SAC Fails to Divide Budget Satisfactorily

The Student Activities Committee (SAC) failed to reconcile requests from member campus organizations last Friday and will have to meet again May 23 to divvy up an available $39,000 budget.

According to Dr. Charles M. Renneisen, dean of students, the committee hopes to make the necessary adjustments in the requests and formulate a final budget that can be submitted to President Oliver before the semester ends.

When the committee session ended Friday, requests and allocations totaled approximately $37,500. At that time there had been no decision on Image magazine's

Faculty Central Committee Report

70% of Students Accepted With 'C' or Below Averages

By John Edwards

Forty per cent of the students admitted here this academic year failed to meet standards set forth in the college catalog, and 70 per cent were accepted with high school averages of "C" or lower, according to findings of the Faculty Central Committee.

The findings are stated in a resolution adopted by the committee and forwarded to the Administration.

It expresses concern over the standards of admissions here and calls for "a proper and competent committee, of which not less than 60 per cent shall be full-time teaching faculty members, to work with those administrative officers involved with admissions."

According to President Oliver, a committee appointed by the Administration now has the resolution and is working on the admissions question. Dr. Oliver said a decision may be reached by the end of the school year.

The resolution on admissions states the committee's belief that "the quality of instruction, the morale of faculty, and the intellectual and social climate of a school are all profoundly and directly influenced by the degree of care exercised in the selection of students."

It further asserts that "a preoccupation with numbers of students, while exciting in terms of projections of physical growth, will encourage a search for the lowest common denominator, and that a commitment to excellence, while more difficult, will eventually contribute to growth of a more important kind."

The resolution goes on to say that "the faculty deplores the fact that 40 per cent of admissions in

Dr. Herbert Burgart To Head Art School

Dr. Herbert J. Burgart chairman of the George Peabody College department of arts, has been appointed dean of the School of Art here, a new position.

His appointment, announced Wednesday, brings to three the number of new deans named by the college for the fall semester. A Graduate School dean is expected to be selected within a few weeks.

Dr. Burgart of St. Marys, Pa. will assume duties here September 1. Dr. J. Kenneth Roach, dean of the college, said Wednesday. He was recommended to the Administration by the Art Council, a group formed two years ago by art school department heads to oversee the school's operation.

The new dean has been at the Nashville, Tenn., college since 1965. He was previously chair-

Able to Leap Skyscrapers...

It was indeed a jolt to learn this week that more than one-third of the students admitted this academic year were beneath the standards stated in the 1965-66 catalog and that nearly three-fourths of accepted students were granted admission with high school averages of "C" or lower.

This information came to light from a formal resolution on admissions recently adopted by the Faculty Central Committee (FCC).

(News story, page one)

The Director of Admissions, with the approval of the President, and the Student Personnel Deans asked the FCC to examine admissions policies and practices and to make recommendations to the Administration.

A committee from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools last spring agreed that the stated admissions policy was in keeping with the association's standards, but "... the college does not adhere to its stated policy."

Circulated last fall, a questionnaire to the faculty revealed that admissions policies and practices were the major source of dissatisfaction among faculty members.

The move on the part of the FCC is a significant one and could well be the turning point to upgrade instruction and to give a much-needed boost to the college's academic standing.

The resolution calls for:

(a) The rapid growth of the college to be used as an opportunity for significant upgrading of the student body;

(b) A clearly stated policy to allow department chairmen some freedom in deviating from the standard admission policies, but that such deviations be labeled and limited as such;

(c) Policies and procedures to be developed to insure the most appropriate and highly qualified students be selected;

(d) A committee at least 60 per cent of which shall be full-time faculty members to work with admissions officers;

(e) A total number of admissions not to exceed the number of students that can be accommodated by the physical facilities of the college and by the available faculty.

From the years, 1917-1951, the college grew little. Instruction was of a vocational nature, and most of it was done in remodeled residences.

In 1951 the General Assembly allotted funds for the college's first new building, the gymnasium. The Hibbs Building was next and the Science Building.

Since RPI was granted independence in 1962 from its founding mother, the College of William and Mary, emphasis seems to have been placed on property acquisition growth of the physical plant.

Recently a master site plan was unveiled, and soon the campus will sport a 19-story, high-rise dormitory. The 1966 General Assembly recognized some of our needs and allotted money for several new buildings.

The physical expansion is not expected to slow in the near future.

A very desirable impetus to academic "expansion" may soon develop in view of the FCC's report.

The burden of the need for more education of the masses should not fall on one institution, particularly a young institution that could be crushed by the weight of too many ill-prepared students.

We commend the FCC for its resolution for "... the attraction of excellence and the prevention of a concentration of mediocrity."

With the force generated by an above-average student body and faculty, the college will be able to leap those skyscrapers at a single bound.

This is one of the relief assemblages by James E. Smith, student in the Graduate School of Fine arts, currently on display in the Fine Arts Gallery on the third floor of the Gymnasium Building. The work is on sale for $265.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

LSD, Image, SIR Draw Comments

Editor, the Proscript:

Isn't the Proscript's criticism of the literary magazine, Image, extremely unjust? Image is seeking perfection, and perfection can be attained not through the presentation of average student contributions, but careful selection of the best work that this college has to offer. In this manner the magazine challenges the minds of the students to reach for greater levels.

Is the writer of the editorial in last week's paper being unloyal to the school in saying that "professional excellence does not abound here"? Right next to the editorial was an article concerning the winning of a national distribution award by one of our students. Many others have won similar honors. The statement, therefore, is a fallacy. Since we have the talent here, we certainly can expect to have a good school magazine illustrating it.

The Image's main problem is the lack of sufficient contributions and of outside student participation. Many people complain about the poor job that is being done by the Image staff, and yet no one will do anything about it until after the deadline for contributions has passed, Image is open to anyone who wishes to help make it a truly superior magazine, one of which our school can be proud.

SUSAN CAROL ABERNETHY

Editor, the Proscript:

The use of drugs—from marijuana and amphetamines to LSD, DMT and peyote—is now a major controversy. Psychedelic or "consciousness-expanding" drugs can provide experiences so impressive and profound that more and more people are looking to them as the most immediate and effective way to deepen personal insight and expand awareness.

That these experiences are impressive is a well-established fact with us; we have actively followed drug research from its earliest roots and are thoroughly familiar with the enchantments of almost every facet of psychedelic indulgence. Searching for lasting positive value, however, we concluded that drugs constitute only a subtle escape from the conscious effort that eventually must be made.

Although drug enthusiasts frequently turn to Eastern philosophers and spiritual teachings for metaphors to describe and justify their psychedelic experiences, no authentic teachings or guides have ever sanctioned the use of drugs in the quest of increased awareness and enlightenment.

Here the statements of Avatar Meher Baba are pertinent. Baba is a non-sectarian spiritual Master—living now in India—who is acknowledged East and West as the authority on higher states of consciousness (for one, U. S. psychedelic spokesman Dr. Richard Alpert recognizes Baba's mastery in this field).

When consulted about psychedelics, Baba replied: "The experiences which drugs induce are as far removed from Reality as is a mirage from water. No matter how much you pursue the mirage you will never quench your thirst, and the search for Truth through drugs must end in disillusionment. Many people in India smoke hashish and gunja—they see colors, forms and lights, and it makes them elated.

But this elation is only temporary.

FALSE SECURITY

"It gives them only experience of illusion and serves to take one farther away from reality. The feeling of having had a glimpse of higher states of consciousness may only lull one into a false security. Although LSD is not a physically addicting drug, one can become attached to the experiences arising from its use, and one gets tempted to use it in increased doses, again and again, in the hope of deeper experiences. But this can only lead to madness."

Our experience corroborates Baba's statement: drugs of any kind inevitably become a blind alley for self-fulfillment. To rely on external means is to ignore one's inherent capacity to realize his one great potential.

Editor, the Proscript:

Strange circumstances have made it necessary for me to request the publication of this letter in the Proscript. This letter is my resignation from the office of chairman of the organization known as Students for Individual Responsibility (SIR) and would usually be submitted by me to that organization rather than to the whole student body.

Unfortunately the Proscript is the only way that I could hope to communicate with the members of SIR as they have not attended meetings for the last six or seven weeks. Thus I request the public announcement of my resignation as an officer of this non-existent organization.

Dear SIR,

It is with much regret that I must announce my resignation as your chairman. When I accepted this position, I had visions of an organization dedicated to the establishment at Richmond Professional Institute of what I considered, and what I assumed was considered by the organization, to be an ideal academic community as indicated in article two of the SIR constitution and in the preamble to the constitution of the Student Government Association.

I had hoped that members of SIR would work in spreading among the other students a realization of the necessity of individual responsibility, not only in their academic pursuits, but in their lives as citizens of a country whose government is based on individual decision and participation.

LACK OF RESPONSE

Unfortunately the response, or lack of it, by the members of SIR indicate that I was mistaken, and on this point of difference and because my chairmanship is rather unnecessary under existing conditions, I resign.

I also feel that the Proscript is not the place to air other points of disagreement which necessitate this resignation, but I am sure that members of SIR are aware of what these issues are; if not, please contact me, and I will explain them to you.

Editor, the Proscript:

Congratulations on your editorial, "Our Image?" It represents genuine progress in the art of criticism. Indeed, it opens up a whole new realm of critical endeavor which I should like to be the first to christen "Pre-Natal Analysis."

Now we don't need to wait for Image actually to reach the students to know how bad it is. The traditional "Proscript Post-Mortem" has taken a giant step ahead. And we who sometimes contribute our juvenilia for mass consumption no longer need worry about a planned obsolescence for two weeks.

This is admirable, to be sure. But I think the logical ultimate has yet to be obtained—"Pre-Conceptual Criticism." Once the editors of Proscript are able to evaluate Image even before the students submit their material, they will have reached their goal: to eliminate the very raison d'être of such a publication as Image. Let me encourage you toward this higher plateau of journalism.

Phi Beta Lambda Wins Eight Awards AT State Meet

Phi Beta Lambda garnered six first-place and two second-place awards during the 10th annual Virginia chapter awards banquet in Richmond recently.

The club won the most outstanding chapter award, honor chapters award and the American Business Achievement award.

Also, Darlene Harrup, Bused2 Petersburg, was elected president of the Virginia chapter of Phi Beta Lambda. The club also won the parliamentary procedures contest and placed three students — Dot Brewer, Bused4 Richmond, Nancy Bunch, Eled2 Suffolk, and Claudette Weatherholt, Bused2 Petersburg—on the state team which will participate in the finals at New Orleans, June 12-15, at the national convention.

THE COLLEGE PRESIDENT: HIS CAUSE AND CURE

Oh, sure, you've been busy, what with going to classes, doing your homework, catching night crawlers, getting married, picketing—but can't you pause for just a moment and give thought to that dear, dedicated, lonely man in the big white house on the hill? I refer, of course, to Prexy.

(It is interesting to note that college presidents are always called "Prexy." Similarly, trustees are always called "Trixie." Associate professors are always called "Axy-Pixy." Bursars are called "Foxy-Woxy." Students are called "Algae.")

But I digress. We were speaking of Prexy, a personage at once august and pathetic. Why pathetic? Well, sir, consider how Prexy spends his days. He is busy, busy, busy. He talks to deans, he talks to professors, he talks to trustees, he talks to alumni. In fact, he talks to everybody except the one group who could lift his heart and rally his spirits. I mean, of course, the appealing, endearing, winsomest group in the entire college—delightful you, the students.

It is Prexy's sad fate to be forever a stranger to your laughing, golden selves. He can only gaze wistfully out the window of his big white house on the hill and watch you at your games and sports and yearn with all his tormented heart to bask in your warmth. But how? They would hardly be fitting for Prexy to appear one day at the Union, clad in an old rowing blazer, and cry gaily, "Heigh-ho, chaps! Who's for sculling?"

No, friends, Prexy can't get to you. It is up to you to get to him. Call on him at home. Just drop in unannounced. He will naturally be a little shy at first, so you must put him at his ease. Shout, "Howdy-doo, sir! I have come to bring a little sunshine into your drear and blighted life!" Then yank his necktie out of his vest and scamper goatlike around him until he is laughing merrily along with you.

Then hand him a package and say, "A little gift for you, sir."

"For me?" he will say, lowering his lids. "You shouldn't have."

"Yes, I should," you will say, "because this is a pack of Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades, and whenever I think of Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades, I think of you."

"Why, hey?" he will ask curiously.

"Because, sir," you will say, "though you are no longer a young blade, still you gleam and function. Full though you are of years and lumps, rheumy though your endocrines and flaccid your hamstrings, still you remain sharp, incisive, efficacious."

"Thank you," he will say, sobbing.

"So it is with Personna," you will continue. "Naturally you expect a brand-new blade to give a close, speedy shave. But how about a blade that's had hard and frequent use? Do you still expect a close, speedy shave? Well, sir, if it's a Personna, that's what you'll get. Because, sir, like you, sir, Personna is no flash-in-the-pan. Like you, sir, Personna abides."

He will clasp your hand then, not trusting himself to speak.

"But away with gloom!" you will cry jollily. "For I have still more good news to tell you of Personna!"

"How is that possible?" he will say.

"Hearken to me," you will say. "Personna, in all its enduring splendor, is available not only in Double Edge style but also in Injector style!"

He will join you then in the Personna rouser, and then he will bring you a steaming cup of cocoa with a marshmallow on top. Then you will say, "Good-bye, sir. I will return soon again to brighten your dank, miasmic life."

"Please do," he will say. "But next time, if you can possibly manage it, try not to come at four in the morning."

19-Story Dormitory to Be Built Will House 700 Women Students

10,000 Students Expected

College Readies for Growth

By Bob Lindzey

For a glimpse of the campus of the future, visiting parents this week end should take a one-block walk from the Administration Building to the 700 block of West Franklin st.

There's an empty space there the college hopes to fill with a 19-story women's dormitory by the fall of 1967.

Across the corner is Monroe Terrace, which next year will accommodate 150 additional women occupants when renovation is completed this summer.

And, if the General Assembly continues to be receptive to college fund requests and the master site plan is born out, the campus may be something like this to visiting parents between now and 1980:

There may be a place to park. Sketched onto the site plan drawing are three "collector point" lots. One lot to the north would be bounded by Broad, Grace, Harrison and Laurel sts., while one to the south fronts on Main st. opposite the Mosque.

Richmond City Council has allocated $250,000 in its budget for the southern parking facility for use by students in the day and the general public in the evening.

A lot to the east would be built near Main and Belvidere sts.

Featured in the site plan is a pedestrian mall extending from Grace st., south to Main st. and passing through the campus. The mall would connect major collector parking areas and would require the closing of Shafer st., Cathedral place and Cherry st. Eventually, the mall would be depressed to pass beneath the major east-west traffic arteries of Floyd, Park and Franklin sts.

At the past session of the General Assembly, college officials told the Legislature that since 10,000 day students are expected by 1970-72, the problems of parking for commuters and elbow room for pedestrians will greatly expand.

The new lots are expected to provide space for 3,000 cars. Presently, students compete with local residents for cherished room by the curb or rent spaces.

NEW LIBRARY

Plans also call for a new library to be located in the center of the campus, allowing the present building to be used for classroom space. The new library would be four stories high and cost $1,360,000.

Acquisition of Monroe Park is not included in the site plan, but five dormitories are expected to be located near it, including the 19-story building to be built in the 700 block West Franklin st.

This dormitory would house 700 women.

One of the new dormitories would be an expansion of an existing building.

Any, by 1980, the college hopes to have added eight new classroom buildings. Estimates vary, but by that time the college may have grown to an enrollment of 20,000.

Meanwhile, for the next two years, the college has been granted $16,071,370 for the 1966-68 biennium.

For capital outlay, $4,707,300 was allocated; $11,364,070 was marked for maintenance and operations.

Construction for this two-year period generally will involve expanding the gymnasium and work on the library and a 52-unit classroom building.

Report Given By Committee On Standards

1965-66 were beneath the standards stated in the 1965-66 catalog and that 70 per cent of the students were accepted with high school averages of "C" or lower."

While calling for more rigid standards of admission, the committee declares that since academic grades and scholastic testing devices are not accurate always in measuring student potential, department chairmen should be given some freedom in deviating from the standard policy, but that such deviations should be limited.

Much of the data used by the Faculty Committee was obtained from a self-study committee report prepared for the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges. The report observed that though the admissions policy, as stated, is in keeping with the standards of the Southern Association, "the college does not adhere to its stated policy."

Director of Admissions G. W. Rosecrans, asked to comment on the committee resolution, said, "A blanket condemnation can't be given regarding admissions policies here." He said that in many of the academic schools here, faults cited by the Faculty Committee "are really not the case."

Mr. Rosecrans explained that the school has a very decentralized admissions policy. "This problem of admissions is an old one," he commented. "It stems from the origin of the school: first one, then another, being added."

"RPI is actually 17 separate schools," he further stated, in giving reason for the difficulties in incorporating a standard admissions for all schools here.

man of the department of art education and associate professor of art at the University of Georgia.

He is president-elect of the Southeastern Arts Association and was vice president of the Georgia Art Education Association in 1964-65.

Dr. Burgart is author of "Creative Art: The Child and the School," which was published in 1963.

He received his bachelor of arts degree at Long Beach (Calif.) State College in 1954; a master of education degree in art education from Pennsylvania State University in 1957, and a doctor of education degree in art education from Pennsylvania State in 1961.

CANDIDATES

A Graduate School Council, which supervises the Graduate School in the same fashion as the Art Council, is expected to make a recommendation for a dean to head the school in the near future, Dean Roach said.

Several candidates for the newly created position are being considered, Dean Roach said.

Dr. James Edwin Whitesell has already been named dean of the new School of Arts and Sciences, and Dr. Richard Lodge will head the School of Social Work, effective July 1. Both were selected earlier in the school year.

Dr. Whitesell is presently professor of English at the University of South Carolina; Dr. Lodge now serves as administrator of the doctoral program in social work at the University of Pennsylvania's school of social work.

ADVISER

For the current academic year, Dr. Lodge has been an adviser on matters concerning development of new programs in the School of Social Work. He also has been active in recruiting new faculty members.

Dr. Whitesell's school will open next fall.

It will be a combination of the Department of History and Political Science, the School of Applied Science and the Languages and Literature, and Philosophy departments, Dean Roach said.

As one result of the merger, the Dean said, the new school will have a faculty of about 50 persons.

Fashion Show Is Tonight

"Spring Safari," a spring fashion show, sponsored by the Department of Fashion Design in co-operation with Thalhimers, will be presented tonight at 7:30 in Thalhimers fifth floor auditorium.

The show, based on a recent trip to South Africa by Mrs. Otti Windmueller, head of the fashion department, is part of the entertainment planned for Parent's Week End. Some of the creation that the fashion department has been working on during the year will be displayed.

John Kleberg Named to Head Security Agency

A college graduate in police affairs has joined the staff here to bolster the campus force and provide expanded protection to students and faculty.

John R. Kleberg, 26, has been appointed security director of the newly organized campus security agency. He is in charge of a four-man force of uniformed officers whose average age is 48.

As security director, Mr. Kleberg is responsible for the safety of 7,134 students, plus faculty members.

More police officers will be needed as the college continues to expand, he said.

A low frequency FM radio station will begin operation on campus in the fall of 1967.

The station expects to receive a total of $6,000 for establishment and operational expenses.

The station has requested $2,700 from the Student Activities Committee and has received a total of $3,300 from the Office of Development and the school's general fund.

Rodger M. Lively, instructor of drama and head of the committee to organize an FM station here, stated that the station could reach an estimated 5,000 students and a large number of Richmond area residents.

The planned station will operate from a 10-watt transmitter and will have a broadcasting radius of 12 miles.

NON-COMMERCIAL

When the station is established it will operate on a non-commercial, educational basis.

The call letters for the FM station will be the same as those being used by the piping system, which is now being heard in the Rotunda.

The piping system or WJRB, which stands for James River

Broadcasting, presently broadcasts, 11 a.m.-7 p.m., five days a week.

WJRB studios are located at 908 West Franklin st. on the second floor in what formerly housed the Department of Dramatic Art and Speech.

The station is now accepting announcements concerning campus activities.

The establishment of the FM station will also aid a school of broadcasting, which is being planned for the near future, according to Mr. Lively, and will offer students semi-professional training in broadcasting.

SGA President Enjoys Sports, Art

An athlete who paints and has a burning desire to bring about "more cultural activities" on campus—that, in short, is Milt Woody, president-elect of the Student Government Association.

Woody enjoys a wide variety of interests, but his chief present goal is to organize the student government so as to "get it working efficiently."

Woody explains that for an efficient operation, such things as written committee reports, to be presented following each student committee meeting, will be necessary.

"Among the most urgent needs that I hope to see satisfied is the establishment of regular SGA office hours," he said.

A resident of Richmond, Woody hopes to obtain more coverage for the college in city newspapers and to establish "a strong publicity committee to meet this end."

Registrar Says Pre-registration Runs 'Smoothly'

"Pre-registration ran along as smoothly as we had hoped; some 2,428 students completed the process by last Friday," C. Thomas Holloway, registrar, said this week.

As of Monday an estimated 300 had pre-registered for the Summer Session.

"There have not been as many people mailing in pre-registration forms as was originally hoped," Mrs. Sophia Hodges, assistant director of Summer Session, said, "but we expect a great many more after May 15."

Those who are not registered here as full-time students can obtain the necessary forms and mail in their pre-registration papers, thereby avoiding the regular registration day on June 16.

And, he asserts, "at present, we have no tradition, no respect—in short, no alma mater."

"When RPI becomes a university, a new name will be necessary. This will be a grand opportunity for the school to identify itself with something and to give students a feeling of importance by attending a school with such identification."

Regarding fraternities, Woody said, "I can't say that I'm for or against them, but my personal opinion is not important."

"I want the students to express their opinion. If they so desire, we'll hold a referendum, and if student support of fraternities is in evidence, I will support the effort completely, doing everything possible to secure approval of fraternities."

Woody pitches for the Rams' baseball team. And he likes to paint.

"Surprisingly," he said, "I enjoy painting, and contrary to popular belief, the School of Art will be back next year, unaffected, as some have feared, by my election to the presidency."

State Softball Title Won by Rams, 7-1

Displaying a balanced attack, the RPI softball team defeated the University of Richmond, 7-1, in the final game of the Virginia Amateur Softball Association's annual college fast pitch tournament Saturday at Byrd Park.

The Rams also took home the most valuable player award, outstanding batter award, and best manager.

Pitcher Ray Pollard was selected most valuable player for his outstanding performance in the game against Richmond. The Rockingham award to the best hitter went to Ram centerfielder Ron Woody who hit well during the entire event. Manager and first baseman Rick Lyons also received an award as the tourney's best manager.

In spoiling the Spiders attempt at a third tournament title in a row, the Rams defeated Frederick College, 6-5, Union Theological Seminary, 7-2, and the University of Virginia, 1-0.

Rain Washes Out Tennis Matches

Out of seven women's tennis matches scheduled so far this season, rain has caused all but one to be cancelled.

The team lost its only outing, taking a 5-0 setback at the hands of Bridgewater College last month. The win enabled Bridgewater to increase its winning streak to five games while it hasn't suffered a loss.

The team is scheduled to travel to Radford College next Friday.

Prospects Bright For Hockey Team

According to Mrs. Elizabeth Royster, instructor of physical education, prospects are good that the college will field a hockey team next year.

Rams Lose to W&L, Play Finale Tomorrow

The Rams dropped below the .500 mark in baseball for the first time this year and will remain there for the season. They dropped four games out of five to bring their record to 6-9 and will wrap up the season tomorrow when they take on Newport News Apprentice School at Hotchkiss Field.

In a doubleheader with Washington and Lee University Monday RPI received good pitching, but the Generals beat the Rams, 4-1, and 2-1.

In the first game the General's Jim Cooper limited the Rams to five hits and struck out six. The Rams' Don Clatterbough got off to a bad start, giving up two runs in the first inning. He got stronger as the game progressed and held the Generals to four hits for the rest of the contest.

The only real Ram threat was in the fourth inning when they scored their only run. Third baseman Curt-Jonas led off with a walk, Mike Wolfrey went to first on an error. First baseman Joe Davis followed with a single scoring Jones and sending Wolfrey to second. Cooper then retired the next three batters to end the rally.

The second game was identical to the first except that the Rams connected for fewer hits. The second batter in the first inning Barry Winslow, singled and then the Rams were held hitless by the Generals Pete Heumann until Winslow came through with a double in the sixth. Winslow's double drove in pitcher Wayne Sheridan, who had walked, for the Rams only run.

Sheridan, starting for the third time in the last game, including both ends of double header with Bridgewater College. It was not until the sixth inning of the second game that the General's got the deciding run on a homer by catcher Bill Wolfe.

In the Rams 5-3 loss to North Carolina Wesleyan the Rams were held hitless for the first four innings and ended the game with four hits. In this game the Rams fell behind early and showed the come from behind rally that was so vital in their early victories.

Rams Finish Ninth In State Track Meet

RPI's two-man track team competed in its only meet of the year Saturday and walked away with a ninth place tie in the 14-team meet.

The College of William and Mary won the event, taking their fifth consecutive victory in the Virginia Intercollegiate Track and Field Championships held at Lexington.

Brad Clever and Richard Lunde combined to score three points enabling the college to tie Lynchburg College and finish ahead of Frederick College, Randolph-Macon College and Eastern Mennonite College.

Clever picked up his two points with a fourth-place finish in the javelin competition. Clever's throw of 173 feet was 17 feet off the winning mark of 190 feet attained by Virginia Tech's Tom Hudgins.

"I was disappointed with my performance," Clever said. "I've thrown six feet further than the winning throw, but I guess I just didn't have it Saturday."

Part of Clever's problem may be attributed to the fact that he hadn't competed since he finished fifth with a throw of 192 feet in the National Junior Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) championships last July in Baltimore.

Clever also qualified fifth in the high jump but was eliminated during the competition.

Lunde scored RPI's other point with a fifth place finish in the shot put. His heave of 48 ft. was three feet short of the winning throw of 52-2 1/2. Lunde has also bettered the winning mark but not in competition.

Charles McLeod competed in the freshmen division for RPI but failed to score. McLeod, who has been bothered by an injured elbow, qualified in the high jump but was eliminated during the regular competition.

There are no collegiate meets which the three can compete in before the end of the current school year, but both Clever and Lunde said they intended to compete in AAU meets this summer.

House Rejects Proposal To Reorganize

The House of Representatives, in its final meeting of this session this week, killed a proposal that it reorganize on the basis of representation by academic schools.

The House passed a constitutional amendment redistributing authority to change the Honor Code, but this measure will not become effective unless approved, also, by the Senate.

TWO AMENDMENTS

The Senate passed two constitutional amendments, one reversing House and Senate weekly meeting dates and the other providing that student government election petitions must be submitted two weeks prior to elections. Decisions on both amendments completed legislative action and they will become effective in the fall.

With this week's actions, both the House of Representatives and the Senate ended their sessions. New members of both chambers will take office next week, presumably to do little more than organize, elect officers and adjourn for the summer.

The reorganization amendment defeated in the House called for a complete change in representation, abandoning activity groups as the base units and substituting academic schools or departments. The proposal had been discussed for several weeks.

Language Department Offers Two Oriental Courses in Fall

The language department plans to offer courses in Chinese and Japanese next year, according to Miss Juliet Woodson, head of the department.

In anticipation of heavy enrollment and the growing population in language classes, the staff of the department in both the day and Evening College is being increased.

Additional equipment for the language laboratory has been acquired.

The day college presently offers French, German and Spanish. The Evening College in addition offers Russian and Italian.

A late afternoon class (5:30-6:40) in Italian is a possible innovation for the fall semester, Miss Woodson said.

3 Architecture Students Designing Play Area Here

A trio of architectural students of the Virginia Tech extension here are drawing a perspective rendering of a playground and swimming pool for a local contractor.

The students, all freshmen, include Stephen Bowers, Bon Air; Bruce Fransen, Centerport, N. Y., and Donald Libeau, Manassas.

They are working on the project which was requested by Mike G.

Rozos, a graduate who worked on a portion of the same project.

The local unnamed builder who requested the drawings is interested in RPT's relationship to the community, John T. Morgan, assistant professor in the engineering department said.

This type of project is a first here, Mr. Morgan said.
