowe, Richmond's mayor, told an alumni gathering the State of Virginia, as well as the City of Richmond, is beginning to recognize the importance of RPI as an educational institution.

"RPI is a school founded against great adversity. From extremely modest beginnings with only 31 students and one faculty member, you have grown to an institution of more than 3,000 day students," Mayor Crowe said, speaking to more than 200 alumni and their families at a Homecoming luncheon in the gymnasium Saturday.

"We are well aware that much of that growth has come without outside support," he said.

Introduced by Dr. Oliver as a "friend of RPI," Mayor Crowe said he was aware of the charge laid on him, but he asked alumni to be tolerant and to recognize the difficulty of his position—particularly his financial position.

He said RPI's financial problems were common to many other colleges and the City of Richmond. Mayor Crowe cited a $2 million difference in expenditures and revenue in Richmond for last

Follow A Leader

Campaign buttons, posters, slogans, rallies and a vast array of politically-oriented material is indicative of what has become almost a way of life here recently.

The ever-present, voiced or unvoiced, national question "Who do you support for President?" is heard frequently.

Results of a mock presidential election being held today by the Proscript and a student opinion poll, both of which will appear in next week's paper, will attempt to reflect the students' sentiments to their campus colleagues.

How well do you know your candidates and the major issues?

Barry M. Goldwater, the 55-year-old Republican nominee for President, has served in the United States Senate since 1953. The native Arizonian is the senior Republican on the Labor and Public Welfare Committee, member of the Armed Services Committee and its Preparedness Subcommittee and served three terms as chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee. He began his political career in 1949 as a member of the City Council of Phoenix.

The Senator attended public schools in Phoenix and Staunton Military Academy in Virginia. He also attended the University of Arizona for one year.

Goldwater is married to the former Margaret Johnson. They have four children and four grandchildren. The Goldwaters are Episcopalians.

President Lyndon B. Johnson, 56, entered Congress in 1937 and became a senator in 1948. He was elected minority leader of the Senate in 1953 and majority leader in 1955, the youngest man ever to hold this position.

Mr. Johnson has served as chairman of the National Aeronautics and Space Council, of the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity and of the Peace Corps Advisory Council and as a member of the National Security Council. He was a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Chairman of the Preparedness Subcommittee and a member of the Appropriation Committee.

In 1964, President Johnson is credited with the passage of the tax cut bill, increased federal support for education, decrease in Federal budget, anti-poverty bill and passage of the Civil Rights Act.

Mr. Johnson is a graduate of Southwest State Teachers College in San Marcos, Texas. He and his wife, the former Claudia Taylor, have two daughters. The Johnsons are Episcopalians.

"The major objective of U. S. foreign policy should be the reduction of Communist power to a level from which it cannot threaten the security of our Nation or the peace of the world," Goldwater says. The Republicans call for a much better defined foreign policy and feel a deep sense of responsibility in the efficient use of taxpayers' dollars in foreign aid.

On Civil Rights, Goldwater says, "We must always make a sharp distinction between civil rights guaranteed under the Constitution and those rights of association that are basically moral issues and can not be resolved simply by passing Federal laws. Continued public attention and moral persuasion will do more, I believe, to create the good will necessary to the acceptance of decent and enduring racial relations throughout our free society."

Mr. Johnson backs a liberal interpretation of the Constitution with a strong federal government. Passage of the Civil Rights Act is noted as one of the high points of the present year.

Masaaki Okada Left Japan; Education Brought Him to US

Masaaki Okada, a junior in Commercial Art, left Hamamastu, Japan to come to America to study five years ago.

Okada, known as "Mac", attended Hamamastu Technical High School in Japan. For opportunity and educational reasons he went to Virginia Beach, where he lives with an aunt and uncle. There he entered Virginia Beach High School to study English for two years.

"I feel coming to RPI is the best thing that ever happened to me," says Okada.

"It is a good school in which to study art," he said. He wants to follow the Commercial Art field in some aspect, possibly photography.

Okada is very interested in all sports and is particularly intrigued with American football.

"Although I have never played the game, I follow it and know the rules."

Knows Judo Rules

He also knows the rules of Judo, in which he has a Black Belt; however, he is quick to explain modestly. "It is only in the lower level." Mac has also climbed Fujiama, one of the highest mountains in Japan, several times.

The Commercial Art major regrets he has not had the time to see more of the United States but plans sometime to travel across the country and see most of the states.

Through the years Okada has become used to the American way of life and as he says he sees both the good and the bad. He feels Americans "Have many more things to do and have more interests than the people in Japan, which makes them more broad-minded."

He loves talking to people and lists conversation as one of his hobbies.

He likes music—all kinds of it—and likes the Beatles, because he feels "they are honest in their approach to the public."

"Hi, hi, hi," he sings, which, as everyone knows, means, "Yeah, yeah, yeah," in Japanese.

School Rings Will Be Sold; Two-Year Ring Originates

School rings may be ordered October 26-30 in the Rotunda, Howard Koch, Junior Retailing major from Richmond and chairman of the Ring Committee, announced this week.

Rings should arrive the second week of January.

In previous years two-year certificate students could not buy a ring because a student had to be a first semester Junior to be eligible to buy one. This year, however, a ring has been designed for sale to two-year certificate students only.

Decides All Matters

The ring committee, which decides all matters concerning the school ring, has seven members: Senior Advisor Crawford Hamersley, Distribution, Norfolk; Chairman Howard Koch; Treasurer John Welch, Junior, Technology, Charlottesville; Barry Steinburg, Junior, Social Science, Richmond; Secretary Andrea Respass, Sophomore, Distribution, Grimsstead, and Sophomore Linda Weaver, Interior Design, Roanoke.

A Freshman will be chosen from names given to the Ring Committee by the Student Advisory Board in order to complete the membership.

Any student who has not had his picture taken for the Cobblestone should report to the second floor rear of the Student Center next week from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Only 1,200 out of 3,200 students have had their photographs made by the beginning of this week. This number is far below the quota of 2,000 desired for publication, according to Business Manager Barbara Pollack, Senior, Accounting, Falls Church.

School of Distribution Reschedules Program

The School of Distribution again is co-ordinating the Co-operative Distribution Program.

This program provides classroom training as well as practical work experience in retailing, wholesaling and service occupations. Retail businesses in Richmond such as J. C. Penney, Miller and Rhoads, A & P and G. C. Murphy are co-operating.

Under this plan students follow a class a class schedule and work from 15 to 25 hours a week. Typical earnings for a student range between $500 and $800 for the school year.

Trimester Program

Another plan, the Trimester Co-operative Distribution Program, was initiated during the 1963-64 college year.

The major difference in the two programs is that the Trimester student would receive full-time work experience from September through December, instead of part-time experience from September through May and would be required to attend two summer sessions.

Current retailing practices classes will hear lectures by two business leaders in the Richmond area next week.

Mr. Jeff Smith from the Retail Merchants Association will speak on October 28 on "Human Relations in the Association."

A 1958 graduate of the Retailing Department will speak on October 29. Mr. William Schier, merchandise manager of the J. C. Penney store in Southside Plaza, will lecture on "What Makes Penney's Tick."

Wrestling Squad To Be Stronger; Coach Magill Sights Team Potential

"There's no place to go but up." Those were the words of Coach Dave Magill as he met his varsity wrestling squad on Monday for their first practice.

"It's too early to tell yet, but I think we'll have an improved team over last year," said Coach Magill.

Last season the Rams wrestling team—in its first year of competition—finished with a 1-9 record.

"Our boys last year were not experienced," said Coach Magill. "Willie (Hatcher) was the only person who had had any wrestling experience in high school."

Hatcher, a part-time student from Richmond compiled a 9-0 ledger in his 137 lb. weight class.

"He should do even better this year," added Coach Magill.

"Also Charlie Hall in heavyweight is going to be tough this year."

Hall, Senior, Physical Education, Richmond, recorded a 4-5 record last season.

Also coming out for practice this week was Senior George Armtrout, Jr., Business Management, Richmond, 177 lb. weight class.

Basil Rathbone Says Luck Speeded His Acting Career

Basil Rathbone in his Friday night presentation of "In and Out of Character" attributed his acting success to hard work and "Lady Luck."

Illuminated by six spot lights hung from the steel rafters of the gymnasium, Rathbone spoke to a capacity audience composed of alumni, students and Richmond citizens.

Rathbone acknowledged luck as a prime factor in achieving success quickly. He cited as an example of this luck when he hiccuped through "Othello" and still received excellent reviews.

"One reviewer even said I showed great skill and imagination by portraying Iago drunk," said Rathbone.

"Two things have inspired me," said Rathbone, "the works of William Shakespeare and the world of music."

Rathbone believes "Shakespeare should not be 'taught' in school. His plays should be performed. They are to be heard and understood, not glanced over and misinterpreted."

He also believes poems should be heard—not just read—in order to really appreciate the essence of the work.

Rathbone said he deplored the lack of professional talent teaching and directing students in their college dramatic pursuits.

"They can be taught music by a professional musician, so why don't colleges hire actors who are not working to help bring high-standard live theater into the students' lives? The influence of a theatrical personality would be tremendous," he said.

The works of Poe, Browning, Shelley and Shakespeare were among those included by Rathbone in being able to endure the centuries.

"It seems to me that the enduring plays and literary works are all those that have an underlying universality, works that have very definite built-in parallels to current problems, experience and feelings," said Rathbone.

Rathbone also pointed out that all actors have different opinions of Shakespeare's characters and even of the plays themselves.

For example, Rathbone views "Macbeth" as a love story. "It is a question, though, if it is a sacred or profane love. I think it is a story of the power of a woman's physical charms. She could make him do anything by denying him conjugal love," said Rathbone.

He sees "Othello" as a "great tragedy of stupidity."

Following Rathbone's presentation of "In and Out of Character," the British actor met with students at Founder's Hall and talked with them for about an hour.

"Without exception college students are curious, intelligent, stimulating and challenging. They're not afraid to speak up and they have something to talk about," the English actor said.

year which "will be made up."

"Vagueness and uncertainty in the city's efforts to annex much of Henrico County is another factor contributing to the city's financial problems.

"We City Council members, elected in July, came into office with a total commitment to improve education. We hope to deliver that total commitment. But a City Council can stay only a little ahead of a community. It cannot move far ahead without the help of the entire community," the Mayor said.

Mayor Crowe praised the college for its effort in bringing Basil Rathbone here for Homecoming.

"I have been to many homecomings, and you don't often get anything for your head, only a headache. Nothing spiritual, only plenty of spirits," he said.

Mayor Crowe likened the efforts of instructors with Michelangelo's painting of the Sistine ceiling—God reaching out with His fingers to touch life into man—saying that instructors here reach out and touch the spark of intellect into man.

Eisenhower "won a landslide victory" in 1952 over Stevenson in a poll sponsored by the American Collegiate Press Association and the Proscript.

There was no student poll in 1948.

Students and the state of Virginia went Democratic in 1944 with 239 students polling for Franklin D. Roosevelt, 90 voting for Thomas E. Dewey, Republican, and one vote for Socialist Norman Thomas.

In 1940, one year after the Proscript was originated, no student poll was conducted, but Virginians voted a third time for Democratic Franklin D. Roosevelt.
