Stewart R. Sutherland

Commencement Speaker

Recipient, Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters Degree

As vice-chancellor of the University of London, Stewart Sutherland oversees a mammoth charge, a responsibility that has no U.S. equivalent.

Her Royal Highness The Princess Anne holds the ceremonial title of chancellor, while Sutherland’s duties are those of the working head of the university. Named to the post in 1990, Sutherland presides over the university’s twenty-three schools and colleges, twelve institutes and five associated institutions. The University of London offers the widest range of higher education opportunities in Britain—more than 900 bachelor’s degrees, more than 400 master’s degrees and unparalleled facilities for advanced research in the United Kingdom. The London School of Economics and Guy’s Hospital are also included in the university.

The University of London had its origins in the 1820s and 1830s with the creation of University College in Bloomsbury and King’s College in the Strand. The only two English universities in existence at the time—Oxford and Cambridge—limited entrance to communicant members of the Church of England. In contrast, the founders of University College set out to provide an institution open to all, irrespective of race, creed or political belief.

In fact, Sutherland holds master’s degrees from the University of Aberdeen, and Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

The Scottish-born and educated vice-chancellor began his career as a lecturer of philosophy at the University of North Wales in 1965 and joined the University of Stirling in 1968. He went on to King’s College London as a professor of history and philosophy of religion. In 1983, he was elected a fellow at the institution.

Sutherland’s colleagues explained that their former vice-chancellor was a nuclear physicist while the incoming Sutherland was a religious philosopher. One remarked, “We thought it ironic that we should go from a person making a physical search of the universe to one making a moral search of the universe!”

A past-president of the Society for the Study of Theology and an associate fellow at the Centre for Philosophy at the University of Warwick, Sutherland’s publications include The Philosophical Frontiers of Christian Theology, God, Jesus and Belief and Faith and Ambiguity.

An ardent fan of theatre and jazz, Sutherland is married and the father of three children.
Samuel O. Thier, M.D.
Recipient, Honorary Doctor of Human Letters Degree

The president of Brandeis University, Samuel O. Thier, has dedicated his life to medical education. After completing a residency at Massachusetts General Hospital in 1966, Thier began his academic career teaching at Harvard Medical School. The institutions he has graced read like a who’s who of the most stellar medical facilities in the Northeast: University of Pennsylvania, Yale, Johns Hopkins and Brandeis.

A native of Brooklyn, New York, Thier completed his undergraduate work in three years at Cornell University and received his medical degree from State University of New York at Syracuse.

The list of honors and awards that have been conferred on Thier is also lengthy. His most recent include the San Francisco Medal from the University of California and the American College of Physicians Certificate of Achievement.

A former member of the editorial board of the New England Journal of Medicine, Thier has more than 100 publications to his credit as well as two textbooks.

In his successful roles as physician, researcher, administrator and educator, Thier exemplifies the mission of Medical College of Virginia as well as Virginia Commonwealth University. It is with great pleasure that we award him this Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree.
Norman Sisisky

Recipient, Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters Degree

Norman Sisisky is in his fifth term as a U.S. Representative for Virginia’s Fourth Congressional District. He brings to the Congress more than thirty years’ experience as a businessman and legislator. Virginia’s Fourth District includes portions of eleven counties and eight cities. It also includes some of the largest military facilities in the country.

Soon after taking the oath of office in 1983, Sisisky was assigned to the House Committee on Armed Services. The only member to serve on four of the committee’s permanent subcommittees during the 101st Congress, Sisisky again has that distinction during the 102nd Congress with assignments on procurement and military nuclear systems; military installations and facilities; seapower and strategic and critical materials; and investigations.

Additionally, Sisisky sits on several special advisory panels and early this year was selected to head the newly formed North Atlantic Assembly Panel. Since 1989 he has been a member of the United States delegation to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and has served as vice chairman of the Assembly’s Defense and Security Committee. Because of his expertise in defense matters, he was named chairman for the conventional forces panel during House and Senate deliberations on the 1992 Department of Defense Authorization Bill.

During his tenure with the Armed Services Committee, Sisisky has worked to protect Virginia’s naval and military facilities while also trying to ensure that military spending decisions strike the proper balance between strategic necessity and fiscal prudence. An appointee on several commissions, he has initiated a number of investigations, such as one in 1983 that uncovered nearly $143 million in overestimated and overfunded expenses in the weapons procurement budget request.

Sisisky later introduced legislation to streamline Defense Department weapons procurement costs, resulting in a savings of more than $40 million for fiscal year 1987. For his efforts to cut federal spending, eliminate waste and reduce the federal deficit, Sisisky in 1989, and again in 1990, was presented the “Golden Bulldog Award” by the Watchdogs of the Treasury.

Sisisky also is a member of the Select Committee on Aging and the Small Business Committee. He became chairman of the Small Business Subcommittee on Exports, Tax Policy and Special Problems in 1988. Since becoming chairman, Sisisky has convened hearings on day care, export market barriers for small business, the impact of OSHA’s hazardous Communication Standard on non-manufacturers and the abuses of program-length commercials known as “infomercials.”

In 1987, Sisisky introduced a bill to assist small businesses compete effectively in international trade. In each of the last two years, he sponsored conferences to focus on the housing needs of low- and moderate-income families in the Fourth District of Virginia.

After graduating from Richmond’s John Marshall High School, Sisisky served in the Navy until 1946. He received his bachelor’s degree in business administration from Richmond Professional Institute, VCU’s forerunner, in 1949, and before his election to Congress, he served as a Virginia state legislator for five consecutive terms.

Sisisky has been married to the former Rhoda Brown for 41 years. The couple have four sons.
COMMONWEALTH UNIVERSITY

THE PRESIDENTIAL MEDALLION
Presidential Medallion

An exceptional honor, the Presidential Medallion is bestowed by Virginia Commonwealth University and is awarded in recognition of outstanding contribution by a member of the university community. The award is meant to recognize extraordinary achievement in the world of learning and dedication to Virginia Commonwealth University as shown by numerous outstanding contributions to several areas of university life. To honor these individuals, the president recommended and the Board of Visitors approved the establishment of this award in March 1984. The medallion is awarded at either the annual faculty convocation or at commencement, on recommendation of the president.
John Andrako, Ph.D.

Recipient, Presidential Medallion

In a time when the average person changes careers three or four times, John Andrako just logged his thirty-sixth year with Virginia Commonwealth University’s Medical College of Virginia.

Granted, the rock-steady administrator volunteered one career shift early on, making the leap from teacher to administrator.

In fact, after earning a doctorate in medicinal chemistry from the University of North Carolina in 1953, Andrako stayed on only three years as a professor at UNC before beginning his tenure with MCV.

A Richmond-based pharmacist who was a student in Andrako’s earliest classes at UNC recalls, “We all thought freshman pharmacy math was the worst, and many of us wanted to quit. Dr. Andrako insisted we could get through it and would be able to understand it. Whenever any of us had doubts and considered dropping out, he convinced us that pharmacy was the best profession that ever was or would be. He really cared about his students.”

After his first nine years teaching pharmaceutical and medicinal chemistry at MCV, Andrako was named assistant dean of the School of Pharmacy. He went on to a series of administrative positions until being named associate vice president for health sciences, the title he held for ten years until his retirement in February.

Andrako’s years of service alone might qualify him for the Presidential Medallion, awarded for outstanding contribution by a member of the university community. However, his extraordinary commitment to VCU in the past three years makes him especially deserving.

In 1988 he was asked to serve as interim vice president for health sciences - for about a year - while the search for the new vice president commenced. A change in university administration and a longer-than-expected search for his replacement kept Andrako fulfilling this extra duty for a total of three years. He is now professor emeritus of medicinal chemistry.

Born in Perth Amboy, New Jersey, Andrako graduated from Rutgers University with a bachelor’s degree in pharmacy and a master’s degree in medicinal chemistry.

Along with numerous memberships in scientific, honorary and professional societies, Andrako has been a member of the Richmond Rotary Club since 1971 and is a past-president and member of the Virginia Orchid Society. He is known for the homegrown orchids he often brought to the public areas of his office building. Along with his wife, Andrako tends to more than 600 varieties of orchids in their greenhouse.

Married to Wanda J. Barth, Andrako is the father of three grown children (including one pediatrician and one pharmacist).

The couple reside in Midlothian, Virginia.
Howard Sparks does things in a big way.
He dropped out of school at age 15, had to be fired twice and drafted into the Navy before he got serious about education. At 24 he entered college. He earned credentials at Columbia, Vanderbilt, University of Virginia and Harvard in a relatively short time.

When he retired from VCU three years ago as vice provost for continuing studies and public service, he had transformed his last post from a staff of one to thirty-one and an office into a division with a substantial budget.

Sparks began his formal association with the university in 1966 as founding chairman of the Department of Special Education. From 1971-1973, he was associate dean and director of graduate studies in the School of Education. In 1973 he took over continuing studies and in 1974 was named vice provost for the Division of Continuing Studies and Public Service.

By the time Sparks retired, VCU's continuing studies program was a national model that had served more than 100,000 persons. Charged with the modest assignment of systematizing continuing education credits, the division flourished. Its innovative programs include cooperative education, the Free University for older adults, international studies, nontraditional, summer, evening and off-campus studies as well as the Advising Center. Sparks also saw to it that every school within the university got a continuing education program.

Because of his own unorthodox experience with education, Sparks made it clear that he regarded education as a way of empowering and enfranchising individuals. The programs he pioneered reflect his strong feelings about the responsibility of public universities to provide knowledge and skills necessary for survival to a broad population—especially those unable to attend school full time.

Today, VCU is known as an accessible partner for homemakers returning to school to complete a degree, single parents hoping to increase their marketability, professionals readying for a mid-life career change. These are some of the students continuing education helps bring into the mainstream.

In keeping with his commitment to education, Sparks didn’t limit himself to the Academic Campus. In 1968, when Richmond Professional Institute merged with Medical College of Virginia, Sparks chaired the committee defining the mission of the newly created university.

A graduate of VCU's School of the Arts also credits Sparks with supporting students with his faithful attendance at shows and by collecting their works; theatre majors remember Sparks being there for opening night.

In sum, he dedicated himself to the concept of continuation. His legacy unfolds in the programs he seeded and in the artists, retirees, part-timers, professionals and late-bloomers who have come into their own because Howard Sparks was here.
The University Medallion

In 1984, Virginia Commonwealth University commissioned R. Daniel Booton to strike a university medallion to be worn by the president on ceremonial occasions. The University Medallion is hand-carved and designed in 24-karat gold-leafed bronze, created as a perpetual symbol of Virginia Commonwealth University.

The Medallion uses Egyptian hieroglyphics and mythological and real images to represent the University’s contributions in teaching, research and service.

The Egyptian Building on the Medical College of Virginia campus was selected as the centerpiece because of its significance as a historical and architectural landmark. The oldest medical building in the South, it is considered the best example of Egyptian Revival architecture in the United States. The building is flanked on the left by Isis, goddess of medicine, the arts, the home and the community. On the right is Toth, shown in his guise as the Ibis scribe of the gods. He is the master of writing and god of wisdom, numbers, measures and time.

Above the building is the glyph for “A to Z,” which represents knowledge and the role of the university. Isis offers the Ankh, the symbol of life, while Toth, holding the scroll of wisdom, blesses Virginia Commonwealth University.

The central grouping is surrounded by Nut, goddess of the sky, and Geb, god of the earth. The recumbent god forms mountains and valleys with its contorted body and thereby represents the earth sciences. Nut arches over the earth and symbolizes the cosmos and physical sciences. The Eye of Ra, the sun, travels across her back and is shown at its zenith, representing Virginia Commonwealth University’s rise to greatness.
RECIPIENTS OF DEGREES

Due to rigid time requirements, this program must be printed before the final list of degree candidates can be determined. The exclusion of the name of a student is not to be taken as indication of official status as a non-graduate, nor is the inclusion of the name of a student to be taken as certification of official status as a graduate.

(The student's major subject(s) is stated in parentheses following the name.)

ACADEMIC COSTUME

Academic costume worn today at American college exercises goes back in its essential features to the Middle Ages. The oldest universities of northern Europe, such as Paris and Oxford, grew out of church schools, and both faculty and students were regarded in the Middle Ages as a part of the clergy. They wore clerical costumes, largely borrowed from the monastic dress of that day not just on special occasions, but as their regular costume.

The head covering of the academic costume developed from the skull cap worn by the clergy in cold weather to protect their tonsured heads. In the universities, the skull cap acquired a point on top, which evolved into a tassel. The bonnet with tassel is still worn by degree holders of European universities. In America, it has been replaced by the familiar mortar board, which still retains the medieval tassel.

The hood (the medieval caputium) was originally a covering worn over the head in bad weather, otherwise dropped on the shoulders as the monk's cowl. At first it was worn by faculty and students alike, but in the early sixteenth century it was restricted to graduates, thus it became the mark of a degree holder. Today, each college has its distinctive hood lining by which its graduates may be recognized in academic processions. Anyone with a degree from Virginia Commonwealth University may wear a hood showing a black chevron on gold background.

The gown worn today is the medieval robe and seems to have been borrowed from the habit of the Benedictine monks. In the Middle Ages, undergraduates, bachelors and masters could be distinguished by the simplicity or intricacy of their gowns. The doctor's gown was often furred - this survives today in the ornamentation found on the doctoral gown. Usually the gown is black, but some colleges have colored gowns.

The wide velvet borders extending down the front of the doctoral gown, the velvet bars on the sleeves, and the borders of most hoods are colored according to the scholarly field of the wearer. Some of these are:

THE UNIVERSITY

Virginia Commonwealth University is a public, urban research university with more than 21,000 students pursuing undergraduate, graduate and professional studies on two campuses. VCU was created July 1, 1968, when Richmond Professional Institute merged with the Medical College of Virginia. Today, the two campuses blend the old and the new, with historic homes adapted into offices and classrooms amidst modern high-rise buildings.

Approximately 175 fields of study are offered on the two campuses of the university. The Academic Campus, located in Richmond's historic fan district, houses the College of Humanities and Sciences, the schools of the Arts, Business, Community and Public Affairs, Education, Mass Communication and Social Work. The Medical College of Virginia Campus, two miles east of the Academic Campus in Richmond's downtown business district, houses the schools of Allied Health Professions, Basic Health Sciences, Dentistry, Medicine, Nursing, Pharmacy and Graduate Studies.

VCU takes its urban mission seriously, with the commitments of faculty and students alike. Two years ago, the Community Service Associates program began. Through it, faculty offer their expertise to area organizations, local governments and businesses and school systems on specific projects.

The university is also working on strengthening relations with nearby communities. Community Advisory Boards for both campuses began meeting in fall 1990 to provide a quarterly forum where VCU's neighbors could voice their concerns and the university could discuss plans that will affect the community around us.

Through the Carver Promise, VCU students monitor support for 127 Carver Elementary School students and their families by consistent tutoring and encouragement. VCU is one of four local colleges and universities that promised full tuition to students who graduate from high school and are admitted.

Ranked among the top universities in terms of funded research, VCU received more than $67 million in external research awards for research and training programs in the 1990-1991 fiscal year to fund projects on both campuses.

High quality academic instruction is provided by a 2,260 member faculty, 79 percent of whom hold terminal degrees, distinguished in both teaching and research. University Library Services supports the instructional programs with James Branch Cabell Library on the Academic Campus and the Tompkins-McCaw Library on the Medical College of Virginia Campus. This year, the library system will purchase its one-millionth volume to add to the holdings. In addition, books and journal subscriptions are supplemented by special collections in the arts, sciences, humanities and biomedical areas.

Annually, about 3,500 students graduate from VCU. The success of our graduates and academic achievements of our faculty enhance VCU's position as one of the more important institutions of higher education in the United States.
