

Dean Says Honor Code Might Fail

By Sandra Beale
Proscript Editor

The Honor Code seems to be in danger of failing, Richard E. MacDougall, dean of men and advisor to the Honor Court, told the Proscript this week. He disclosed that he has made his views known to the Honor Court.

"It is not working, so maybe it needs to be changed," Dean MacDougall said. "It is not working insofar as it is not foremost in students' minds."

"Students are not continually aware of the existence of the Code. During the past two years it has not been brought to their attention enough."

Dean MacDougall said he had discussed the problem with Honor Court members and that they would meet to discuss it. He pointed out that two years ago a revision of the honor system concentrated on revising the Honor Court rather than the content of the Code.

"The Court needs to promote and educate the students in regard to the Code," the dean said. "If something isn't done and students continue to have little regard for it, the Honor Code will fade away and will have to be replaced by something else."

"If we do away with it, then we admit that the Honor Code and its principles no longer apply," he said.

Dean MacDougall stated that there is concern in many colleges throughout the country over honor systems. "Many colleges are scrapping their systems," he said. "Virginia is recognized nationally as a stronghold for effective honor systems," he added. He referred to the University of Virginia, Washington and Lee University and Virginia Military Institute.

The dean asserted that increased enrollment at RPI has played a large role in the present position of the Honor Code. He said he (Continued on Page 4)

Junior Retailing Major Anne Grimm Smiles
She's Rapidly Developing a Taste for Apples

Anne Grimm Is Named Festival Representative

By Randolph Goode

Even an apple a day won't keep Anne Grimm away.

Anne, a Junior Retailing major from Hagerstown, Md., will represent the college at the 38th annual Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival in Winchester April 28 through May 1.

Anne will be a princess in the court of Queen Shenandoah XXXVIII.

She was selected Friday by a committee composed of the student personnel deans and the president and vice president of the Student Government Association.

Libby Peden, a Senior Retailing major from Charleston, W. Va. was runner-up.

They were selected from a slate of 10 upperclass coeds nominated by the SGA Senate, composed of the four class presidents and senators.

"Although I don't know my duties yet, I'm very excited about going to Winchester. I'm looking forward to talking to other girls about their colleges and also telling them about RPI and what it can offer a student in the way of an education," Anne said.

Anne said many students at other colleges in the state have a misconception of RPI.

The Honor Court announces that in case No. 6 a student has been found guilty of an infraction of the Honor Code. The offense was cheating on a final examination. The student was given an "F" in the course and suspended from school.

SGA Proposes Amendments; Bowers Quits

The Student Government Association House has proposed changes to the SGA constitution concerning grades, and Paul Bowers resigned as SGA treasurer this week.

Bill Ingram, chairman of the SGA Rules Committee, said his committee met this week and decided to change the wording of Item 4, Section 7, Article 6 of the SGA By-Laws after the House last week raised the question of grades concerning SGA officers, class officers and members of the SGA House.

Ingram said the revised Article, when voted upon in two weeks, will read, "A person must maintain a 'C' average on current work while holding an SGA office, class office or while a member of the SGA House."

"This eliminates the statement of all officers and clubs as previously stated and is more specific in wording," Ingram said.

A motion made in the House last week stated "That a person must (Continued on Page 2)

Mid-Winters Called 'Feast for Immortals'

By Diane Pioro

The look of the ancients will be combined with the sound of the moderns at "Winter Dionysia" next week end. Junior class President Paulette McCall describes the event as "a feast for immortals."

The annual Mid-Winter dance theme, to be carried out in Greek style, was derived from Greek festivals in honor of Dionysus, the god of wine and lusty living.

The doors of the Mosque ballroom will open at 8:30 p.m. Saturday, February 17, to reveal an indoor scene, where the banquet tables will be placed, and an outdoor scene with archway and snow-laden Greek columns. A Parthenon-like temple will serve as the bandstand.

Paulette said this year's decorations, refreshments, and the way food will be served are unusual and quite different, but she would not disclose anything further about them.

Price Band to Play

The modern sound will be provided by Lloyd Price and his orchestra, featuring Slide Hampton as director and Erma Franklin as vocalist.

Price, known as a trumpeter, vocalist, and composer, began his career at 14 with a five-piece combo. Soon after, he made his first record, "Lawdy, Miss Clawdy," a million seller.

After service in the army, entertaining soldiers in Korea, Price returned to form his band and to re- (Continued on Page 4)

Registrar Says 76 Students On Dean's List

Seventy-six students are on the Dean's List for the fall semester, the Registrar's office announced this week.

This is an increase of 23 compared with last year's list.

To be eligible for the Dean's List, a student must have a 2.5 academic average with no grade below a "C" and carry a minimum load of 15 credits.

Led Three Lives

Communist 'Spy' Will Speak Friday

The Man Who Led Three Lives will tell about his roles as a Communist agent, Federal Bureau of Investigation counterspy and American citizen at 8:30 p.m. next Friday in the gymnasium.

Herbert A. Philbrick, who devoted nine years of his life working underground within the ranks of the Communists, will explain why he left a career as advertising executive in 1940 to become a counterspy for the FBI.

Tickets for the lecture, sponsored by the Student Activities Lecture series, are available to students and faculty at the Student Personnel Office without charge.

Tickets also are available to the general public for $1.50.

Philbrick worked under the direction of the FBI as a Communist.

Masquerading as a Communist, Philbrick risked the chance of being detected by both Communist and American authorities as a subversive. In such a case, he could have expected no help from the FBI.

Through his lectures Philbrick hopes to alert Americans all over the country to the methods and techniques of Communist infiltration in innocent organizations involving innocent citizens.

Philbrick has written two books about his experiences—"The Queer Fish" and "I Led Three Lives." His syndicated newspaper column, "The Red Underground," has often exposed Communist secrets.

Food for Thought

"So are they all, all honourable men. . ."

The question of honor codes is a problem shared by many colleges across the nation.

An article which appeared in the February 5, 1965 issue of "Life" magazine revealed some startling statistics resulting from the most comprehensive study ever made of cheating among college students. The study was published recently by the Bureau of Applied Research at Columbia University.

Five thousand students from 99 colleges and universities were questioned in confidence.

The following information formed part of the report:

- Nearly half of the students questioned admitted they had engaged in some form of cheating since entering college.

- Cheating is more prevalent at large schools than at small schools and occurs more commonly in large classes than in small ones.

- The highest proportion of cheaters (68 per cent) is found among mediocre students who treat grades lightly themselves but who are under great pressure from their parents to get good grades. Students with poor grades tend to cheat more often than better students. Among those who admitted cheating, 57 per cent had average grades of C-minus or lower. However, 37 per cent of the "A" students polled admitted cheating at some point in college.

- The stricter the classroom rules against cheating—a teacher constantly watching, assigning seats, staggering seats, refusing permission to leave the room, etc.—the more students are likely to cheat.

- Cheating occurs most often on tests using multiple-choice or true and false questions, least often when essay-type questions are used. It is most prevalent in courses where frequent tests are given and where the standardized tests are given year after year or to different classes in the same year.

- Cheating has a direct relationship to study habits. Only 42 per cent of the students who study for 30 hours or more per week admitted to cheating. Among the cheaters 57 per cent study only 19 hours a week or less.

- Students in career-oriented fields like business and engineering are more likely to cheat than students majoring in history, the humanities or language. In between are student specializing in the sciences or the arts.

- The social life of the students has a bearing on their tendency to cheat. Only 41 per cent of the students who said they did not play cards or watch TV wound up in the cheating category, while 56 per cent of those who spend five or more hours a week in these pursuits admitted to cheating. Students who date regularly cheat more than those who do not.

- Ninety per cent of the students—including many who admit to cheating—said they are opposed to the practice on moral grounds. Over half of the students—again including some cheaters—believe it is far worse to cheat than to report another student for cheating. Of those who hold this view, 16 per cent would report even a close friend to the authorities if they caught him cheating, and 51 per cent said they would either ignore a friend or turn him down if he asked for help during an exam.

- Cheating is most prevalent at schools which try to control it by a joint student-faculty system of monitoring. It is slightly less common at schools where the faculty alone tries to cope with the problem. And it occurs far less often at colleges with an honor system, in which the students themselves do the policing and enforcing.

Social Work Exams To Be Given Here

The Merit System Council of Virginia will conduct entrance exams for beginning social workers at 9:30 a.m., March 13, in Hibbs 303.

February graduates or Seniors who will finish in June or in summer school also are eligible but are required to file two copies of the application form by February 28.

Forms may be obtained from Mrs. Lois Washer, chairman of the School of Applied Social Science, in Hibbs 304.

Graduate Director To Attend Meeting

Dr. George Kalif, director of the graduate School of Social Work, will attend a meeting of the Virginia Mental Health Study Commission February 26-27 in Arlington.

Dr. Kalif, chairman of the committee on personnel, training, and research, said the commission "... was appointed by the governor to make a study of mental health resources and needs in Virginia and to make recommendations on its findings."

The commission is financed by a grant of the National Institute of Mental Health.

Music Professor To Present Recital

Voney Sheppard, professor of Music, will present a faculty piano recital, 3 p.m., February 28.

Music from Soler, Beethoven, Chopin and Brahms will be mixed with the contemporary music of John Ireland and Beryl Rubinstein.

The recital will be at the Woman's Club Auditorium, 211 E. Franklin St. There will be no admission charge.

School of Business Adds New Teacher

Jerry T. Ferguson has been added to the School of Business faculty. Mr. Ferguson obtained a B.S. and M.S. in Business Administration at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Mr. Ferguson was previously an instructor at the National Business College in Roanoke.

Add-Drop Ends Today

Today is the last day for students to add or drop a class without special permission and payment of a fee of $3.

Applications Due

All students who will be candidates for certificates in June or at the end of Summer School must file an application for a certificate by March 1.

Former Chairman Dies at Age of 74

Mrs. Lois Washer, chairman of the School of Applied Social Science, announced this week the death of Dr. Alice Davis, a former faculty member.

Dr. Davis died February 6 in West Gloucester, Mass., at the age of 74. She retired in June, 1961, from her 20-year chairmanship of the Sociology department.

Mrs. Washer said that faculty and students may send any messages to Dr. Davis' life-long friend, also a former Sociology teacher, Madame Nadia Danielevsky, at Tolstoy Farm, Valley Cottage, N. Y., 10789.

maintain a 'C' average at all times and the person must report to the SGA when his or her grades fall below that average. Failure to do so will be an infraction of the Honor Code."

The motion was tabled to the Rules Committee.

In other action, Bowers' resignation was submitted to the Senate Monday and accepted. He resigned "for personal reasons."

Nominated by the House to succeed Bowers were Sophomores Lewis Clayton, Engineering Technology, Richmond; Dennis Carey, Distribution, Richmond; Kay Moffat, Occupational Therapy, Alexandria, and Becky Schwab, Distribution, Arlington. The House will vote on these names next week.

The House and Senate also passed motions concerning the snack bar in the Student Center.

SGA President Tony Woodford was asked to contact Mr. Bigger, manager of the Slater Food System, with the suggestion that the kitchen in the Student Center be cleaned with regularity.

Another motion suggested that a menu with a larger variety be provided in the snack bar and that the hours of the snack bar be extended until 8:30 p.m. on Sundays.

Yearbook Sets March 12 Deadline

Barbara Pollock, Cobblestone business manager, announced this week the last major deadline for the college yearbook will be March 12.

She said everything was going according to schedule and the annual will definitely be ready for distribution by the end of May.

"I love it here; and if I had to start college all over again, I would still come here," she said.

Anne likes swimming and dancing. Sewing, drama ("anything but Shakespeare"), music ("not the Beatles"), and art ("all forms") occupy a great deal of her spare time.

After graduation she hopes to go into fashion work with a department store in Philadelphia.

"I really love that city."

Anne said she would love to travel for about a year. "A year in Paris would be great."

Her escort at the apple fete probably will be Naval Academy Midshipman Gary Newkirk to whom she is pinned.

"I hope he can make it," Anne confided.

Anne is president of Meredith House and a member of Alpha Delta Rho.

She also is rapidly developing a taste for apples.

Circle K to Sell Dance Flowers

Circle K International today and Monday through Wednesday will be selling flowers for Mid-Winters in a booth in the Rotunda and through individual members.

There will be a choice of five corsages: three carnations, $3.50; five carnations, $5; five baby roses, $5; two orchids, $7, and two gardenias, $7. Rose or carnation boutonnieres will be sold for 50 cents each.

Job Interviewers Schedule Meetings For Next Week

The Office of Development has scheduled several interview sessions for February and March.

The U. S. Army will meet with women interested in army careers on Tuesday.

On Thursday, J. P. Ivey & Company will interview interior design graduates.

Additional information about interviews and appointments should be obtained from the Placement Office, room 21 of the Administration Building.

Disaster Hits Rams on Road Trip Games

It was said before the Rams got under way with their basketball campaign this year, and now it is being talked about even more—the success of the RPI team lies in its ability to win road trip games.

Last year the Rams were 2-10 in away contests, and Coach Ed Allen expressed worry over the tough schedule which had the Rams playing only two of their first nine games at home. The team just barely made it through, ending up with a 5-4 record. During the next eight games, only one game—against Newport News Apprentice School—was played away. The Rams won all eight to become the hottest team in Virginia and had the state's longest winning streak of the season.

But once again Coach Allen looked dimly at the end of the Rams' schedule as the last five of the team's six games were to be played on the road.

Last Thursday night the Rams began that long road trip, stopping first in Ashland to play the Randolph-Macon College Yellow Jackets. Coach Paul Webb's crew hadn't lost on their home court in 42 games.

Large Following

Probably the largest aggregation of followers the Rams ever had went to Ashland with the team. Spirited yelling before the game by both sides was only a small offering of what was to come.

The Jackets jumped off to a 3-0 lead on a foul shot by Stan Trimble and a jump shot by Bob Minutella. RPI came back to take a 4-3 lead on lay-ups by C. G. Winston. The lead changed hands several times before Trimble and Minutella gave Randolph-Macon its biggest lead of the evening, 13-9, with 12:20 remaining in the half.

Outscored Hosts

The Rams then proceeded to outscore their hosts, 10-3, in the next five minutes to take a 19-16 advantage. The rest of the half was all defense, as was most of the game, and neither team mounted a lead of more than three points.

The state's leading scorer, Lyn Creech, did not hit a Ram field goal until 16 minutes had elapsed in the opening half.

Mike Farron connected on the last shot of the half with 1:13 left to give the Jackets a 31-29 lead.

Creech and Mel Dunnivant netted baskets at the beginning of the last half to give RPI the lead, which it did not relinquish for the next six minutes. Farron and Irv Sentz put the Jackets on top, 43-41. Creech, John Magill and Dunnivant proceeded to give RPI the biggest lead of the clash, 60-52, with 5:35 remaining to play.

Jackets Regroup

After calling time-out the Jackets regrouped and promptly knotted the score with 2:26 remaining. Long outside shots by RPI's guards missed for the Rams and Sentz hit a long jumper to give the Jackets the lead for good with 2:06 left.

Trailing, 65-63, RPI received possession of the ball when Bob Bombard missed the second of two free throws and Magill came up with the ball with 13 seconds of playing time left.

The Rams never got the shot off and dropped the Little Eight Conference game.

"It really hurts to come so close and then lose the chance like we had," Coach Allen said. "We played a real good defensive ball game as did Randolph-Macon."

"C. G. (Winston) did an excellent job stopping (Irv) Sentz. He (Winston) has really come along since the beginning of the season. He's been doing a whale of a job on offense too."

Winston contributed 14 points

and collected 12 rebounds in a stellar performance.

A tired Ram team next visited Roanoke College of Salem. The contest was tight from the start even though the Maroons held a five-point advantage, 7-2, early in the game. The Rams came back to quickly tie the score and from there to the half neither team could sustain a drive long enough to enjoy a comfortable lead.

Bob Carney hit for 14 points, all outside shots, to break open the Rams zone defense and knot the score on five occasions for Roanoke. Bob Griffin's tip-in with one second remaining gave the Rams a 45-44 lead at the half. C. G. Winston, Mel Dunnivant and Al Blackburn got into early foul trouble with three apiece in the opening moments of the contest.

In the second half the Rams decided to switch to the man-to-man defense and employ the run-run offense. Carney continued to hit from outside while the Rams were connecting underneath on tip-ins and lay-ups.

The Maroons pulled away to a six-point lead with 13:04 left, but baskets by Dunnivant, Lyn Creech and Blackburn knotted the score, 62-62, in a one-minute span.

The two teams hit on the next seven goals in flawless offensive competition before the Maroons missed and Winston connected to give RPI a 78-76 lead with five minutes left.

The state's second leading scorer, John Mongero of the Maroons, drove in a 20-ft. jumper to hand the game to Roanoke. A foul shot by Carney with six seconds to go with anti-climactic as the Rams missed four attempts at the basket.

Winston took the last shot for the Rams with three seconds remaining after he had fallen to the floor in what appeared to be a foul by a Roanoke player. The shot missed and the rebound by Creech with one second left rolled around the basket twice before falling out.

The Rams got back to their winning ways Tuesday night in Lexington by downing Washington and Lee University, 79-71.

Ram Victory

Baskets by Bubba Crone and Mel Dunnivant nixed a second half W & M comeback as the Rams' victory gave the team a 13-6 ledger.

The Rams left yesterday for a three day trip to North Carolina where they will play Pembroke State College tonight and tomorrow night to close the long five game road trip.

"We don't know too much about Pembroke," Coach Allen said, "but they beat Frederick College twice this year so they should be really tough."

The last basketball game of the season will be played against Hampden-Sydney College at 8 Tuesday night in the gymnasium.

RPI's Mike Winchester, (right), Tangles with Indian William and Mary's Sam Smart Won Match on a Pin

Wrestlers Lose Two Matches

The wrestling team lost matches to Hampden-Sydney College, 28-6, and the College of William and Mary, 23-13, during the past week.

After a long holiday break, the wrestlers traveled to Hampden-Sydney last Saturday with hopes of defeating the previously winless Tigers. But the long lay-off proved disastrous as the Rams only victory was a 4-3 decision by Tom O'Brien in the 157 lb. weight class.

On Tuesday night William and Mary visited the Franklin Street Gymnasium. The Indians had an easy time earlier in the season downing the Rams, 28-8, but found the going a little rougher this time.

In the opening match W & M's Sam Smart pinned Mike Winchester with only 12 seconds remaining to give the Indians a 5-0 lead.

In the 130 lb. weight class Lynn Gibson completely dominated his opponent to gain a 11-0 decision and three points for RPI.

After forfeiting the 137 lb. class, the Rams lost two close matches. Butch Cook (147) was pinned with 16 seconds remaining in the third period. Tom O'Brien was in control of his opponent when his match came to a close, but time ran out before O'Brien could overcome the 9-6 lead held by his adversary.

Fromm Pins Lunde

In the 167 lb. class Richard Lunde was pinned in 5:20 by the Indians' Rob Fromm as William and Mary broadened its lead to 23-3.

The Rams picked up five points on a W & M forfeit in the 177 lb. weight class and in the final match the Rams' Charlie Hall pinned John Jacobsen in 1:20 in the heavy-weight division to close the scoring at 23-13.

feels that the Code's position in life here is a part of the sociological problems and the different values of individuals that one encounters at any large school. "From what I have seen, from this office, of students' attitudes toward penalties . . . the majority of students agree that a student caught cheating should not be suspended. Another point of difference with the Honor Code is that of students turning in others for an Honor Code offense. "I am not sitting as a judge against the students here," Dean MacDougall continued. "I know RPI and the problems here and I am concerned with them.

"I believe that the Code is failing in terms of effectiveness, not in theory. We have got to strengthen and review the core of it and make students identify themselves with it." Dean MacDougall said that he had no specific suggestions for rewording the Honor Code. "I don't feel that the Administration can contribute in any way to changes in the Honor Code without changes by the students. If the Administration took the matter in hand, it would become the Administration's Honor Code, not the students'." The dean added: "I believe that the Honor Court discussions will be beneficial."

Mike Boblitz, Dance club chairman, said that in order to avoid confusion the night of Mid-Winters, Dance club members must have picked up tickets beforehand at the Student Center by presenting club cards. Boblitz added that he had 300 extra tickets printed for this purpose.

The Circle K is taking orders for corsages in the Rotunda, and the Occupational Therapy club will take black-and-white, Polaroid pictures at the dance. The pictures will be sold with album folders.

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH

Today I begin my eleventh year of writing this column in your campus newspaper.

I wasn't sure I'd be coming back this year. After a decade of doing this column, I had retreated to my country seat, tired but happy, to enjoy a nice long rest. But last night as I sat on my verandah, peaceful and serene, humming the largo from A Long Day's Night and worming my dog, a stranger suddenly appeared before me.

He was a tall, clean-limbed man, crinkly-eyed and crooked-grinned, stalwart and virile. "How do you do," he said. "My name is Stalwart Virile and I am with the Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blade people."

"Enchanted," I said. "Take off your homburg and sit down." I clapped my hands sharply. "Norman!" I called. "Another chair for Mr. Virile!"

"Another chair for Mr. Virile!"

Obediently my dog trotted away and returned directly with a fanback chair of Malayan rattan. He is the smartest dog in our block.

"I suppose you're wondering why I am here," said Mr. Virile, seating himself.

"Well, sir," I replied, my old eyes twinkling roguishly, "I'll wager you didn't come to read my meter."

"You can imagine how we howled at that one!"

"That's a doozy!" cried Mr. Virile, finally catching his breath. "I must remember to tell it to Alice when I get home."

"Your wife?" I said.

"My father," he said.

"Oh," I said.

"But enough of wit and humor," he said. "Let us get down to business. How would you like to write a campus column for Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blades?"

"For money?" I said.

"Yes," he said.

"My hand, sir," I said and clasped his. Warmly he returned the pressure, and soft smiles played upon our lips, and our eyes were moist with the hint of tears, and we were silent, not trusting ourselves to speak.

"What will you write about in your campus column?" asked Mr. Virile when he was able to talk again.

"I will take up the burning issues that vex the American undergraduate!" I cried, bounding to my feet. "I will explore, without fear or favor, such explosive questions as 'Are roommates sanitary?' and 'Should proctors be given a saliva test?' and 'Should capital punishment for pledges be abolished?' and 'Can a student of 19 find happiness with an economics professor of 80?'"

"And will you also say a pleasant word from time to time about Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blades?" asked Mr. Virile.

"Sir," I said simply, "what other kind of word except pleasant could I possibly say about Personna Blades, which give me more luxury shaves than Beep-Beep or any other blade I might name?"

"Another of my products is Burma Shave," said Mr. Virile. "Can you find it in your heart to mention Burma Shave occasionally?"

"But of course!" I declared. "For is not Burma Shave the whisker-wiltingest lather in the land?"

"Yes," he admitted.

And then he shook my hand again and smiled bravely and was gone—a tall silhouette moving erectly into the setting sun. "Farewell, good tondorialist!" I cried after him. "Aloha!" And turned with a will to my typewriter.
